Easement Valuations Show People at Odds

EATONTOWN — There was a margin of difference between what Fred Schultz asked and what the Eatontown Sewer Authority (ESA) said it is willing to pay for a land easement.

Mr. Schultz suggested that the authority could have a piece of property needed for its underground pipes for $1,000 and costs. Those costs, he said, came to $350.

ESA's offer was $75.

The Land Caucus

In an hour-long caucus devoted to easement issues that held up the start of the meeting 63 minutes, the mountain labored and brought forth a mouse.

ESA produced figures adding up to $395 for 20-foot strip easements across eight different land parcels. Its top figures were $150 for necessary diggings on Reade's Drive-In property and the $75 for the Schultz land. The offer for a strip across the Bendix Aviation corporation property at South st. came to $15.

The way was paved by Henry J. Saling, ESA attorney, first by negotiating and then, if need be, by condemnation proceedings and the issuance of "declarations of taking needed land" by the authority.

Mr. Schultz put up a long and strong argument for a good settlement. He acknowledged, however, that he obtained the land from the borough for "a ridiculously low price," identified later as $25. But he said the only reason he bought the land in the first place was "to clean up an eyesore," a job that cost him the $350.

The commissioners listened with sympathy to all Mr. Schultz had to say. Then, at Mr. Saling's advice, he agreed to come to borough hall at 9:30 a. m. Saturday and produce whatever evidence or witnesses he wanted to in support of his claims.

George B. Whitfield, vice chairman of the authority, said that in coming up with easements for the land "we tried to be equitable. We want to treat all on an equal basis."

It was in October, 1956, said Mr. Schultz, that he appeared before the mayor and council with a request that it clean up property that once had been intended as an extension of First st., but which the borough didn't want.

Surprised at Cost

Instead of agreeing to fix conditions, he said, council bartered him the land to do with as he wanted at a very low price. He said he was surprised at the purchase price of the 50x150 foot strip but bought and since has paid taxes on it.

What ESA wants, Mr. Saling said, is to put an underground pipe through the center of this land. To do this, it needs a 20-foot easement or perpetual right of way. While no structures could be built over the sewer line, the easement line could be shifted six feet to one side after the pipe is installed. That, on the one side would create a nine-foot strip of non-easement land between the ESA line and the Fort Monmouth fence. On the other would be a 24-foot strip which, if desired, could be available for future building purposes.

William Harvey, project engineer, said costs would be prohibitive to put in the line closer to the fort fence which "would have to be shored up."

It was the contention of Mr. Schultz that his small lot would have little or no value to him with its easement restrictions. "Who would buy it?" he asked, getting no direct answer.

"Had I any idea that a sewer line would have gone in there," he said, "I never would have bought it. I still am faced by the taxes."

The owner was worried lest he someday must sell out his holdings.

It was the opinion of George B. Whitfield, vice chairman, who conducted the session in the absence of George A. Morgan, chairman, that Mr. Schultz could build another house next to his own at the site. But, if he did, Mr. Saling suggested, it probably would have to go up four feet or so from the existing Schultz residence.

Commissioner John Adams questioned the value of the deed Mr. Schultz got from the borough. The owner acknowledged he never had it searched.

Mr. Saling's view was that Mr. Schultz was speculating now with a profit motive in mind, and said that the owner would have just what he wanted, tidy property, if ESA got its easement. Mr. Schultz agreed he did want to make a "few dollars" and ESA officials said they didn't blame him for that.

The ESA got down to some other details of its $1,600,000 program last night.

Other Action Taken

It prepared the final text of a letter of information to go out to property owners detailing the way their houses and business places would be connected up to the sewer system. One factor was that any owner wishing to make the connection on a do-it-yourself basis would have to get a permit to do so.

A resolution was drawn up on the easements, 20-foot strips along areas of West Park and Richardson aves., Center and South sts., Heritage rd. and rt. 35.

The rules would give ESA perpetual rights to do whatever digging, tree and brush removal or like work necessary.

Benjamin Van Keuren, secretary, went over a progress report by Mr. Harvey.

Stations Completed

Three underground pumping stations have been completed by the L. A. Sirois company of Elizabeth, and ESA agreed to pay the firm the remaining $7,361 of its $69,500 contract on the condition that a performance bond continue in force. Mr. Harvey said he is satisfied that the stations are in a satisfactory condition.

The sewage disposal plant that Thomas Procter & company, Long Branch, is building on Throckmorton ave. was reported 70 per cent complete.

J. & S. Construction company, Eatontown, has installed 61.3 per cent of 101,520 feet of control lines and put in some 65 per cent of the lateral lines to which houses and stores will be connected. In now are 694 of these lateral lines, said Mr. Van Keuren.

The authority secretary told a reporter that ESA is aiming at a target date of June 1 to get the system into partial service. He said that the weather has been too cold to resurface all parts of Lewis st., Wickoff rd. and other streets which had to be opened for piping excavations, but that holes have been filled with gravel and would be filled in with surfacing in the spring.

Further discussions are planned Tuesday or Thursday of next week.

4 Classes May Go On Split Sessions

EATONTOWN—A total of four classes here may be on double sessions in local schools next September.

So said Anson V. Ramson, board of education president, at Monday night's meeting.

He added the situation might change—but the way it looks now "the double sessions seem inevitable."

Superintendent William W. Ramsay said the school enrollment is now 1,639 students while in September it is expected to go up to 1,686.

Mr. Ransom said the double session move will probably be necessary even though the board does not plan to educate Fort Monmouth's Capehart housing development students after June.

Matter of fact, the board introduced its 1959-60 operating budget—and no provisions were made for accepting these students.

Resch Comments

Charles J. Resch, president of the Eatontown Taxpayers association, said he could not see why about 50 additional children would mean double sessions.

"That number of children by themselves would not mean double sessions," Mr. Ramsay answered. "But because enrollment bulges hit certain grades, we have to plan on more classes."

In other business, the board:

1. Turned over to the buildings and grounds committee a letter from the Margaret L. Vetter school Parent-Teacher association asking for the board's position on a proposed Jersey Central Power and Light company substation which might be erected near the school grounds. The board said it has never received any definite word on the substation, but will look into it.

2. Voted to give John Kilpatrick, a teacher, a day's pay for a school day he missed while representing the state in the national table tennis championships at Chicago.

3. Turned over to the educational practices committee a letter from William Bolvig, who termed the musical program offered in the schools "inadequate."

4. Endorsed the attendance of students at the Monmouth Arts foundation Cleveland symphony concert in Red Bank Feb. 13, although it hesitated to provide transportation if it ran over $40 or $50.

5. Designated the Memorial school as polling place one to be used by voters living in districts two and four and Steelman school as polling place two to be used by voters living in districts one and three for the Feb. 10 school election.

TO BE PAROLED

TRENTON (AP) — The state parole board said yesterday it will parole nine convicts—including a Monmouth county man. He is Andrew Stanko, Keansburg, who was sentenced last May for one to two years for contributing to the delinquency of a child.

Ocean Township Sewer Tie-in Seen at Eatontown

EATONTOWN — Chances looked bright last night that Ocean township will tie in a development of 300 houses into this borough's sewer system.

That would give the Eatontown Sewer Authority (ESA) guaranteed additional annual income of at least $18,000 a year, it was estimated by Henry J. Saling, attorney.

Mr. Saling, acting under Ocean's green light to set up formal negotiations, said he would try to set up a meeting of the authority's commissioners with the township committeemen Tuesday or Thursday of next week.

Return Fee Possible

The $18,000 figure is based upon a possible fee of $60 per year per house, the same rate property owners in this borough will pay. However, commissioners considered allowing Ocean a return fee of 10 per cent of the annual sum to offset costs involved in having the township act as its own collection agent in dealing with its own residents.

But, it was explained by Mr. Saling, $18,000 may not be the only figure upon which negotiations may be based. Ocean, he said, could charge what it wanted to, within reason, for service to individual houses. In some cases, the annual fee runs to "$75 or even $100 per house," he pointed out.

Because no firm date for ESA's meeting with Ocean's committeemen could be set without agreement from the township, last night's meeting was continued until Monday. But it seemed clear that there will be no actual session then. Tuesday or Thursday were the only dates that the majority of the commissioners indicated they would be free for the talk.

The Proposal

The proposal involved is this:

Ocean township would provide its own sewer lines, connecting them to its development houses, and feed them into a main line that would tie into the system at the borough's southern border, at rt. 35. ESA would in no way be responsible for Ocean's collections of fees, but it would be guaranteed annual payment in a lump sum.

The result here, said Mr. Saling, is that ESA would not have to be bothered with Ocean's individual bills. "I see mutual advantages in this plan." That view was shared by William Harvey, project engineer.

Mrs. Manns, Oceanport, Is Missing

OCEANPORT—Local and Long Branch police are continuing their search today for Mrs. Joseph Manns, 50, of 124 Oceanport ave., who has been missing since Friday.

A county and 13-state alarm has also gone out for the woman.

Police Chief Robert Berry said her abandoned car was found earlier this week at the foot of Brighton ave. and Ocean ave., Long Branch.

Mrs. Manns was reported missing by her husband and her daughter. Police said they have no idea where Mrs. Manns could have gone or what happened to her.

The woman is said to be five feet, nine inches in height, with brown hair and eyes.

Police said the last time she was seen, Mrs. Manns was wearing a brown, summer-weight two-piece suit, a white blouse, a yellow scarf, brown shoes, and a camel hair coat.

ROUND TABLE SET

KEYPORT — The monthly round table meeting of Scouters of the Chingarora district will be held Monday night in St. Mary's church hall. The round table is open to all Cub Scout and Boy Scout leaders in the district.

Boy to Have Heart Operation; Needs Blood

A seven-year-old Red Bank boy will undergo heart surgery in Fitkin hospital Jan. 17.

This is no ordinary operation.

The boy, Edward Wilson, Jr., 17 Leonard st., needs 15 pints of A-1 negative blood. The operation will be performed by Dr. Alfred R. Henderson, Asbury Park.

Because of the type of heart operation, the boy must receive the blood transfusion directly, not from a blood bank.

Young Edward has had his heart condition since birth, but doctors advised against surgery until he was six or seven years old.

Police Chief Frank W. Reuther, who is helping the boy's father find blood donors, said persons wishing to donate blood could go to Fitkin hospital at any time between Jan. 12 and 15 to be typed.

Persons who have A-1 negative blood and want to donate must be in the hospital before 7:45 a. m. Jan. 15.

Impose Liens In Keyport

KEYPORT—The sewer authority will serve one-week notice today against all homeowners and commercial users who have failed to pay sewer bills.

Deadline for payment will be next Thursday. After that, the authority will levy interest charges and consider action to file tax liens.

To date, approximately $23,000 billings have been remitted, a little less than half the $47,000 outstanding.

The authority also reappointed its engineer, Thomas Fox of McClave and McClave, Cliffside Park, to act as consultant with Attorney David. Resnikoff for talks to be held in Trenton. The authority and borough council will meet later this month with the state attorney general and state department of health in an attempt to reach agreement on sewer plant renovations.

County Budget Rises $605,183

FREEHOLD — An increase of nearly 10 per cent in appropriations was seen in the tentative Monmouth county budget introduced yesterday by the board of freeholders.

The 1959 budget calls for an increase of $605,183.74, bringing the total figure to $7,932,023.60. The 1958 budget appropriated $7,326,839.86.

Taxpayers will be expected to carry the entire increase, because the budget does not anticipate any increase in outside revenues above the $1,559,840 brought in last year.

More to Come

That $605,000 increase is not final—there is more to come.

The freeholders said there could be no indication of what the 1959 tax rate will be until the county tax board acts to total the assessed valuations of the municipalities. Work on this is due tomorrow.

Even then, it was pointed out, it will take completion of the final budget, including money needed for the county vocational board of education, to arrive at a final tax rate. These figures will be ready about Feb. 1.

Freeholder Director Joseph C. Irwin named Freeholders Walton Sherman and Abram D. Voorhees as representatives to work with the vocational school board. Mr. Irwin is an ex-officio representative. The board has named Lloyd F. Christianson, Long Branch, and Gilbert VanNote, Spring Lake, as its representatives for the budgetary talks.

A total of $275,000 is being appropriated from the county surplus to ease the tax bite. This is included in the $1,559,840 of outside revenue.

Increases Everywhere

Increases in budget appropriations are to be found in every department of the county government.

The general operation of the county, including the administrative offices, will require $31,173 more to operate in 1959. Last year general government cost $537,232. This year it will cost $568,405.

Expenses for roads and bridges and charitable, correctional and penal agencies represent the biggest increases in the county budget.

Expenditures for roads and bridges will amount to $1,580,941, an increase of $144,620 over the 1958 figure of $1,436,320.70. Principal cause for the increase is the jump in money slated for road maintenance—$525,000. This represents an increase of $134,815 over the 1958 appropriation of $390,185. The county will lose $340 in state aid from the motor vehicle fund, from $340,660 last year to $340,320 in 1959.

Funds for correctional and penal agencies in the county will remain pretty much in line with last year's expenditures. However, aid to the hospital and charitable institutions will go up. Total increase in appropriations will be $168,174.84, from a 1958 figure of $3,105,366.68 to a 1959 figure of $3,373,541.52.

More for Welfare

The New Jersey State Board of Child Welfare will get a $73,083 hike in its 1959 appropriation from $333,150 last year to $406,233. County funds to combat mental diseases will total $845,798.15 this year, a jump of $45,785.60 over last year.

Expenses for county parks show a flat $25,000 boost from last year's $25,000 figure.

Not including the money needed by the county vocational board of education, the county's appropriation for educational purposes shows a rise of $8,730 to a 1959 figure of $144,847.78.

Regulatory agencies, including the sheriff's office, mosquito control commission, board of elections and others, received $34,689.39 more than their 1958 figure of $497,960.90. Salaries and wages for the board of elections show a jump of $29,010, and in the sheriff's office, salaries will rise by $5,100. The mosquito control commission's expenses will run about $7,214, a jump of $5,499 over last year.

The cost of justice will also go up. Appropriations for 1959 will be $592,275, compared to $568,299 last year, a jump of $25,976.

Public hearing on the budget will be held Wednesday, Feb. 4, in the Hall of Records.

'We Won't Be Baby Sitters,' Keyport Teachers Tell Board

KEYPORT — The school administration here will continue to dismiss students from the high school for disciplinary reasons regardless of complaints from Union Beach.

The decision was announced Tuesday night and received the unanimous support of the local board. It was a result of complaints made in December by the Union Beach board of education, which stated that "excluding students from classes serves no useful purpose and in many cases abets the delinquency."

Union Beach suggested detention rather than dismissal or "exclusion" from school. One Union Beach board member noted that the school was sending pupils home even in cases where both parents work.

In a letter written by members of the Keyport high school faculty, the teachers replied this way:

"We are employed to teach children, not to be substitute parental monitors or baby sitters." The instructors declared they were unanimously agreed on the "exclusion" method of discipline.

High school principal George D. Search cited several cases where students had been removed from school for one or more days for disciplinary purposes and said that in every case the pupil "responded and caused no more trouble."

He said it was a proven fact that the "exclusion" method worked and that the detention method did not.

"If we cannot have respect for authority by all students," he added, "the whole instructional program is seriously jeopardized."

The board commended the principal and teachers for their stand and declared "we support you 100 per cent."

It was also suggested that any future complaints by the Union Beach board of education should be brought in person to the Keyport board by Union Beach representatives and should not be handled by letter.

In other business, the board deferred a decision as to whether to move the offices of its secretary from borough hall to the Ogden ct. building.

The move has been requested by Mayor Norman J. Currie so that council may make alterations to the borough hall and provide a sewer department office.

Board members said it was "very inconsiderate" for borough officials to ask the board secretary to move "at this time of the year when the secretary has such a volume of important business to take care of."

The board approved incentive awards for scholastic achievement. The plan provides that cloth emblems, in red, white and gold, will be presented to honor students and high honor students. Students who maintain an average of 90 or over for three years will receive gold keys, in addition.

2 Eatontown Teachers Up For Medals

EATONTOWN — Two teachers here are being recommended for Freedoms Foundation medals.

This was announced at Monday night's board of education meeting by William W. Ramsay, superintendent.

He said that Miss Patricia Rohrey, New Shrewsbury, and Robert Chartier, West Long Branch, two Memorial school teachers, have qualified for the honors.

These awards, the superintendent said, are given annually to teachers who have made significant contributions toward helping children understand the American democratic process.

Both Miss Rohrey and Mr. Chartier, Mr. Ramsay added, work closely with the Memorial school student council.

"It is through involvement in the council that children receive substantial opportunities to experience the workings of a democratic form of government," Mr. Ramsay said.

The names of the two teachers will be forwarded to the foundation's national headquarters, where their records will be judged with those of other teachers throughout the country.

Mr. Ramsay announced that total school enrollment at the end of last month was 1,599. This represents an increase of 13 over the enrollment of Nov. 30, he said.

Budget Tops $3 Million, But School Tax Cut Seen

MIDDLETOWN — A tentative 1959-60 school budget of 3,182,335 was adopted by the board of education last night.

The school tax figure is up $99,013 at $1,979,254. School officials said the township ratables increase in the past year will more than compensate for the rise, and that the actual school tax rate will be slightly lower than under the current budget.

A comparison of actual rates will not be possible because taxes will be assessed, starting this year, on a completely revised, true-value evaluation basis.

Application of $200,000 of surplus funds to the new budget was a major factor in controlling the tax figure. Last year, $75,000 of surplus was applied against costs. Meanwhile, it was determined that the board's surplus as of June 30 last was $633,000.

From that total, the $75,000 applied to the current budget is to be subtracted.

Holding Surplus

Use of $200,000 this year still leaves a comfortable surplus of $358,000, James W. Davidheiser, board secretary, pointed out. Most auditors recommend surplus of at least eight to 10 per cent of budget total.

The current budget total is $2,862,978. The increase, under the new budget, is $319,356.50.

Other factors which help ease the tax impact—in addition to the $125,000 increase in applied surplus—are state aid,, up $52,343 at $832,581, and anticipated tuition income of $150,000, a gain of $43,000.

Mr. Davidheiser said the increase cost again is based on heavier anticipated pupil load. A gain of 900 students—for a total of 8,100—is expected next year.

The greatest item of cost increase is teacher salaries, up $279,356. The appropriation total is $1,692,230. Plans to hire 35 additional teachers next year, at an average salary of $4,700, accounts for $164,500 of the increase. Salary increases for the present 276 teachers, as provided in the schedule currently proposed, boost the figure by $109,356.

Other Hikes

Other higher appropriations under instruction proper are those for substitute teachers, $38,800, up $12,000; textbooks, $59,100, up $7,000, and supplies, $71,505, up $14,000.

Maintenance appropriations are up a total of $40,000. There is about $35,000 worth of painting work to be done, Mr. Davidheiser said. Another $15,000 is provided for creation of six new classrooms in the intermediate school in Leonardo.

An unused cafeteria in the school will be converted into two classrooms, and a former woodshop will be turned into two more rooms. An unused home economics room will become a fifth classroom, and the nurses' room will be moved into two former offices to provide the sixth new classroom.

The conversion will keep the intermediate school on full session.

The custodial service appropriation is $21,500 higher. That will cover salaries of three new custodians ($10,500), pay hikes for 40 custodians ($7,000), and anticipated overtime and night work ($4,000).

The transportation cost is estimated at $157,171. Although that is only $6,000 more than this year's appropriation, it is some $21,000 more than actually is being spent under current contracts, Mr. Davidheiser said.

Some Items Cut

Among the appropriations reduced is that for debt service, down $31,000 at $434,864. Mr. Davidheiser explained that provision had to be made in the budget last year to cover any debt contingency. Since the debt was bonded last year, bonds and interest costs can be accurately computed.

Over-appropriation to meet any amortization cost hike last year was largely responsible for accumulation of a substantial surplus. The $4½ million school expansion program then was being financed with short-term loans.

The capital outlay provision also has been reduced $25,000 in the new budget. Appropriation of $80,000 had been made in the current budget to cover needed grounds improvements at new schools.

The proposed budget has been discussed by the board with township committee members.

A public hearing on the measure will be conducted Jan. 19 at 8 p. m. in the school administration building. The budget will go to the voters for approval at the school election Feb. 10.

Mr. Davidheiser said provision is made in the budget for a special school election some time during the next school year. It may be necessary, in the face of growing need for new facilities, to place a new building program before the voters, he said.

Harold Copeland, board president, said a plan to build additional rooms "as they are needed" is under consideration. It may be necessary, he said, "to build 15 to 20 rooms a year over a five-year period."

Fight Looms Over Keyport School Budget

Amounts to $805,651; Propose $400 Salary Hikes for Teachers

KEYPORT — A proposed 1959-60 school budget totaling $805,651, an increase of $114,238 over the current year, was tentatively approved by the board of education Tuesday night.

Newly-elected Democratic members of the governing body indicated yesterday they may fight for a defeat of the budget. The officials will meet informally this week to decide on a course of action.

A public hearing will be conducted Jan. 23 at 8 p. m. in borough hall. If the crowd should be too large, the board announced, the hearing will be held instead in the high school auditorium.

Anticipating a possible battle on the proposed budget, the board decided to send the mayor and council a special letter of invitation to attend the public hearing.

"Let's have it out right at the hearing, that's the best way," board member Louis I. Prager commented.

The budget calls for taxes totaling $351,662, an increase of $63,024 over the current year. Anticipated revenue totals $453,989.

Salaries Up

The major increase, $38,500, is due to a proposed salary raise for teachers. The average pay boost would be $400.

Increase in bonds and interest, as a result of construction of the new school, is $38,000. The board proposes to spend another $47,000 for the employment of six additional high school teachers, two administrative assistants and a part-time clerk.

State aid will total $109,000, approximately the same as for 1958-59.

The board also proposed a new salary guide, as follows: Non-degree, from $3,800 to $6,400, over a period of 13 years; BS degree, from $4,200 to $7,000, over 14 years, and MA degree, from $4,400 to $7,200, over 14 years.

The starting salaries under the present guide are: Non-degree, $3,600; BS degree, $3,800, and MA degree, $4,000, indicating increases of $200, $400 and $400 respectively, in the new guide.

The budget would increase the tax rate for school purposes $1.24 per $100 assessed valuation, from $5.77 to $7.01.

Want Best Teachers

Board Vice President Kenneth B. Wharton said the teachers' salary hikes and proposed new guide were necessary "in order that we may bring Keyport to the level of surrounding communities and be in a position to attract the best possible teachers."

The new budget would provide for an increase in salary of the school superintendent, John O. Hartzler, from $9,450 to $10,800, a boost of $1,350. The board secretary salary would be increased from $5,550 to $6,200.

Janitors' salaries total $35,300. Teachers' salaries total $508,000 as compared to $444,100 for the current year. A sum of $12,000 has been set aside for school athletics, an increase of $1,000.

The capital outlay account is $9,575. The board spent $41,282 in this account in 1957-58, and provided $15,700 for the current year.

Repairs and replacements amount to $16,950, an increase of $2,000. The total for current expense is $712,880, as compared to $631,085 this year.

Gets 10¢ Days After 100-MPH Chase

RARITAN TOWNSHIP — A Roselle stock car driver who police said led a 100-mile-an-hour chase by seven patrol cars through three municipalities was sentenced to 100 days in jail here Tuesday night.

The sentence was imposed by Magistrate Seymour Kleinberg, on charges of drunken driving and reckless driving, against the driver, Christopher R. Dilcher, 21.

Police said the chase started early Saturday in Raritan township and ended when Dilcher's car was forced off the road in Chapel Hill, Middletown township, after twice ramming a Middletown patrol car.

The youth is to be arraigned in Middletown today on a charge of resisting arrest. He then will be turned over to Elizabeth police for prosecution on an auto theft charge. Police said the car he was driving had been stolen there.

The chase started when the car went through a state police check point on rt. 36, Raritan township.

State police gave chase in three cars, and radioed an alarm ahead as the car sped toward Middletown. Middletown Patrolman Frank Gleason got the alarm just as the car sped past him, at 3:14 a. m., and took up the pursuit.

The car turned off the highway at Leonardo and went into Atlantic Highlands on Avenue D. With police still in pursuit, it twice circled the block near St. Agnes church, then sped down First ave., Atlantic Highlands, roaring through a roadblock that had been set up there.

There an Atlantic Highlands patrol car and two more Middletown cars joined the chase. A car driven by Middletown Patrolman George Brown overtook the fleeing car on Serpentine dr., Atlantic Highlands, and Sgt. Joseph McCarthy, riding with Patrolman Brown, fired one shot which knocked out its tail light, and another over the top of the car.

Arrows point to holes where police bullets entered car driven by Christopher R. Dilcher, Roselle, during 100-mile-an-hour chase through three municipalities Saturday. Middletown police finally stopped the car on Sleepy Hollow rd. after he had twice rammed their police car. One bullet fired during chase through Atlantic Highlands entered rear tire of car, but self-sealing tire held up until after the car was stopped in Middletown.

As the police car attempted to come alongside, the other driver rammed it in the left side, driving it off the road into the woods.

The Atlantic Highlands car then caught up, and Patrolman Nelson Morrissey fired three shots at the tires of the pursued vehicle.

It later developed that one bullet entered a tire, but that it was of the slow-leakage type and held up until after the driver was stopped, some time later.

The chase continued down Mountain Hill rd., Middletown, to Sleepy Hollow rd., where Patrolman Brown and Sgt. McCarthy overtook the car again.

The driver again deliberately rammed the police car, this time on the right side, but Patrolman Brown was able to force it off the road.

Dilcher then got out and ran, police said, but was felled by Patrolman Brown with a flying tackle. Patrolman Brown and Sgt. McCarthy subdued the youth, but when state police came on the scene moments later he again tried to escape, police said.

Damage to the Middletown patrol car was estimated at $500.

124 Not Immunized To Face Dismissal

MATAWAN — Russell A. G. Stetler, school superintendent, announced this week that 124 students will be dismissed from school Feb. 1 unless parents present proof that the pupils have been inoculated and vaccinated by Jan. 31.

Mr. Stetler told The Register that the board of education has instructed him to strictly enforce the board immunization policy. He said his office already has mailed notices to all parents involved.

At the same time, authorities at Perth Amboy General hospital reported that six-year-old Arthur Slover was released from the hospital Tuesday, completely cured of diphtheria which he had contracted early last month.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Slover, Prospect ave., Cliffwood, was sent to the home of an aunt, Dr. Alfred J. Casagrande said that three of the nine Slover children remain under quarantine in their home.

Eight 'Positive'

The physician told reporters that eight of the children registered positive diphtheria cultures in tests made before Christmas but that by last week symptoms had been cleared up in all but three of the children.

He explained that although the cultures were postive, none of the eight contracted the disease but at the same time were "carriers" of it, thus requiring quarantine. The physician said the three remaining children should be "completely well and free of positive cultures" within a week or 10 days. They are being treated in their home with antibiotics and antitoxin.

In reporting on the school situation, Mr. Stetler said there are 50 children, most of them in kindergarten, who have not had the "DPT" immunization (diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus), and 74 who have not been immunized against polio.

Under the new board policy which was adopted unanimously last March 17, all students are required to have smallpox vaccination and immunization against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus and polio. The policy had not been enforced up to now.

Students may be excluded from compliance with the requirements only on religious or medical grounds.

Delay For Series

In cases where a series of three shots is required, students will be permitted to continue in school after Feb. 1 if the first injection of the series has been administered.

Dr. Casagrande said the fact that the diphtheria did not spread, even though several of the Slover children apparently were in school for a short time during the period of contagion was evidence of the effectiveness of widespread immunization.

The physician said he was in "complete agreement" with the board's strict stand regarding immunication and supported its policy in the matter.

In other school activity, Mr. Stetler reported that due to increased enrollments, 10 new teaching positions would be created for the fall term. He said he is in the process of interviewing applicants for the post. Four of the instructors will be in the high school, four in Cliffwood school and one in Matawan school. One new art teacher will be hired.

Dog Missing, Needs Help To Stay Well

OCEANPORT — A local doctor and his wife have put out an appeal to area residents to be on the lookout for their boxer dog, "Blitz."

The dog has been missing since Friday night.

Dr. and Mrs. William J. Champion, 60 Shore rd., Gooseneck Point, said the dog has a form of epilepsy—which causes his head to shake.

The animal needs two doses of phenobarbital a day to keep him well.

Dr. Champion said the eight-year-old male dog is fawn-colored and with a white blaze down the front of his forehead and face.

He said the dog is "absolutely harmless."

Dr. Champion explained "Blitz" has been getting the two half-grain phenobarbital tablets daily since suffering a head injury in an auto accident several years ago.

Leonardo Auxiliary Plans Feb. 2 Auction

LEONARDO — Plans for a Swedish auction to be held Monday, Feb. 2, in the American Legion hall by the Ladies' auxiliary were made at a meeting Monday. Each member has been asked to bring a gift. A Valentine hat party is also planned for the auction.

The members will help in the March of Dimes drive and will be on duty in the Keansburg National bank, Middletown branch, Friday nights during January. A Christmas party given by the county auxiliaries in the Brisbane Treatment Center was attended by Mrs. Walter Wood and Mrs. Alden Lambert.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 19.

The county meeting will be held tomorrow night in the Keyport Legion hall.

Drive-In, Walk-Up Branch Opens Monday

KEYPORT—The new drive-in and walk-up window of the local branch office of The Monmouth County National bank will open for business Monday morning, it was announced today by F. Palmer Armstrong, chairman of the board.

Mr. Armstrong stated that the hours would be from 8:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. Monday through Thursday, and from 8:30 a. m. to 8 p. m. Fridays. "This will furnish another convenient service to the residents of the Keyport-Bayshore area," he added.

'New Look' In Borough Hall

KEYPORT — Borough hall is getting a "new look" this week, engineered by the new Democrats who took control of the governing body eight days ago.

Mayor Norman J. Currie told The Register yesterday that alterations to the building will cost about $500.

The work was started, unannounced, two days ago. Mr. Currie explained that "for such a small expenditure, bids are not necessary." Local workmen will do the job.

The alterations, Mr. Currie said, will be as follows:

The board of education rooms will be converted into offices for the board of health and the sewer and water departments. The room now occupied by the board of health will be used by the mayor and council as a conference room and by the magistrate, for consultations.

The ladies' rest room will be made smaller to provide space for a new four-foot corridor running from the rear of the general meeting room. Doors will be placed at both ends of the corridor.

One problem has cropped up. The board of education indicated Tuesday night that it may refuse to move its offices (occupied by the board secretary) "until the end of the school year."

And officials of the governing body have indicated that if the board does refuse, "proper action" will be taken to force the move.

Union Beach School Tax Up $4,924

UNION BEACH—The board of education introduced a proposed budget of $451,752 for the 1959-60 school year Tuesday night.

Of this amount, $214,387.60 is to be raised by local taxes, an increase of $4,924.60 over the 1958-59 budget. A public hearing will be scheduled later this month, after which the budget will be placed on the ballot at the school elections Feb. 10.

The voters will be asked to approve $202,939 for current expenses, and $7,000 for repairs and replacements. Debt service, in the amount of $4,448.60, has been previously authorized.

Major increases in the proposed budget include $16,000 in teachers' salaries and $8,000 in tuition fees. However, a decrease of $2,000 for transportation and an increase in the estimated amount of state aid results in slightly less than a $5,000 increase in the amount to be raised by local taxation.

The board took action to purchase a house at the rear of the Cottage Park school for $7,250 as part of the development plans for the Morningside ave. site. The property will be purchased with a portion of the $10,000 being held in a contingency fund for development of a recreation area.

Immediate development plans include the installation of a regulation ball field, an outdoor basketball court, tennis court, handball court, kindergarten play area and two service areas with fencing.

WIND DAMAGE

NAVESINK — Heavy winds during the last three days brought scattered reports of storm damage in this area.

A garage door at the home of Mrs. Harry Sternschus, Swan ave., was smashed and torn from its hinges, and a rear window of the garage was blown out.

Set Record School Budget in Holmdel

HOLMDEL — The board of education last night, introduced a 1959-1960 school budget calling for a $238,341.45 school tax levy, a $75,643 increase over last year, when taxpayers were assessed $162,698.

The proposed budget is $297,810, an increase of $82,985 over last year's $214,825.

The bulk of the increase is in the current expense category, where the board plans to appropriate $236,350. as compared to $177,775 last year.

Board officials said that most of the $58,575 jump will go for teachers' salaries, increased transportation costs and higher tuition rates.

Board member, Harry D. Pitcher, pointed out that the board will need a minimum of three new teachers next year. He also noted that teachers would receive a $200 raise in salaries.

An $8,000 increase in tuition rates was also noted by the board. The township sends students to high schools in Keyport and Red Bank.

Transportation

Transportation costs will jump $10,000 over last year as the board plans to replace one of its buses. The board also set aside additional funds in case additional transportation was required because of changes in class schedules in Keyport and Red Bank.

The record high budget lists $3,900 for repairs and replacements, $36,560 for debt service and $21,000 for capital outlay.

Public hearing of the budget is set for Jan. 28.

Mr. Pitcher said that in his opinion, "the board has done a constructive job on the budget" which John P. Wilding, board president, said that the financial proposal "was not over-generous."

The board heard a report from John B. Ackerson stating that the custodian staff had trouble in heating the new school this week.

Heating Trouble

Mr. Ackerson said that the heating contractor had checked the heating system and had made several adjustments which have partially solved the problem.

He also noted that caulking was needed around the windows in the classrooms, which he felt would also help alleviate the situation.

In discussing the problem, he said that here were "apparently several bugs in the heating system" which needed to be ironed out.

Mr. Ackerson also informed the board that the drainage ditch on the new school property needed cleaning out. The board authorized him to have the work done when the weather permits, at a cost not to exceed $200.

Permission was given to the Parent-Teacher association to use the all purpose room of the new school on the fourth Saturday night of each month, for a canteen party for high school students.

Mrs. Paul Hancik, PTA president, said the canteen would be held from 7:30 until 10:30 p. m.

She also stated that the affairs would be chaperoned.

Hot Lunch

Mrs. Hancik asked the board if they would consider a plan whereby the PTA would serve a hot lunch to the school children, one day a week.

She said that she had observed a similar program in the West Keansburg school which was having satisfactory results.

The board raised several questions regarding the handling of food, cost of the meal, and the possibility of disrupting the class schedule.

Mrs. Hancik said that the PTA would charge 15 cents for the meal, which would be prepared by members of the organization.

The board asked Mrs. Hancik to check into the matter further and submit a complete plan, before it made a decision.

The board announced that it will pay officials at the school board elections $10, instead of the $5 fee paid last year.

Keansburg Orders Inspection of Hotels

KEANSBURG—A thorough fire inspection program covering hotels and boarding houses here, and to be followed by appropriate action, was ordered by borough council Tuesday night.

Councilman Louis Collichio, noting recent tragic fires and a serious Beachway blaze here New Year's day, said local frame hotels include "many potential firetraps." He said the situation was at its worst in summer when there are many vacationing visitors here and the situation poses "possibility of a great loss of life."

"Some of these buildings are tinder," the councilman said, "and one fire could wipe out 50 or 60 lives."

Councilman Martin C. Lohsen, who is assistant fire chief, said the department makes annual inspections of all the rooming houses and hotel. He said many unsatisfactory conditions—beds and other furniture blocking exits, debris under stairways, and other things—have been found.

Point Out Violations

The department, however, can only point them out to the proprietors and demand correction, he said. State agencies control the hotels, he pointed out. He suggested that since adoption of the new substandard housing code last year, the borough may have more control.

The new code includes provision for condemnation of hazardous housing facilities.

Richard A. Jessen, borough clerk, said state agencies annually check the hotels and rooming houses against a full list of state requirements.

The borough-wide study will be conducted by the fire department, health board and building inspector.

On the basis of inspections made thus far, C. Bernard Blum, borough manager, said, substandard housing inspectors have notified 35 owners of violations of the new code.

Robert Scales, 194 Seabreeze way, told council wind-blown sand is covering lawns, streets and sidewalks in the Laurel ave. area. Mr. Blum said snow fence was erected to control the sand drift, but that recent winds have piled up the drift and sent it over the fence.

As soon as the winds diminish enough to permit the work, a second fence will be erected, he said.

To Move Sand

Mr. Blum also said the borough will remove the sand from the streets this year. Mr. Scales reported that residents had shoveled up the sand and carted it back to the beach last spring.

Council decided to meet in conference session next Tuesday to discuss adoption of the standard building code or a modification of it. The officials also will meet Tuesday morning to discuss adoption of the civil service system with state civil service representatives.

Advertisement for bids for gasoline, fuel oil and chlorine for 1959 was authorized. Bids will be opened Jan. 20 at 2 p. m.

Notice was received from the state Alcoholic Beverage Control division of confirmation of transfer of the liquor license of the Copa Lounge from 212 Carr ave. to "the north side of Beachway between Laurel ave. and Oakwood ave." The license now is inactive and the transfer has been described as a "paper" transaction made to protect the license status.

Councilman Lohsen extended sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Otto Barth, publishers of the Keansburg News, on their financial loss in the fire that destroyed their building last Thursday. He congratulated them on the success of their effort to set up emergency publication facilities in time for their next edition. The paper will be published today—or tomorrow at the latest—Mrs. Barth said.

Hit, Run Driver Is Identified

SEA BRIGHT — Police this morning identified the driver of a car which they said was involved in a hit and run accident last Thursday, as Edward Folker, 21, Rumson rd., Rumson.

Patrolman Gerald Cranmer, who investigated, said Mr. Folker's car crashed into the side of a small boat which is stored in the Club Pink parking lot, Ocean ave.

He then drove off, police said.

A hit and run alert was sent out on the county radio by local police.

Patrolman Cranmer said no charges have been filed to date against Mr. Folker.

Magistrate Schaefer Fines 5 Violators

WAYSIDE — Five motor vehicle violators were fined last night in Magistrate Marvin E. Schaefer's court.

Assessed were Harry M. Coles, Asbury Park, $6, no driver's license in possession; Kenneth L. Perkins, 218 First ave., Atlantic Highlands, $6, no registration in possession; Joseph Bogate, Trenton, $10, following too close; Charles Roberts, Long Branch, $3, delinquent inspection, and William Oper, Newark, $20, contempt of court and failing to keep right.

Eatontown Schools Get 'Clean Bill'

EATONTOWN—Borough schools have received a "clean bill of health" from the fire department.

Superintendent William W. Ramsay said at Monday night's board of education meeting that on the basis of a Dec. 20 inspection, the schools were found to be in good condition.

Mr. Ramsay said in answer to his request the fire department officers made an inspection of the three schools and found a number of violations.

The second inspection showed the schools to be in good shape, the superintendent said.

He said the board is including in its 1959-60 budget sufficient funds to replace the incinerator at the Staelman school.

Mr. Ramsay said, too, he has asked the fire department to make periodic inspections at all schools.

In other business, two teachers were hired at the meeting.

They are Mrs. Dorothy Halpern, who will replace Mrs. Katherine Boehme as a third grade teacher, and Mrs. Dorothy Adams, who will replace Mrs. Francine Malkin as a first grade teacher.

Mrs. Halpern will receive $4,000 a year and Mrs. Adams will receive $4,400. Both salaries will be pro-rated for this year.

Also hired was Mrs. Jean Caswell to replace Mrs. Jane Jaffe as secretary at the Margaret L. Vetter school. Her salary will be $2,500.

Belford Blaze Guts 3 Buildings

Wind-fanned flames rip through buildings of the Luther Walling estate, Main st. and Railroad ave., Belford, yesterday morning. High winds and temperatures in the low teens made firemen's work difficult. Equipment was stored in the buildings. It was the fourth fire at the site in less than a year. Former hardware store building was destroyed and two adjoining storage buildings badly damaged. Loss was estimated at $5,000.

Death Takes a Holiday As Drivers Slow Down

MIDDLETOWN — Everybody seems to be taking it easier on rt. 35 now.

The key result:

They're alive.

The best the state police could do between Monday night of last week and midnight last night was hand out 142 summonses, to drivers between Keyport and Cooper's bridge.

That total took in 43 trapped by radar, in a pre-New Year's eve haul in Middletown.

205 At Christmas

Things were quite different from the Christmas roundup on rt. 35. Then the "death valley" strip was more active. Working hand-in-hand troopers from the Keyport and Shrewsbury barracks delivered into the fingers of errant motorists 205 tickets. Of those, 53 were boxed in by radar at Middletown.

Trooper Walter King of the Shrewsbury barracks kept a tally for The Register.

"My greatest pride," he said, "is that there have been no deaths in Monmouth county this year, no accidents for our barracks to rush to on rt. 35 since last week's check."

The trooper said he went over the results with ambulance drivers of the Fairview first aid squad. "This," he said one of them told him, "is an unheard of thing. We've had no highway work at all this past week. What a New Year's!"

Do not take this to mean that the state police are letting up on their safety campaign on rt. 35.

142 At New Years

In the 10 days since last Monday, they issued 103 tickets in Middletown—60 by troopers on patrol and the 43 that radar was responsible for. In that time, 18 were handed out in Raritan township, 12 in Holmdel and 9 in Keyport.

Trooper King said he was "very sure, indeed," that motorists making their way through Monmouth "have become very aware of the penalties they face for bad driving. They know that a speeding charge could mean the revocation of their licenses. They are not as frisky as they were, by a long shot."

He said he expects there always will be trouble with heedless drivers. "But," he added, "they better watch out. We, the police, are on the road to stay. Our cars can catch them."

HOWARD MARSH 'FAIR'

RUMSON — Howard Marsh, 68, of 62 East River rd. is in fair condition in Monmouth Medical Center this morning. He was admitted there Dec. 30 as a medical patient. Mr. Marsh is a former musical comedy star, having performed in such original productions as "Showboat" and "The Student Prince."

It pays to advertise in The Register. —Advertisement.

School District Split Mulled In Matawan

MATAWAN — Mayor Spafford W. Schanck has asked that a referendum be held to determine whether borough residents want to divide the Matawan township-Matawan borough school district into two separate districts.

The recomendation was made Thursday at the reorganization meeting of borough council.

Sharing the spotlight at the session was the appointment of outgoing Republican Councilman Cyrus K. Brown to fill the one-year unexpired term of Councilman Robert Colot, who recently resigned.

Regarding the school question, Mr. Schanck told some 60 spectators that it would be preferable for the borough to conduct a referendum than to jump into a costly court battle over splitting the district.

He noted that in a recent decision, the courts had ruled against dividing a school district.

It has been noted by some borough officials that there is growing sentiment in the borough against "carrying Matawan township" as far as comparative school costs are concerned.

Not Taking Sides

Mayor Schanck told The Register Friday that he is impartial regarding the issue.

He did note, however, that under present state law, school costs are divided on a tax ratable basis. "to pay on a per-pupil basis would be more equitable," he noted, "but we can not do it that way."

Mr. Schanck said that there is space in the borough for about 400 more homes but that "thousands of new homes can and will be constructed in the township."

He said that if there is sufficient public sentiment on the question, the referendum would be placed on the ballot next November.

"If residents favor splitting the district," he said, "the next step would be to appeal to the state department of education. Depending on what happened there, it might or might not become a matter for court litigation."

Mr. Schanck said the technical and administrative problems involved in splitting a district would be "tremendous."

"As of this point," he said, "I have no idea how decisions would be made as to which municipality would get which school buildings but I can tell you it would be a tremendously complicated problem."

One-Year Term

Seated as council members at the reorganization meeting were the governing body's lone Democrat, Mrs. Genevieve Donnell, for her second term, and Republican Floyd Van Brackle, for his first term.

Mr. Brown, who did not run for re-election in November, agreed to complete the one-year unexpired term of Councilman Robert Colot, who resigned two weeks ago.

Appointments were made as follows:

John C. Givens, of the law firm of Parsons, Labrecque, Conzona and Combs, Red Bank, borough attorney; R. Milton Cole, New Brunswick, auditor; Karl Heuser, engineer and superintendent of public works; Dr. Aram A. Captanian, borough physician; Koert C. Wyckoff, treasurer; Arthur C. Hall, water and sewer rent collector; Robert V. McGowan, court clerk; J. Franklin Dominick, adviser to the borough clerk; Theodore A. Phelan, Civil Defense director; Grayson Van Cleaf, planning board, four-year term, and Walter Pike and Duncan Black, board of health, both three-year terms.

Also, Thomas Welstead, recreation commission, five-year term; James H. Martin, magistrate, three year term; Joseph Baier, local assistance board, two-year term, and Mrs. Rena Dernberger, one-year term, and Peter A. Read, Dr. J. Wallace McCue and George Doubler, zoning board of adjustment, three-year terms.

Committee Chairmen

Chairmen of council committees are: Rollin Richards, finance; Ralph R. Dennis, fire; Everett Carlson, police; Mr. Van Brackle, water and sewer; Mr. Brown, streets and lights, and Mrs. Donnell, parks, lakes and sanitation.

An ex-chief's badge was presented to John Thaler, outgoing fire chief.

Badges were awarded to the new fire chiefs: Vernon Ellison, chief Lawrence Bachman, first assistant chief; Joseph Vaccarella, second assistant chief, and Douglas Ward, third assistant chief.

The mayor said that a borough tax revaluation program should be initiated in 1959 and recommended that a study be made to find means of extending the sewer system to all sections of the borough.

Meetings will be held the second and fourth Tuesday night of each month. Borough depositories are the Matawan bank and the Farmers and Merchants National bank.

Mr. Dennis was elected council president.

Holmdel Tax Rate Increase Seen in 1959

Fire Vols Announce Plans to Construct $52,000 Fire House

HOLMDEL — Mayor James H. Ackerson predicted last week that taxes will be increased here this year, even in the face of a $50,000 end-of-the-year cash balance.

The township's cash balance at the end of 1957 was $126,000.

Township Clerk Daniel S. Ely said that the 1958 gross balance was nearly $150,000, but that about $100,000 had to be deducted, $45,000 due the board of education (a bookkeeping transaction) and $47,000 in budget deficit.

The $47,000 was computed as follows: $28,000 emergency appropriation for road repair and snow removal; $10,000 emergency appropriation for the township's defense in the zoning court case; $6,000 deficit in municipal expenditures, and $3,000 "under payment" of county taxes (due to incorrect estimate by the county at the beginning of 1958).

"We can not tell just how much taxes will go up," Mr. Ackerson said, "until our new budget is finished, but it now appears a certainty that there will be an increase, because of the many expenditures in 1958 which were not anticipated."

Year-End Session

The session, held the final day of the year, Wedneday, was for payment of end-of-the-year bills and to receive a 1958 township financial report.

Officials reported that $313,309 was collected in taxes during 1958, a record for the municipality.

Mr. Ackerson said the tax report had been turned over to the planning board to aid the township master planners, Morrow Associates, Inc., in drawing up a program of capital improvements.

In other business, the committee deferred action on a request by Holmdel fire company for funds to start construction of a proposed new $52,000 fire house.

The company was represented by Wesley Buck, outgoing chief; Walker Sutphin, outgoing president, and William Stevenson, new chief.

Members of the governing body indicated agreement with the building proposal and said it would encourage Bell Telephone Laboratories in its expansion plans.

The building, to be located on Main st. across from the Baptist church on the former Holmes property, would include four truck bays and a public assembly room.

Ambulance Bay

Mr. Sutphin said the fourth bay will be reserved for an ambulance. "The time will come," he noted, "when we will have to form a first aid squad. We want to be prepared."

Plans have been drawn so that the building may be constructed in stages.

Mr. Ely said the township now has $20,000 in its capital improvement fund and that some of this money might be used for the fire house.

At present, the township has a fire department budget of $3,500 annually, of which $2,000 goes to Holmdel fire company, $1,000 to Hazlet fire company (in Raritan) and $500 to North Centerville fire company (also in Raritan).

The committee made no decision as to how much will be donated to local firemen for building construction. The matter will be discussed when the committee takes up the 1959 budget.

An expenditure of $800 was approved for installation of drain pipe on Middle rd. near Willis ave.

A 15-year contract was signed with the West Keansburg Water company for rental of nine fire hydrants at $50 per hydrant per year.

Middletown Fire Chiefs Sworn In

School Board Contests Loom In 8 of Bayshore's 9 Districts

Wide-open contests in Middletown township and Keyport school board elections Feb. 10 were promised with eight candidates filed for three board posts in each of those municipalities.

Candidates' petitions filed by last Friday's deadline also indicated contests in six other Bayshore area school districts.

Atlantic Highlands, Highlands, Raritan township and Union Beach have six candidates each, vying for three full-time board positions. In Atlantic Highlands, two more candidates will contest the issue of an additional one-year term. A two-year term drew two more aspirants in the Union Beach race.

Economic Unit Membership Hiked to 9; Re-elect Blaisdell

MIDDLETOWN—Frank F. Blaisdell was re-elected mayor as the township committee reorganized for 1959 Thursday.

J. Crawford Compton, Republican committeeman, re-elected in November was sworn in to begin his 11th year on the committee.

The committee appointed two new members to the economic development commission, created last year, bringing the board to maximum membership of nine.

Richard W. Seuffert, business administrator, was named director of Civil Defense and Disaster Control, replacing Deputy Police Chief Melvin Leek. August Dreyer was named assistant director, and Police Sgt. Elwood Seeley was appointed co-ordinator of auxiliary police for Civil Defense.

Mayor Blaisdell listed the township's achievements during 1958 and promised further gains for 1959. He said this year's improvements will be made with minimum expenditures as the committee will keep its budget for 1959 as low as possible.

The mayor listed among 1959 accomplishments the appointment of an economic development commission, naming of a business administrator, completion of 100 per cent revaluation and drafting of a tax map, adoption of a night meeting schedule, successful defense of the rt. 35 zoning amendment, and first municipal beach operation at Ideal Beach.

He also pointed to improved services, including added police protection, improved lighting, correction of a number of road and drainage problems.

Principal occurrences on the negative side, Mayor Blaisdell said, were tragic accidents and storms that caused extensive damage. The Chapel Hill Nike blast, which took 10 lives, was a critical period in which people of the township reacted admirably, the mayor said.

Traffic accidents caused widespread suffering and sorrow, the mayor said. Late winter storms brought snow removal problems and heavy damage to township roads, he added.

A temporary budget of $283,000, to serve until the regular budget is adopted, was approved. The figure is within the statutory limit of 25 per cent of last year's budget, or $319,472.

Committeeman Compton was named to the Compton creek harbor commission to replace the late William Dennis. His appointment was asked in a recent letter by fishermen and other boat owners using the Compton creek facilities.

New members of the economic development commission are Richard M. Hurd, Navesink River rd., Locust, and Harry Van Iderstine, Jr., Northover pl., Riverside Heights. Mr. Hurd is in the mortgage and banking business, and Mr. Van Iderstine is in insurance and banking.

The following were reappointed: Lawrence A. Carton, Jr., attorney; J. Francis Rauch, treasurer; Richard W. Seuffert, business administrator; Craig Finnegan, engineer, the appointment being made for three years instead of one under new statute provisions; David W. Jackson, road superintendent; Earl K. Eastmond, tax searcher; Howard W. Roberts, assessment searcher; Dr. Marc Krohn, township physician; Marshall T. McDowell, planning board, six years; David Simpson, building inspector; Newton A. Mallett, assistant building inspector; Victor E. Grossinger, Compton creek harbor commission; Elwood Searles, zoning board of adjustment; James A. McCarthy, auditor.

Regular meetings again were set for the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month at 8 p. m.

Committee assignments within the township committee remained the same as last year.

Other appointments were made as follows:

Rev. Charles P. Johnson, of All Saints Episcopal church, Navesink, and Mr. Seuffert, to the library board for terms of five years and one year, respectively; Committeeman Walter J. Bills and Mrs. Mary E. Maxson, local assistance board for one and two years, respectively; David W. Jackson, recreation members of the mosquito commission for 1959, John A. Murray, chairman, Paul St. Walton, Henry Karl, Robert H. Yard, Committeeman Elmer Hesse, and Mr. Seuffert.

Airman Walling is a graduate of Middletown township high school, class of 1958.

He was selected for enlistment by scores achieved on the airman qualifying examination — an aptitude test which is administered to each Air Force applicant prior to enlistment. He was selected for the mechanical aptitude index and, while at Lackland, will be interviewed by a career guidance counselor.

Airman Walling was enlisted by Sgt. Joseph T. Soboul of the Red Bank Air Force recruiting office.

30 Appointed Special Police

MIDDLETOWN — The township committee appointed 30 special police at its 1959 organization meeting last Thursday.

They are:

Danny Dattavio, Herbert S. Youngs, William Vitelli, Ned E. Hammond, Daniel W. Hepburn, Donald J. Young and Richard Lockwood, all of East Keansburg; James E. Hubbs, George C. Yarnall, William Halliday, Chester Henry, Joseph H. Hennelly and Frank A. Bauer, Belford Charles Oberlin, William Ast and Frank E. Kilpatrick, Leonardo; John F. Kelly, Paula Mahoney and Lawrence F. Mahoney, Lincroft.

Also, Albert Cook, George Franklin and Thomas Vivian, Port Monmouth; J. Herbert Schenck and William A. Fix, Riverside Heights; T. Russell Clark, River Plaza; August Dreyer, Fairview; George Himmel, Jr., Navesink; Arnold Wood, Locust, and Stephen O'Conner, New Monmouth.

GARDEN CLUB TO MEET

UNION BEACH—Dried arrangements and a sale of surplus plants and bulbs will feature a meeting of the Community Root and Branch Garden club in the Harris Gardens fire house, next Tuesday, at 8 p. m.

Turn Down Night Meetings; Ackerson Re-elected Mayor

HOLMDEL—Republicans Ernest E. Peseux and Edwin Liebenow were sworn in last Thursday for their first full terms on the township committee. Mr. Peseux will serve for one year, while Mr. Liebenow will serve three years.

James H. Ackerson was re-elected mayor by the committee at the reorganization meeting.

Mr. Liebenow was named secretary to the board of health. Mr. Ackerson will head the finance committee; Mr. Peseux, the road committee, and Mr. Liebenow, the buildings and grounds and library committees.

Mr. Peseux also was appointed to a one-year term on the planning board.

Dr. Harry M. Poppick was reappointed township physician; J. Frank Weigand, township attorney, and Otis R. Seaman, township engineer.

All 1958 township employees were reappointed for 1959.

Night Meeting

The committee rejected a suggestion by Mr. Liebenow to hold the regular monthly meeting at night. In the past the committee has held its regular meeting on the second Thursday of the month in the afternoon, and held an adjourned meeting at night on the fourth Thursday of the month.

Mr. Liebenow said he made the suggestion because, "there was a growing interest in the town and the people want to come out to the meetings."

Mr. Ackerson said he didn't think there was much interest in night meetings. "I have to take a half day off to conduct the township business," he said, "and the people can too."

"The people should have the opportunity to attend without losing a half-day's work," Mr. Liebenow said.

Mr. Peseux said he was in favor of leaving the meeting dates the same as they were.

"We have an adjourned meeting at night at which time the people have a chance to bring matters before the committee," he pointed out.

March of Dimes Expands, Area Chairmen Named

ASBURY PARK — The expanded drive of the March of Dimes is on its way. Roland J. Hines, county campaign chairman, has announced the appointment of additional community chairmen: Mrs. Harry A. Sagotsky, Freehold, and Mrs. Laurence E. Manning, Highlands.

Mr. Hines said chairmen and volunteer committees "face a new challenge this year. Not only must polio aid be continued, but support must be provided for a greatly expanded health program launched by the National Foundation."

The campaign chairman described the new program as "a flexible one that can move in any direction its research findings indicate." The organization's experience has shown this to be the surest way to encourage scientific "break-throughs," he said.

Initially, however, the attack will be focused on polio, virus diseases, arthritis and birth defects. Patient aid will be offered to victims of arthritis and congenital malformations of the central nervous system through the age of 18. Polio aid will be carried on as before for all patients needing help.

"Arthritis and birth defects are major health problems in our country," Mr. Hines said. "At least 11,000,000 are affected by arthritis and rheumatism, the nation's number one crippler, while 250,000 infants are born each year with some form of defect. We believe we can find ways to help many of them if funds are supplied by the American people.

"In extending our attack to new diseases, we are faced with new demands on our time and money. I know everyone will want to get behind the 1959 March of Dimes this January as it marches on toward greater victories."

Alien Address Reports Urged

E. P. Bouchard, New Jersey district director of the United States Immigration and Naturalization service, today urged all aliens in New Jersey to fill out their annual address report cards at the nearest post office.

The immigration official pointed out that the law requires all noncitizens, except persons in diplomatic status, foreign representatives to certain international organizations such as the United Nations, and aliens here temporarily as agricultural contract laborers, to report their addresses to the government each January.

The parent or legal guardian of an alien child under 14 years of age must fill out the address report form for such a child in order to comply with the law, he noted.

He declared: "We have tried to make it as convenient as possible for our non-citizens to fulfil their responsibility, and in view of serious penalties for willful violation, all persons required to file an address report are urged to do so before the Jan. 31 deadline."

Mr. Bouchard advised: "It is easy for an alien to meet this requirement. He just goes to the nearest post office or to the Immigration service office in Newark, fills out the address report form and returns it to the clerk."

Any non-citizen who is ill may send a friend or relative to obtain the card for him and return it to the clerk after it has been completed by the alien. It is estimated that 160,000 such reports will be submitted before Jan. 31.

Games Unit Lists Veteran Group Rules

NEWARK — The Legalized Games of Chance Control commission announced this week that in certain instances the proceeds of games of chance could be devoted by veterans' organizations to the repair, maintenance and operation of the post home.

If the post home is used primarily for patriotic and public-spirited purposes, and only incidentally for social purposes, the proceeds of games of chance will be allowed to be devoted to the building—providing the veterans' organization owns the building and not a holding company, the commission said.

The commission said it has sent notice to all veterans' organizations that if they desire to avail themselves of this use of the proceeds of games of chance they should secure permission from the commission.

The commission said it will determine whether the use desired is reasonable and whether the post home is used primarily for the purposes outlined.

A Change in Command

The announcement at Monday night's meeting of the Red Bank mayor and council that Police Chief Frank W. Reuther will retire, effective Feb. 1, brings to mind that a loyal policeman soon will complete more than 28 years of service to the borough and his fellow residents.

In wishing him many years of enjoyment in his new role, we believe the chief has earned them. He has worn his uniform well. Beginning as a patrolman, Mr. Reuther earned the respect of those who came in contact with him. Of his many accomplishments, the excellent liaison he originated and maintained between his department and the public is, perhaps, one of the most noteworthy.

Heading an ever-growing department with its ever-increasing complexities can tax a man's heart, soul and stamina. More a good will ambassador than a disciplinarian, Chief Reuther has been put through rugged times in the past few years. His retirement comes as no surprise, his physician having recommended it more than two years ago.

In naming Deputy Chief George H. Clayton to succeed Chief Reuther, the mayor and council are to be complimented. In selecting the department's senior member for the top post, the "town fathers" took recognition not only of his close to 31 years' service, but of the regard in which he is held throughout the state and metropolitan area.

Mr. Clayton's father was chief of the Red Bank department for 28 years until his death in 1938. Those who remember the late Mr. Clayton knew him as probably the outstanding chief in Red Bank's history. The chief-designate has a tough assignment in living up to his father's reputation, but we're certain he is up to the job. We know, too, that the pride with which he will enter upon the top post is shared by his mother, wife, children and scores of friends, both in and out of police work.

Though a reticent man by nature, Chief-elect Clayton is known in law enforcement circles—from local to FBI—as an "all cop" officer. We're sure that members of the department will find him a considerate boss, but that principally he'll be just that: Boss. Confident that he has all the qualifications to do a top rate, honest job, we extend him congratulations and every good wish for success.

In naming Police Capt. Leroy McKnight to the second top slot—deputy chief—our borough officials also are to be commended. In Mr. McKnight, the department has an intelligent officer who—in a little more than 21 years—has advanced through each rank. His duties in recent years have brought him in close contact with the public, a background which should help him in his new office.

Capt. McKnight can be counted on to co-operate with Chief Clayton. With proper teamwork, we're sure the two of them will inspire the other men in maintaining the traditions that have, through the years, kept the department in high regard throughout the state.

To the two men promoted: Our every good wish. To Chief Reuther: Many happy and healthy years with the people you have served so well.

967 Emergency Calls

The Red Bank first aid and rescue squad answered 967 emergency calls in Red Bank and Shrewsbury last year, an all-time high for the group. The figure in 1957 was 811 calls.

With each succeeding year for the past 28 years the squad has increased its service to all persons who need help in a hurry. When the squad was formed in 1930, it answered 80 calls the first year.

No one looks forward to the time when they will have to call the first aid squad in an emergency—but if and when the time comes, it is reassuring to know that men and equipment are available to answer the call. Actually, that is the key—men and machines available when they are needed.

From modest beginnings when 13 charter members of the squad contributed $10 each to buy an old ambulance and 13 sets of coveralls, Red Bank's first aid squad has grown to meet the needs of the area it serves. Several years ago the squad bought a rescue boat and expanded its activities to include emergency work on the river. Included in the equipment now owned by the squad are two ambulances, a life-line gun, two resuscitators and two air-paks.

The one thing the squad does not have is enough room for its equipment. Squad members are doing their best to overcome this handicap.

Now they must call on local residents to help them in their time of emergency. The squad needs $75,000—the only way it can get that money is through contributions. A new headquarters for the squad is being built at Spring st. and Manor dr. A cornerstone laying ceremony will be held Saturday at 4 p. m. The building will cost more than $80,000 before it is finished. There is no doubt that the new headquarters is needed. At the present time all the squad equipment is housed in a 12x50 foot space in Relief fire house on Drummond pl.

The new building will have three bays for the ambulances and other vehicles; a kitchen, a call room and a meeting and training room.

Rev. Dr. Charles S. Webster, pastor of the Red Bank Presbyterian church, had the right idea when he spoke at a citizens' information dinner sponsored by the squad last month.

His advice to all residents of the Red Bank area: "Give generously" to the squad's $75,000 fund drive. We wholeheartedly second his motion. They are always ready to serve us; now is our opportunity to show our appreciation for those services.

Rocky Road Ahead

The results of Tuesday's $1,675,000 Monmouth regional high school election came as no real surprise.

A total of 1,137 voters was for the board of education's building proposal while 587 were against it.

Looking at the total district picture, the referendum outcome represents a smashing 2 to 1 victory for the board.

But a deeper look shows that New Shrewsbury and Shrewsbury township residents were for the plan by about a 7 to 1 vote while Eatontown turned it down 2 to 1.

The big controversy before Tuesday's vote was the New Shrewsbury site which the board selected for the school. Seven members were for it while two—both from Eatontown—were against it.

What might have been a quiet referendum suddenly became one that was bitterly contested.

It is significant that New Shrewsbury turned out with such a force to approve the referendum. We interpret that this way: Taxes are high in that borough—but residents are so deply interested in education that they fought hard to get the high school.

In Eatontown, too, taxes are high. But we must seriously ask whether the site issue was used by many residents there for no other reason than to defeat the proposal—and prevent another tax increase.

Many Eatontown voters have shown in the past they are against anything dealing with money to be spent for education.

It is the right thing to say we hope all differences between the board members—and the municipalities involved—will be resolved and the important goal now will be to build a fine high school with a fine curriculum for district students. And we hope this happens.

Quite frankly, however, we see a rocky road ahead whenever the question of budget and funds comes up again.

Good News

It now seems that worries can stop over the possibility of commercial shell fishing in the Navesink and Shrewsbury rivers. Assemblyman Alfred N. Beadleston told The Register word has reached him on good authority that no leases for oyster operations will be granted.

Mr. Beadleston said, too, that following high-level talks, he and Assemblyman Clifton T. Barkalow intend to introduce an amendment to a state law which bars oyster cultivation in certain parts of the Delaware and Barnegat bays and elsewhere, from Cape May into Ocean county.

The Navesink and Shrewsbury are recreational streams. The Navesink only now is being given supplemental dredging to extend its usefulness to pleasure boaters. All through the shore area are signs that water sports are on the great increase. As Freeholder Director Joseph C. Irwin has said repeatedly, the aim should be to restore this area to its once-proud position as the "water sports center of the East."

MS DRIVE EXPLAINED

Central New Jersey Chapter
National Multiple Sclerosis Society
Jan. 2.

To the Editor:

Recently we have received several inquiries about a used clothing drive being conducted for Multiple Sclerosis. Apparently some people are under the impression that this drive is sponsored by the Central New Jersey chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis society.

As a member of the board of directors of the chapter and chairman for Monmouth county, one of the five counties served by the chapter, I would appreciate the opportunity of clarifying the situation for your readers. The organization raising money through collecting used clothing is not affiliated with our chapter, which has its headquarters in Trenton, nor with the national MS society, which is located in New York city. No chapter of the national MS society raises money through clothing drives such as this.

Our chapter has recently been conducting an MS Hope Chest campaign through the mail, house-to-house canvass and canisters in Allentown (chairman, Mrs. Allen Woodward, 160 Main st); Atlantic Highlands (chairman, Mrs. William Hammond, 61½ East Highland ave.); in Freehold (chairman, Mrs. August Daesener, 99 West Main st.): Keyport (chairman, Miss Jane Walker, 21 Elizabeth st.), and Long Branch (chairman, Mrs. Alexander Vineburg, 387 Brighton ave.)

All of our chairmen and workers are volunteers. None receive any remuneration for their services. Because Monmouth county has recently become affiliated with the chapter, our drive was late this year. In the future, it is planned to hold it at the time of the national Multiple Sclerosis Hope Chest campaign in June.

Forty per cent of the money raised in the MS Hope Chest campaign in Monmouth county is allocated for the research program conducted by the national MS society. The remaining 60 per cent remains in the chapter for service to MS patients in the county. These include medical, nursing and homemaker service, physical therapy, transportation, providing of wheel chairs, braces and other appliances.

Should your readers desire any further information, may I suggest that they write or call Mrs. Margaret Heffinger, executive secretary, Central New Jersey chapter, National Multiple Sclerosis society, 373 West State st., Trenton 8.

ASKS CASE TO DESIST

The following letter has been received by The Register for publication:

Point Pleasant Beach, N. J.
Jan. 2, 1959

Senator Clifford P. Case,
Senate Office Bldg.
Washington, D. C.

Dear Senator:

I write this letter as a New Jersey Republican who finds that the present highly publicized campaign, in which you are engaged, to challenge the existing Republican leadership in the Senate is untimely and is having a divisive effect on the party at this time.

The increased Democratic preponderance of strength in the Senate that threatens to inundate the country with a wave of excessive spending on non-defense measures calls for a unified rather than a divided opposition. The measure of success for Republicans in 1960 may well be the vigor of the opposition that we can muster to the expected spending drive. Republicans should be concentrating on countering this move and safeguarding the security of the country and not on an internal political struggle that could have disastrous repercussions.

We can delay no longer in formulating a policy of domestic issues that is clearly distinguishable from that of the Democrats and which will stimulate the interest of the voting people.

For these reasons I ask that you desist from your present campaign against the Republican leadership and instead face the profound challenges to our national survival and to our individual freedom which are distressing thoughtful men today.

Sincerely,
Robert Morris

Know Your Government

Don't Look Now, But—

As the holiday season runs its course and the New Year opens, local officials and taxpayers are legally presumed ready to take part in the final phases of the struggle to match the municipality's income against proposed spending and produce the official local budget for 1959.

The budget has long since been in preparation by fiscal officials at the town hall and, in some cases, with the advisory aid of local taxpayers. Jan. 1 is officially the opening of the municipal budget season, however. Between this date and Feb. 9 the governing body must approve the proposed budget prior to publication and public hearing. Final adoption must take place before March 21.

Accounting intricacies and legalistic complexities of the municipal budget heretofore have befogged taxpayer comprehension of the local spending blueprint. Now, however, many officials and taxpayers are making use of a handy "key" which unlocks the municipal budget fiscal maze. This is a "Citizens Guide to Understanding the Municipal Budget" prepared by the New Jersey Taxpayers association and used by hundreds of local officials, newsmen, civic minded, citizens and 125 affiliated local taxpayers' associations.

The 51-page booklet—a "do-it-yourself" in the municipal budget field—guides new officials as well as many old hands, along with the taxpayer, step-by-step through the hundreds of official budget document classifications, from various sources of municipal revenues to "reserve for uncollected taxes."

Providing a handy link of understanding between the taxpayer and expenditure of the tax dollar, the booklet recently won the national Governmental Research association award for "most effective presentation of research."

Editorial Views Of Other Papers

CHARLES F. KETTERING

Charles F. Kettering was one of the benefactors of our time, practical yet an idealist, indeed something of a philosopher but a cheerful one. He called himself a mechanic, a "pliers and screwdriver man." He was always "fixing" things. But his contribution of inventive genius, his passionate interest in research — automotive, medical and in the field of solar energy—put the world in his debt for a better, more comfortable life.

His was, in its superficial aspects, a typical Midwestern success story. He was the son of an Ohio farmer. He was handicapped by poor eyesight. He taught school as a young man, dug holes for telephone poles. But he soon found his place in life, first in improving cash registers, then automobiles. He helped emancipate women—too—by developing the first successful electric self-starter for automobiles, which replaced the back-breaking hand crank. He went on to development or improvement of Diesel engines, knock-free gasoline, electricity for farms, quick-drying car finishes, refrigeration. Long the captain of research for General Motors, he liked to think of research not as something "high-hat," as he put it, but "a state of mind—a friendly, welcoming attitude toward change."

"I object to people running down the future," he once said. "I am going to live all the rest of my life there, and I would like it to be a nice place, polished, bright, glistening and glorious." He was for the "double-profit system, a reasonable profit for the manufacturer and much greater profit for the customer." After "retiring" in 1947, he persisted in taking the "trouble" that was the price of progress, broadened his research, contributed generously to education and medicine. He was an unusual man, not least in the extent of his usefulness in the age of the automobile for everybody.

FACE THE MUSIC

Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee defended country music with a counterblast at Billy Rose, who had labeled it "obscene junk."

Clement said that Rose once wrote a song called "Does the Spearmint Lose Its Flavor on the Bedpost Overnight?"

That revelation ought to impeach Rose's standing as an authority on lyrics of delicate sensitivity.

The truth is that silly songs have been with us for a long time. Maybe today's rock and roll is the worst yet but it didn't come utterly without warning.

Before the "Witch Doctor" there was "Binga Banga Bongo. I Don't Want to Leave the Congo."

Only a few years ago there was "Mairzy Doats," and still further back there was "The Hut Sut Song" and "Three Little Fishes."

In fact, these belong to the youth of those who are parents of today's youth. You who scorn "Ting-tang-walla-walla-bing-bang"—don't you remember crooning "Down in the bottom of the itty bitty pool, swam three little fiddles and a momma fiddy too"?

Composer Leo McCarey has been surprised to find a song he wrote as a satire on rock 'n' roll becoming a hit with the rock n' roll set.

Even this has happened before—songs which had satirical meaning in their original setting becoming popular with the very group satirized.

Examples include "Wunderbar" from "Kiss Me Kate" and "Heart" from "Damn Yankees," both of which were intended to satirize sentimentality but delighted the "cornball" set . . .

Yes, anything goes—anything that doesn't make sense.—Florida Times-Union.

— New Jersey — Your State and Mine

By J. Joseph Gribbins

TRENTON — New Jersey's 183d legislature will convene at the state house next Tuesday at noon to start a new year of lawmaking with Republicans again in control of the senate and Democrats operating the general assembly.

State Sen. Wesley L. Lance, Hunterdon, will be elevated to the senate presidency, and Sen. George B. Harper, Sussex, will serve as majority floor leader. Sen. Joseph W. Cowgill, Camden Democrat, will be the minority leader this year.

In the general assembly, William Kurtz, South Amboy Democrat, will be elected to be speaker of the house, while Assemblyman Maurice V. Brady, Hudson, will take over the floor leadership for the Democrats. Assemblyman Thomas C. Swick, Phillipsburg Democrat, will serve as assistant majority leader. Assemblyman Alfred N. Beadleston, Monmouth, will again serve as house minority leader this year.

Gov. Robert B. Meyner will personally deliver his annual message to the lawmakers at the initial session. He is expected to reiterate a plea to Republican lawmakers to abandon partisan politics this year. The state senate will comprise 13 Republicans, seven Democrats and one vacancy caused by the recent death of Senator W. Howard Sharp, Cumberland. The house will comprise 42 Democrats and 18 Republicans.

The opening day will be devoted generally to traditional ceremonies and the legislative halls will be crowded with relatives and friends of the members. Desks will be covered with flowers sent by well-wishers back home and many of the legislators will be attired formally, including a sprinkling of top hats.

The lawmakers will return Jan. 19 to begin the regular business session of the year. In accordance with custom a three-week recess is expected to be declared in late February and early March after the governor submits his annual budget message. This will provide time for the important appropriations committee to get under way and also permit lawmakers to enjoy winter vacations in the Southlands.

Budget

The state of New Jersey is having money troubles just like families everywhere.

Gov. Robert B. Meyner will submit his annual budget message to the legislature Feb. 2. Earlier this week he conferred with State Budget Director Abram Vermeulan on the demands for spending vs. the tax revenues of the state. Another meeting is scheduled for next week, and then portions of the huge budget will begin to be printed.

Both the governor and state budget director are mentally wrestling with the problem of finding an extra $25,000,000 to balance the state budget. The money bill is expected to exceed $400,000,000 this year because of mandatory increases in state aid programs required by law, scheduled new construction, mandatory hikes for employee pensions and social security contributions, as well as normal pay increments which must be paid.

Spending requests received from state officials for next year total more than $525,000,000 and needless to say this sum will be considerably trimmed. The requests were made to aid agriculture, promote better health facilities, finance office building needs, provide more money for education, help the mentally retarded and educate citizens generally.

The governor's budget is sent to the legislature, which is the real keeper of the purse under the Constitution. The legislature must authorize the spending of every cent in state government operations.

Traffic Arrests

Traffic arrests in New Jersey totaled 176,551 in the first half of 1958, a nine per cent increase over the 161,947 in the comparable period of 1957, and a new record high.

The pace has kept up during the second half of the year.

With mandatory revocation of licenses for speeding over ten miles per hour in any speed zone becoming effective this year, another record of arrests is expected during 1959. Driver licenses under the new system in vogue Jan. 1 will be taken by magistrates and mailed to the State Division of Motor Vehicles at Trenton.

General Morgan

Brig. Gen. Daniel Morgan, six-foot rifleman of the Revolutionary war, is about to be honored by the people of Hunterdon county, an area from which he fled as a youth.

Plans are under way to name a section of the new super-highway through Hunterdon county, with the help of the State Highway department, as "The General Daniel Morgan Highway." Morgan was born in New Hampton in that county in 1736 and resided there during his childhood. After he left home at an early age he made his way to the Shenandoah valley in Virginia.

A-born soldier, he accompanied Braddock's ill-fated expedition and later served as a lieutenant in Pontiac's war. In 1774 he accompanied Lord Dunmore's expedition to Western Pennsylvania.

At the outbreak of the Revolution, Congress commissioned him June 22, 1775, as captain of a company of fast and hard hitting riflemen in Virginia. He accompanied Gen. Arnold in the seige of Quebec and when the latter was wounded, Morgan assumed command. During the years of the Revolutionary war he was feared by the British in battles in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and the South. He received the personal thanks of Congress and a gold medal for his brilliant victory at Cowpens.

After the war, in 1794, in command of the Virginia militia, he assisted in suppressing the Whiskey insurrection in Western Pennsylvania. At the time of his death in 1802, he owned 250,000 acres of land on the Monongahela and Ohio rivers.

Relief

Relief payments to needy families in the various municipalities are adding up to such a statewide problem that a group of mayors are going to do something about it.

Mayors of Trenton, Newark and other large cities plan to make some recommendations to the 1959 legislature meeting at the state house next week in an effort to reduce the burden on the city taxpayers. Particularly, residence requirements are to be tightened and payments reduced.

Reports received by the State Department of Institutions and Agencies from 378 municipalities show that $951,250 was paid out to 33,150 persons in general assistance, or relief. This represented an increase of 463 cases, 1,433 persons and $16,452 in commitments over the previous month.

Jersey Jigsaw

Because 42 per cent of federal excise taxes on motor vehicles are not being used for roads, the New Jersey Petroleum Industries committee is strongly opposed to any increase in the federal gasoline tax . . . A testimonial dinner in honor of Frederick J. Gassert, Jr., outgoing Director of Motor Vehicles, will be held next Monday in the Hotel Stacy Trent in Trenton . . . New Jersey's production of blueberries for 1958 is estimated at 1,404,000 trays of 12 pints each, compared with 1,484,000 trays a year ago . . . The State Division of Motor Vehicles announces a record number of license revocations under the point system . . . The State Civil Service commission announced 14 state employees were paid $790 for money-saving suggestions at the beginning of the new year . . . Registration of persons who recruit farm workers for service in New Jersey is expected to be required this year by the State Department of Labor and Industry . . . An estimated 172,000 persons were out of work in New Jersey in mid-October and 171,000 were idle in mid-November . . . The 1958 total of traffic deaths in New Jersey will reach approximately 740 as compared with 824 in 1957 . . . Senate Republican Majority Leader Wesley L. Lance, Hunterdon, declares the state senate has adopted legislation on each of the eight major points of its 1958 legislative program . . . Salvatore A. Bontempo, State Conservation Commissioner, reports many land owners of ten acres or more are purchasing Christmas tree seedlings from the state . . . The state of New Jersey took care of 142,384 persons in hospitals and correctional institutions during November. . . . Licensed nursing homes threaten to refuse to take additional welfare patients unless the rate paid to them for maintenance and care is increased . . . Two-week courses in dairy farming and animal husbandry will be given at Rutgers university College of Agriculture from next Monday to Jan. 23.

Capitol Capers

Port chop enthusiasts should know that the fall pig crop in New Jersey is estimated at 81,000 or one per cent below the 82,000 for the fall crops of 1957 and 1956 . . . With 60 members of the general assembly seeking re-election next November, as well as 11 Senators, lawmakers are expected to use care in handling legislation this year.

HEALTH HINTS

(This column is contributed as a public service by The Medical Society of New Jersey and the County Medical society. Questions should be addressed to The Medical Society of New Jersey, P. O. Box 904, Trenton 5, N. J.)

"Family Doctor Week"

By proclamation of the governor, this is "Family Doctor Week" in New Jersey. The slogan of the week might well be, "A family doctor as a family friend."

The advantages of such a situation are evident. Members of the family are assured of the prompt and sympathetic services of a physician who knows not only their personal health history but their entire family background—factors of great importance in insuring accurate diagnosis and treatment. Such a relationship imparts a wholesome sense of confidence and security that makes the patient tranquil and tractable under the doctor's care.

The physician who can say "I know mine and mine know me" is likewise advantaged, not only because of his deeper, fuller knowledge of the patient and his tendencies and reactions, but because of his certainty of complete and trusting co-operation. There is no need for you and the members of your family to be "medical drifters"—strangers going from doctor to doctor. Have a doctor of your own, a family doctor, who will assume responsibility for your care. That, after all, is the purpose to which he has dedicated himself.

Conservationists to Convene For 'Open Space' Discussion

TRENTON — Many New Jersey conservationists are expected to attend the annual New Jersey state planning conference here Feb. 5 to discuss the value and importance of open space in the community plan.

Joint sponsors of the event are the New Jersey Federation of Official Planning Boards and the State Department of Conservation and Economc Development. "The subject is of such importance to the future of New Jersey," State Conservation Commissioner Salvatore A. Bontempo remarked, "that a record crowd is expected at the conference, and all sessions are open to the public."

Governor Robert B. Meyner will deliver the luncheon address. Speakers at the morning session will discuss open space planning and techniques in densely populated urban areas, rapidly growing suburban areas, and in rural areas which are just beginning to feel the pressure of growth. During the afternoon, round table discussions are scheduled on various phases of planning, especially open space planningv.

Official statistics compled by the State Department of Conservation and Economic Development show New Jersey's density in 1955 to be 720 persons per square mile. This is nearly 13 times greater than the United States' average of 51 persons per square mile. Trends indicate that population will increase at approximately 1.5 per cent annually and density will reach 940 persons per square mile by 1975.

Because open space in New Jersey is of such importance to sportsmen and the continuance of fish and game programs, representatives of the division of fish and game will join other officials of the Department of Conservation and Economic Development at the conference. The department also invite members of sportsmen's groups, conservationists, and others interested in the outdoors.

New Year May Have Big Impact on State

TRENTON, N. J., (AP)—The new year is going to have a great impact on New Jersey government for many years to come.

A "century of inequity" in local taxation may come to an end with a package of legislative bills changing the assessment setup.

It is possible, although not probable, that the state's tax methods might be changed with a sales or personal income tax.

The Legislative election in November will determine whether Democratic Gov. Robert B. Meyner will continue to work with a divided Legislature, or whether either Republicans or Democrats can capture both houses.

Republicans now control the senate, Democrats the assembly.

Party Maneuvering

And maneuvering within each party may determine who will be New Jersey's governor from 1962 to 1966.

This is a heavy burden to cast upon the shoulders of the infant new year.

It must be said that part of this load comes about through a postponement of decisions this past year. In some respects, old man 1958 got off easy.

Jan. 1 was the deadline which the state Supreme court set back in March 1957 for Middletown township to assess all property at 100 per cent.

Middletown will do this — but lawyers say that by inference all municipalities in the state must do likewise.

At the last count, 222 of the state's 567 municipalities had completed or started revaluation studies.

Most are in no position to assess all classes of property alike at 100 per cent.

Some lawmakers had high hopes that the legislature would act to bail out the local municipalities.

But at the Jan. 1 deadline, the only thing which had been done is a bi-partisan committee's tentative agreement on a 50 per cent statewide ratio of assessed value to market value.

Bill Introduction

Ahead early this year are introduction of bills and public hearings on them.

Sen. Wayne Dumont, Jr. (R-Warren), head of the bi-partisan committee, figures May 10 is the final deadline for the legislature.

That's the date county tax boards certify the 1959 assessments. But other so-called tax deadlines came and went without action in 1958.

Sen. Dumont also may introduce a "study" bill for a personal income or sales tax—designed mainly to take the pressure off municipalities with skyrocketing school costs.

Traditionally, lawmakers have disdained touching such a hot potato in an election year—but so many groups and municipalities are demanding tax relief that it just might be politically expedient for them to act before November.

That November election is expected to be hotly contested.

The Democrats, riding a wave of victories, are going all out to capture the Senate.

The present Republican margin is 13-8, so they need three seats to get an 11-10 control.

With both the senate and assembly, Gov. Meyner would have the strongest Democratic hold on this state since 1913-14 when Woodrow Wilson and several acting governors, all Democrats, held sway with both houses under their control.

In Good Position

With senate control, Gov. Meyner would be able to get many of his people in as prosecutors and end long Republican reigns on several semiautonomous agencies like the South Jersey Port commission and Delaware River Port authority.

The Republicans, of course, are well aware that a loss of the senate, without recapturing the assembly where the Democrats have a 42-18 margin, would put their party in the same weak position the Democrats were in 1950 after Frank Hague went into decline.

So the Republicans will be making every effort which their almost bankrupt treasury will allow.

A number of Democratic hopefuls could improve their position with feats this year.

Former Attorney Gen. Grover C. Richman, Edgewater Park, is rated a possibility for the governorship, especially if he takes on Sen. Albert McCay (R-Burlington) and wins.

Attractive Candidate

Rep. Frank Thompson, Trenton, also an attractive candidate, could make hay by pushing through his education bill in Congress.

Mayor John J. Grogan, Hoboken, is expected to increase his potential during the year.

On the Republican side, Sen. Dumont has aroused some ire with his sales tax stand but could offset that by maneuvering assessment bills through the legislature on top of 1958's success with the water program.

Senate President-elect Wesley L. Lance (R-Hunterdon) would like to be governor and isn't likely to allow any possible rivals to become too powerful.

So his choice of an appropriations committee chairman will be a tough one—and an important one.

By usual order, the 1959 appropriations committee chairman will be majority leader in 1960 and senate president in 1961.

If Gov. Meyner should win national office then the senate president would become acting governor for almost a year.

Keyport Dems Take Control, Blast GOP

KEYPORT — Four Democrats were sworn into office Friday night, placing control of the governing body in the hands of the Democrats for the first time in half a century.

Outgoing Democratic Mayor Charles E. Applegate called for a "house-cleaning," declaring that "the results of the past election indicate that the people of Keyport do not want the policies of the previous administration continued."

The new officeholders are Norman J. Currie, mayor, and John J. Dane, Robert J. Strang and Alton D. Walling, councilmen. Democratic Councilman E. Dalton Graham was re-elected council president.

They defeated Republicans Henri J. Hansen, who ran for mayor but will now continue his term as a councilman, John A. Pote, Frederick V. Rapp and Angelo LoPresto.

Council confirmed Mayor Currie's appointment of his brother, Edward W. Currie, as borough attorney; Nathan Lipman, Perth Amboy, as auditor, and Frank A. Foss, as engineer.

Solid Vote for Currie

Approval of the attorney was unanimous, but Mr. Hansen and GOP Councilman A. Maitland Walling voted against the appointment of Mr. Lipman and Mr. Foss.

In a blistering departure speech, Mr. Applegate charged that the policies of the previous Republican-controlled administration had cost taxpayers "untold thousands of dollars."

He said, "The money which has been wasted and lost through shortsightedness, jealousy and partisan politics during the past few years, both on the special assessment parking ordinance, which was overwhelmingly defeated at the polls, the untold thousands of dollars wasted on an unwanted sewer authority, the loss of ratables in the construction of a supermarket outside the borough, and the loss of revenue due to shortsightedness in the development of our waterfront program, has caused the taxpayers to dig down in their pockets unnecessarily."

Mr. Applegate declared that the borough had lost a $100,000 state grant for waterfront improvement and estimated that the loss on the sewer authority was "well over $50,000." He indicated that these and other factors will force a tax increase.

Mr. Applegate said the latest figures on sewer plant repair costs indicate that the taxpayer will save some $400,000 as compared to the sewer authority proposals. He referred to a recent engineering proposal to renovate the plant at a cost of $250,000.

Other Appointments

Other appointments made at the reorganization meeting were as follows:

Dr. Harry Popplck and Joseph Burke, board of health; Mrs. Robert Preston, library trustee; Carlton H. Poling, Mr. Applegate and Joseph W. Kennedy, planning board; Philip Serpico, zoning board of adjustment, and Mrs. Andrew J. Hulsart, court clerk.

Appointments for the board of fire chiefs were Rev. Norman R. Riley, chaplain; Robert W. Hulse, secretary, and William J. Phillips, treasurer. Council declined to approve the appointment of Leonard Lufburrow as inspector.

In his first annual address, Mayor Currie asked for the establishment of a borough sewer department; a study of the borough's water facilities; further waterfront improvement, with aid from the state and federal governments, and improvement of parking facilities in the business district. The new mayor also assailed the outgoing administration.

Flowers were presented to the officials by the local Democratic organization. Borough Clerk Adelaide B. Crammer received a bouquet from the Citizens' association.

Mayor Currie asked that partisan politics be laid aside and that Republicans and Democrats work together in 1959 "for the interests of all citizens."

The Democrats, however, made year by refusing to appoint a single Republican to four of the major council committees.

Appointments were: Mr. Dane, Mr. Graham and Alton Walling, finance; Mr. Strang, Alton Walling and Mr. Dane, public safety (police); Mr. Graham, Mr. Dane and Mr. Strang, fire, and Alton Walling, Mr. Strang and Mr. Graham, all Democrats, public works. The first-named in each committee is chairman.

Republican Maitland Walling was named chairman of the public service committee, with Mr. Dano and Mr. Graham as members, and Republican Mr. Hansen was appointed chairman of the public welfare committee, with Mr. Strang and Alton Walling as members.

In a similar fashion, Republicans in 1958 refused to appoint any Democrat to the four key committees—finance, police, fire and public works.

Council will continue to meet the second and fourth Mondays of each month at 8 p. m. in borough hall.

Appointments of the magistrate, members of the local assistance board and special police were deferred to the Monday night meeting.

Heating Failure In New Addition Closes Classes

UNION BEACH — A failure in the heating system in the six-room addition to the Memorial school, which was opened for classes in September, caused dismissal of seven classes Tuesday.

Paul J. Evans, system principal, announced to the board of education Tuesday night that the classes would be required to make up the lost time at the end of the school term in June.

Lauren V. Pohlman of Pohlman and Henry, architects for the new school, assured the board that all necessary adjustments to the heating system were being made.

At the suggestion of the school nurse, the patch test will be inaugurated in the school system. Kindergarten, fourth and seventh grades will be tested each year.

A pre-school round-up of children planning to enter kindergarten in September will be held about the middle of February, it was announced.

The board took under advisement a recommendation that Salk vaccine inoculations be made mandatory for children entering borough schools.

A request received by the board at the December meeting to admit children without inoculation or immunization was denied in the interest of protection of all children in the system.

Herbert Kline, on behalf of the Union Beach fire company, offered the board a 24-record juke box. The gift was accepted and a letter of appreciation will be sent to the fire company.

Edward Bayles, chairman of the student relations committee, again asked about a meeting between the administrators of Keyport high school, board members and parents, regarding marks of Union Beach students at the high school.

Edward J. Scullion, board secretary, said high school authorities had advised him that a new guidance director had been engaged at Keyport and that a new system was being inaugurated in an effort to improve students marks. Mr. Bayles agreed that latest reports indicated an improvement, but felt that the meeting should still be considered.

Mr. Evans reported on the school savings program which started the first week in October. Student savings to date amounted to $918.25 in the Cottage Park school; $539.75 in the Florence Avenue school, and $1,055.75 in the Memorial school, for a total of $2,513.75.

Mr. Evans also announced that report cards will be distributed tomorrow.

THE SHRINE

26 WHITE STREET RED BANK

will be closed until Tuesday morning,

January 13, due to death in family.

Reuther Retires; Clayton Named

Police Chief Frank W. Reuther, a 28-year veteran on the Red Bank police force, will step down Feb. 1.

Taking his place will be Deputy Police Chief George H. Clayton, son of the late Chief Harry H. Clayton. Also moving up will be Capt. Leroy McKnight, who will become deputy chief.

The changes were made at Monday night's council meeting when Chief Reuther, in a letter dated Dec. 23, said he was retiring from the department.

Chief Reuther's resignation leaves two vacancies on the force. The other came following the dismissal of Patrolman Guido Trimboli from the force.

Councilman Everett C. Baynton, police committee chairman, said no thought has yet been given to filling the post of captain being vacated by Capt. McKnight, or to holding an examination to name another patrolman.

'Credit to Borough'

In accepting the chief's resignation, Mayor George A. Gray said, "I think I speak for all the people of the borough when I say you have always been a credit to the borough." Council will present the chief with a plaque at a later date.

In his letter to the council, Chief Reuther said:

"I am retiring from the Red Bank police department effective Feb. 1, 1959. I have been a member of the department since May 19, 1930, and have enjoyed every minute of it.

"There have been many trying times through my years as a law enforcement officer, and I want to thank the governing body for their encouragement and support that enabled me to perform my many duties."

Chief Reuther, who appeared at the meeting, said "the decision of retirement is a hard one to make." He told council he had been trying to "make this decision . . . for the past three years."

The chief asked council to give his successor the same support he had received.

Succeeded Van Note

Chief Reuther was named to his post Jan. 2, 1951, succeeding Harry T. Van Note, Sr. He joined the force May 19, 1930, was appointed sergeant May 15, 1943, and became deputy chief April 7, 1947.

Deputy Chief Clayton came to the department March 1, 1928. He was named to his present post Nov. 15, 1951. He became a sergeant Jan. 28, 1935, was named lieutenant Feb. 16, 1937 and captain of detectives April 7, 1947.

Named a probationary patrolman Aug. 9, 1937, Capt. McKnight was promoted to his present rank April 20, 1953. He was promoted to sergeant April 7, 1947 and became a lieutenant Oct. 15, 1951.

No Changes Seen

No changes are expected in the present departmental setup. Deputy Chief Clayton, when he takes over Chief Reuther's post, will continue to head the detective department. Capt. McKnight will remain in charge of the uniform division, a post he has held the past two years.

Chief Reuther was best known in Red Bank and the county for setting up the school patrols. Starting in 1937 in Red Bank, the chief went on to organize patrols in Fair Haven, Rumson, Shrewsbury, Sea Bright, Oceanport, Monmouth Beach and Little Silver.

Two youngsters who served on the early school patrols are now members of the local department, Sgt. William F. Patterson, Jr., and Patrolman Herbert Swanson.

'My Hobby'

Chief Reuther says that since the start of the school patrol program, no child has been injured while crossing the street where a school patrol was on duty. The chief never regarded the school patrols as real work. "It was my hobby," he said.

Although he intends to remain active in law enforcement activities, the chief says he will turn down any employment in that field.

"I'm going to try to sell a little real estate," he said. He has had offers to take over as chief of police in a Florida municipality, but rejected the offer.

The chief was eligible to retire from the department in 1955, but stayed on at the request of public officials.

Born in New York

Chief Reuther was born Feb. 10, 1899, in New York city, son of the late George L. and Margaret Reuther. His brother, George D. Reuther, is a detective on Long Island. Chief Reuther has two daughters, Mrs. Hubert D. Farrow, Jr., and Miss Margaret Reuther. He and his wife, Anna, live at 18 Buena pl.

Chief Reuther was president of the Monmouth County Police Chiefs association last year and is a member of the state and international association of chiefs of police. He is a charter member of the Red Bank first aid and rescue squad and a past president and former captain of Relief Engine company. He also is a past master of Red Bank Lodge Free and Accepted Masons.

FBI Academy

Chief Reuther was one of three Red Bank policemen to graduate from the National Police academy conducted in Washington by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Deputy Chief Clayton and former Capt. Charles M. Ericksen also graduated from the academy.

Chief Reuther never had any disciplinary action taken against him during his stay on the force, and was late reporting to duty only twice.

The chief will be honored by the Patrolmen's Benevolent association at a testimonial dinner Wednesday, Jan. 28, at 8:30 p. m. in the Sea Girt inn.

Capt. McKnight was born in Red Bank, son of Thomas McKnight, 31 Elm pl., and the late Mrs. Anna McKnight.

He is a graduate of Red Bank high school and attended Rider college. He has graduated from two FBI zone training schools and the drunkometer school sponsored by the New Jersey Department of Law and Public Safety.

Heads Police Reserves

Locally he is a former head of the Police Athletic league; now head of the 100-man force of Police Reserves; represents the police department on the juvenile conference committee; is supervisor of the metered parking lots, and an exempt member of Independent Engine company. He also is the only honorary life member of the Greater Red Bank Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Prior to joining the police department, Capt. McKnight worked in the finance field.

Capt. McKnight lives with his wife, Wanda, at 22 Highland ave. They have two children.

Deputy Chief Clayton will complete his 31st year on the force in March. His father, Chief Harry H. Clayton, was chief here 28 years. Carrying on the tradition is the deputy chief's son, George H. Clayton, Jr., who is a Red Bank patrolman. Chief Clayton's daughter, Marie, is married to Patrolman Walter Pomphrey of Rumson.

Chief Clayton was among those considered for the job of chief of police 1950, when Chief Van Note resigned.

Chief Clayton is married to the former Florence Sagurton of Rumson. He and his wife live at 198 River rd. His mother, Mrs. Harry H. Clayton, lives at 95 East Front st.

The deputy attended Red Bank high school and was graduated from Leonardo high school in 1924. He was employed by the Proal boat works until he joined the police department.

PBA to Fete Chief Reuther

Red Bank Police Chief Frank W. Reuther, who is retiring from the force after 28 years, will be honored by the local Patrolmen's Benevolent Association at a dinner Wednesday, Jan. 28, at 8 p. m. in Sea Girt inn.

Theodore D. Parsons, former New Jersey attorney general, will be the guest speaker. Red Bank Mayor George A. Gray will be toastmaster.

Detective Sgt. Irving L. Krakowitch is general chairman of the dinner. Assisting him are Patrolman Lester Mackey, Oceanport, and Red Bank Patrolmen Franklin White and Vernon Patterson.

Regional Bond Issue Gets Voters' Approval

EATONTOWN — The Monmouth regional district is going to get its $1,675,000 high school.

District voters—by a 2 to 1 margin approved a bond issue to finance construction at a referendum Tuesday.

A total of 1,137 voters—including five absentee balloters — favored the board of education's proposal.

The vote against the plan was 587.

New Shrewsbury overwhelmingly came out for the referendum. The vote there was 846 for it and 106 in opposition.

Shrewsbury township voted 89 for and 29 against.

Eatontown voted about 2 to 1 in opposition, 197 for it and 452 against.

The referendum result brings to a close what was a hotly contested campaign.

At issue was the New Shrewsbury site, off Tinton ave., on which the board will have the school built.

Favor Site

Seven board members — including two from Eatontown — favored that site.

But two others, Merrill D. Beam and Harold D. Lindemann, both from Eatontown — were against it.

This put the board and many district residents in two opposing camps and a controversy on the site erupted.

The board hopes to release drawings to construction bidders in March and award contracts in April.

Construction is expected to start in May and be completed in time to accept students in September, 1960.

The building will contain 36 classrooms and a gymnasium.

Superintendent Frank L. Weinheimer said yesterday he was happy with the "total picture of the referendum results."

He did not comment about the Eatontown vote, but said the 2 to 1 total margin was a "good sign."

Mr. Beam said he considered the Eatontown showing a "moral victory for us," meaning also Mr. Lindemann.

"The people of Eatontown proved to me that we were right," he said.

'Told the Truth'

"We feel we told the truth and that's the important thing," the board member added.

He criticized the Eatontown mayor and council for not taking a stand on the regional issue.

"If our mayor and council had had the guts to publicly express the wishes of their constituents in favor of Beam and Lindemann, the way the New Shrewsbury mayor and council did in favor of the referendum, a greater percentage of no votes would have been shown at the polls."

Mr. Beam's future plans?

"I will assist in any way possible to build the best darned high school on the best darned swamp in Monmouth county," he said.

Mr. Beam, in opposing the site, said it did not have proper drainage.

Mr. Lindemann had nothing to say on the referendum yesterday.

"It would be out of order for me to comment now," he stated.

Last Minute Interest

Generating last minute interest in the referendum was a flyer put out by the Eatontown Taxpayers association against the building program.

In New Shrewsbury, an 80-car motorcade rolled through the borough Sunday urging voters to cast ballots for the proposal.

Fred Forrest, 74 Knollwood dr., who organized the motorcade, said the response was beyond his expectations. He said it was organized to emphasize "need for a heavy turnout of New Shrewsbury voters."

Among paraders was Mayor Karl K. Baron.

Here is a vote breakdown:

New Shrewsbury, district one, Tinton Falls school, 562 for, 44 against; district two, Wayside fire house, 76 for, 16 against; district three, Northside fire house, 208 for, 46 against; district four, recreation hall, Shrewsbury township, 89 for, 29 against.

Eatontown, district one, Memorial school, 68 for, 174 against; district two, Steelman school, 129 for, 278 against.

Trash Tieups Are Urged

Red Bank's health officer, Vincent P. Horan, and Fire Chief A. T. MacDonald are asking for co-operation of the public in placing trash, especially papers, out for collection.

They ask that it be tied securely, so that the wind will not blow bundles apart. The unsightly condition of loose paper being blown about can to a great extent be prevented by doing a better tie-up job and by covering trash containers securely.

During an excessively windy period, it is urgent that the fire hazard resulting from piles of loose paper be prevented, Chief MacDonald said.

Police Chief Frank W. Reuther is alerting his men to watch for paper salvagers who tear bundles apart to obtain the more valuable card board. Anyone apprehended will be dealt with severely, Reuther said.

The 11th district Gold Cross meeting Jan. 15 in the Matawan township first aid squad building, Cliffwood, will be attended by the auxiliary's delegates. The auxiliary will meet tonight in the fire house and the new officers will serve as hostesses.

SEA BRIGHT—A $100-a-plate social-charity dinner, honoring Dr. Anthony J. Pisani of Red Bank and Rumson, and benefiting the Dr. Hazard Memorial hospital, Long Branch, will be held in Driftwood-by-the-Sea Beach club Saturday, Feb. 21.

The entire proceeds will go to the Hazard Memorial, which the committee calls the "hospital with a heart." Admission to the club on the night of the function will be limited to dinner guests.

The committee has issued an invitation to the public to join in further assistance to the hospital by becoming patrons of the institution. Individuals desiring to be patrons will give donations of $50 or more each.

Dr. Louis F. Mellaci, 138 River rd., Rumson, is treasurer of the dinner. Others on the committee are Bruno J. Lucarelli, ticket chairman, and William H. Boland, secretary.

Seek Decision In School Appeal

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS — The executive committee of the Civic association has written a letter to Joseph E. Clayton, assistant commissioner of education, asking for an early decision on the assocation's school construction appeal.

They also requested that Ernest T. Brown, board of education architect, be present at any hearing that Mr. Clayton might hold on the issue.

Civic group officials said this week that the letter, which was drafted at a meeting last week, has not as yet been answered. Mr. Clayton could not be contacted for comment.

Mr. Clayton held conference with Sverre Sorensen, school board attorney, and Martin J. Finan, Jr., civic association president, to determine if a formal hearing was necessary on the issue.

No decision has been made by the state education agency.

The civic association is seeking to have a $580,000 addition to the high school built as originally planned.

Bids received by the school board for the project amounted to approximately $104,000 more than the estimated cost.

The civic group has charged the board with "packing" the plans and specifications, thus raising the cost of the project above the $580,000 approved by referendum.

The text of the letter is as follows:

"In October 1958, we forwarded you a petition of appeal in the name of the Atlantic Highlands Civic association and Martin J. Finan, requesting a hearing in the $580,000 addition to the Atlantic Highlands high school. The board of education in turn executed a counter appeal.

"Our petition included all the pertinent information required by you, and it is the opinion of this association that any further affidavit would serve no useful purpose.

"The testimony of the architect, Mr. Ernest T. Brown, is essential to substantiate our bid analysis and we therefore request that you initiate his appearance at any hearing.

"The children of our community are being deprived of suitable schooling facilities and the taxpayers of the most economical and educational program for Atlantic Highlands, pending the outcome of this petition.

"Your decision in the matter of our petition for a hearing is urgently requested and we are prepared to be represented."

CARD PARTY

BELFORD— Tentative plans for a card party and children's game party in the Belford school were made at a Parent-Teacher association meeting Monday. Mrs. Henry Ernst's class won the attendance award. The executive committee meeting will be held Wednesday, Jan. 21, in the home of Henry Ernst, Aberdeen tor., New Monmouth. The next PTA meeting will be held Feb. 2, when Founders' day will be observed. Mrs. Samuel Brown is in charge of the program.

School is Closed As Fire Hazard

Closing of a school for retarded children at 62 Monmouth st., evoked a storm of controversy in Red Bank this week.

The order to close the school came Monday night after the mayor and council heard a letter from the fire department's bureau of fire prevention listing seven violations of the 1956 fire prevention code.

The school, operated by the New Jersey Association for retarded Children, Monmouth county unit, began operations in the house Dec. 1.

No Certificate

One main point coming out of the controversy was that the group was never issued a certificate of occupancy by Domenick C. Pingitore, building inspector, to use the building.

Asked for his feelings on Mr. Pingitore's failure to issue a certificate of occupancy, Mayor George A. Gray said, "No comment. Why stir it up?"

John F. Monaghan, school director, said school officials twice contacted Mr. Pingitore and asked him to inspect the building, but he failed to make an inspection.

Fire Chief Herbert Chameroy was then contacted and he made an inspection Dec. 13, Mr. Monaghan said. School officials said they asked Mr. Chameroy to give them a copy of his report on the school so they could correct any violations. Mr. Pingitore said he also asked for a copy of the report.

"Domenick got a verbal report," Mr. Chameroy told The Register. "He never received a written report." As far as a report for the school officials, Mr. Chameroy said, "I had no intention of sending them a report." He said he did not recall any request from the retarded children's unit for the report.

Lists Violations

The letter to council, signed by Harry J. Hoffmann, secretary of the Fire Prevention Bureau, listed the seven fire code violations: building in poor condition; only one stairway to second floor; no fire ceiling over oil burner; entrance doors open in wrong direction; no exit lights over doors; poor entrance to basement; and litter and rubbish in basement.

The letter said the bureau felt "this house is a fire hazard and should not be used until this condition is corrected. This information is to be passed on to the building inpsector before a permit of occupancy is approved."

Councilman John Warren, Jr., asked that the building be closed immediately. "We all know what happened in Chicago," he said.

Mayor Gray said the school is "doing fine work, but "they should be made to conform."

Used for Synagogue

Asked why the school was allowed to operate without a certificate of occupancy, Mr. Pingitore said, "It was used and accepted as a synagogue for many years, which takes in more than nine students." He said the synagogue received "permission by authorities" to use the building without getting a certificate of occupancy, so he did not require a permit from the retarded school officials.

Asked if he will require the school to get a permit before it reopens, Mr. Pingitore said, "That's right."

Three women and six men between 18 and 35 years old are attending the school. The first floor of the two-story frame house contains one large room. There are two training rooms on the second floor.

In explaining why he did not visit the school when asked to by Mrs. Virginia Clapp, Little Silver, chairman of the school project, Mr. Pingitore said he contacted the fire chief and asked him to inspect the building.

Mr. Chameroy, when questioned by The Register, said, "Mrs. Clapp asked me if I would check it over."

Mr. Chameroy also said after he made his verbal report to Mr. Pingitore, "I assume Dom had made a report to them, but I don't know." He said Mr. Pingitore told him he would incorporate the fire chief's report into the building inspector's report and send it to the school."

'So Called Fuss'

Within a week after making the inspection, Mr. Chameroy said, he reported to both Mr. Pingitore and Councilman Frederic E. Giersch, Jr., fire committee chairman, and told them "I wanted the building closed."

Mr. Pingitore said he intended to make an inspection of the building after receiving the report from the fire chief. He said "If the report had come to me first" there would not have been any "so called fuss." Mr. Pingitore said both he and the fire chief, now Albert T. MacDonald, would make an inspection of the school after repairs are completed.

Asked his opinion of the building, Mr. Pingitore said, "I would not say the building was in poor condition."

The school holds a one-year lease on the building from Samuel Ziberblatt, 68 Monmouth st. It formerly held classes in the Woman's club in Little Silver and in the Junior Service league's clubhouse in Rumson.

By coincidence, the school closed down Monday about 3 p. m. for remodeling and repairs. It will remain closed until the fire code violations are corrected.

Mr. Monaghan said the difficulty in closing the school for two or three weeks for repairs was that the retarded students would forget much of what they had learned in the past three months.

The bureau of fire prevention is composed of ex-chiefs of the fire department and the present active fire chief, who is president of the board.

Closing of the school may cause a serious cutback in part of the school's program. School officials were hoping that the New Jersey State Rehabilitation commission would send six retarded adults to be trained in the school. However, they expressed concern that the state might cancel the plan to send the children if it learns of the closing of the school.

Locating in Red Bank has been a difficult job for the retarded unit. Last year the zoning board of adjustment turned down a request for a variance for the school, which then wanted to use a house on Reckless pl.

Tavern Closed On ABC Charge

HIGHLANDS — Borough council, Tuesday night, ordered Kruse's tavern, Bay ave., closed for 20 days beginning Monday, for violation of Alcoholic Beverage Control regulations.

The tavern owner was found guilty of allowing female employees to accept beverages at the expense of customers.

James McGovern, attorney for the tavern owners, pleaded nonvult to the charges. The tavern will be closed from 2 a. m. Jan. 12, until noon Feb. 2.

The council announced that it will meet with Herbert A. Carusoe, borough auditor, Tuesday night to discuss the municipal budget.

Mrs. Rosemary Shields, borough clerk, was instructed to write the board of education to determine why a request for a joint meeting of both groups on the school budget was refused by the school board.

The council had sought the meeting to combine the efforts of both groups in keeping the local tax rate down.

John M. Pillsbury, borough attorney, reported that a meeting between the council and the Jersey Central railroad could be expected shortly. Council is interested in purchasing the abandoned 3.6 mile rail bed in the borough, in order to build a road connecting the community with Atlantic Highlands.

Council approved a $50 donation to the Monmouth County Organization for Social Service for the establishment of a child clinic in the borough. The MCOSS plans to use two rooms in the first aid squad building for the clinic.

It was also announced that condemnation proceedings against the Mary Norton property at Cedar and Bay aves., will be held Feb. 17.

Fires Wreck 4 Buildings In Middletown

BELFORD—A former hardware store building on the Luther Walling estate, Main st. and Railroad ave., was destroyed and two adjoining storage buildings were badly damaged by fire early yesterday.

It was the fourth time in less than a year that firemen have been called out to fight fires in the vacant buildings. The two damaged structures had been condemned. Equipment was stored in the buildings, firemen said.

The origin of the blaze is unknown. It was the second of two major fires in this area yesterday morning.

The first caused an estimated $2,000 damage to Mario's delicatessen, Leonardville rd., Campbell's Junction. Loss in the Walling estate blaze was set at $5,000 by Fire Chief Newton A. Mallett.

The Walling estate blaze started in the two-story store building, Chief Mallett said. Firemen of five companies fought the fire in a high wind and subfreezing temperatures which hampered the effort.

The alarm was sounded at 5:18 a. m. Companies that responded were Belford Engine, Belford Independent, Port Monmouth, Community of Leonardo and Old Village. Firemen remained on the scene until 7:45 a. m.

They laid more than 5,000 feet of hose and put lines from four hydrants on the blaze, Chief Mallett said. The Middletown township department chief was assisted by Elwood Seeley, first assistant, and Harlan Hogan, second assistant chief.

The Port Monmouth first aid squad also answered the alarm. There were no injuries.

Defective wiring was blamed for the delicatessen blaze, which was reported at 12:02 a. m. The adjoining Middletown pharmacy was slightly damaged by fire and water, Chief Mallett said. Firemen remained on the scene until 2 a. m.

Ten minutes after the delicatessen fire alarm was sounded, the Port Monmouth fire company was called away to extinguish a blaze in a garage on Main st., Port Monmouth. Damage was slight, Chief Mallett said. Owner of the garage was not determined. A grass fire ignited the garage, Mr. Mallett said. Raymond Bryk directed the Port Monmouth company.

Also fighting the Campbell's Junction blaze were Belford Independent and Engine companies.

GOP Reigns in Union Beach; Two Added to Police Force

UNION BEACH — Robert Holland and Matthew J. Hanas were sworn in as members of borough council Thursday, placing council control for 1959 in the hands of the GOP.

Mayor Boyle K. Pattison promised to relocate borough offices "at once" at a minimum cost to taxpayers, declared that the police department would be improved further, and with council consent, increased the department from six to eight members.

Major appointments for 1959 were: Ralph S. Heuser, Matawan, borough attorney; Frank A. Foss, Keyport, borough engineer; Herbert Carusoe, Red Bank, auditor; Mrs. Mary A. Rosine, treasurer and tax search officer; Frank Faldutl, building inspector; Mrs. Daisy K. Ellis, water collector and pay roll clerk; Frank Brower, superintendent of public works and the water department; Merrick Ross, assistant superintendent of public works; Alfred T. Hennessy, Jr., tax assessment searcher; and Mrs. Louisa Brock, welfare director.

Councilman John McInnes was elected borough council president.

Councilman Hanas was appointed chairman of the police committee and given the title of police chief. Mayor Pattison acted as "chief" during the latter part of 1958, under provisions of the borough's police ordinance of 1926.

Police department appointments are as follows: Walter A. Hutton, captain; Arthur J. Gray, Joseph C. Nappi, Richard J. Trembley, Jr., John F. Conroy, David Connelly, Gus Dirner, Jr., and Michael McKowne, Jr., patrolmen. Mr. Dirner and Mr. McKowne are new appointees. Mr. Nappi was demoted from sergeant to patrolman.

Special police officers are Francis Chasey, Richard Bracken, Samuel Richardson, Albert Wilson, Gus Dirner, Sr., John Williams, Mrs. Betty Schuler, Mrs. Ellis, Fred Everson, Sr., and John Carney.

Nearly 200 persons witnessed the New Years day ceremonies held in Memorial school auditorium. It was the second consecutive year that Republicans have placed two members on the council, giving the GOP 4 to 2 control of the governing body. The only remaining Democrats are Councilmen Joseph Carney and Walter Chomic.

Mr. Pattison told spectators that during 1958 the borough had obtained drainage pipe from the county at no cost, organized a new planning board, elevated a section of Union ave. at no cost, made repairs to water plant filters, and obtained automatic railroad signal devices for the borough.

Council committee appointments, the chairmen being named first in each instance, were made as follows: Building and grounds, Mr. Holland, Mr. Hanas and Mr. Carney; fire and safety, Mr. Chomic, Mr. McInnes and Allen J. Weaver; finance, Mr. Carney, Mr. Holland and Mr. Hanas; police, Mr. Hanas, Mr. Weaver and Mr. Chomic; water, Mr. McInnes, Mr. Holland and Mr. Carney, and streets, Mr. Weaver, Mr. McInnes and Mr. Chomic.

Council will continue to meet the second and fourth Thursdays at 8 p. m. in Cottage Park school.

The Keansburg-Middletown National bank and Monmouth County National bank of Keyport were named depositories. Harold J. Witzigman was appointed Civil Defense director.

The appointment of Mr. Carusoe as borough auditor is subject to confirmation by the state municipal finance commission.

Starts Fourth Term

J. Crawford Compton, left, of Belford is administered oath of office last Thursday by Middletown Township Clerk Howard W. Roberts to begin his fourth full term on the township committee. Mr. Compton defeated Democrat Andrew J. Coll in November to retain his seat and continue the all-Republican makeup of the governing body.

Rival Party Leaders Endorse Bond Issue

NEW BRUNSWICK (AP) — Assembly Majority Leader Maurice V. Brady and Minority Leader Alfred N. Beadleston, Shrewsbury, last week endorsed a proposed $76,000,000 bond issue to expand Rutgers university and state teachers colleges.

The two rival leaders, appearing on the "Legislative Report" radio program, agreed that the legislature should move to place the college bond issue before the public on next November's ballot.

But the two disagreed on both rapid transit and rent control issues.

Mr. Brady, a Hudson county Democrat, said some railroads were threatening commuters by indicating they would drop passenger service unless they received tax relief.

District Created

The bill passed by the 1958 Senate to create a New Jersey-New York Metropolitan Transit district would have made a "ghost town" of Jersey City, Mr. Brady declared.

He said the transit loop proposed by the now defunct Metropolitan Rapid Transit commission would have by-passed Jersey City.

Mr. Beadleston, a Monmouth county Republican, defended the rapid transit measure, which died in the Assembly.

It was designed, he said to prevent collapse of rapid transit facilities resulting from the bankruptcy of hard-pressed railroads, said Mr. Beadleston.

"We're trying to save something for everybody and to keep the railroads in business."

When the legislature convenes Jan. 13, Mr. Brady said, one of the first measures to be introduced will seek a two-year extension of local option rent controls in 17 North Jersey communities.

He said the proposal is needed because there is still a shortage of housing in North Jersey, especially Hudson county.

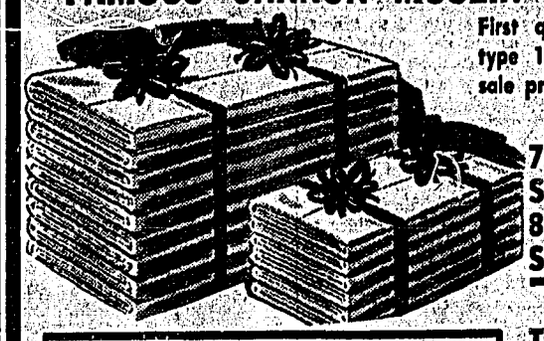

Mr. Beadleston predicted that New Jersey would never "have enough private housing under rent control."

"We need a fair market that gives a fair return" on private housing investments, he said.

Rent controls died in New Jersey when the legislature failed to enact legislation extending local controls last year.

Atlantic Highlands Inducts 2 on Council

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS — William F. X. Connell and Allen J. Tracy became the first Democrats to be seated on the borough council here in nearly a decade when they were sworn into office on New Year's day.

Succeeding Council President Everett C. Curry and Councilman Harold K. Merritt, the new councilmen were administered the oath of office by Borough Clerk Nelson H. Roberts.

Mr. Curry was defeated at the general election and concludes 12 years' service at the sine die meeting held just before noon and the reorganization session. Mr. Merritt did not seek re-election to the governing body. He had served one term.

Mayor Waldron P. Smith welcomed Mr. Connell and Mr. Tracy to the council with assurances of the co-operation of all borough officials. Mayor Smith extended "official and personal" appreciation to Mr. Curry and Mr. Merritt for their service to the borough.

Councilman Patrick J. McConnell succeeded Mr. Curry as president of the council. Longtime chairman of the finance committee, he began his ninth year on the governing body.

Mr. Tracy also succeeded Mr. Curry as chairman of the streets, sewers and sanitation committee and as a member of the harbor commission as one of the two councilmanic representatives on that board. During the Democratic campaign, the commission's conduct of the affairs of the municipal basin was a principal target.

Another principal target — Borough Attorney John M. Pillsbury —figured in the lone dissent registered by the new councilmen at the reorganization session. They declined to vote confirmation of Mr. Pillsbury's reappointment to the post by Mayor Smith. It, of course, carried by a four to two vote.

Mr. Connell also was confirmed as chairman of a regular committee, heading the fire committee. Four other committees will continue to be headed by chairmen of last year: Mr. Connell, finance; Councilman Edward C. Walder, police; Councilman Philip Hanson, water, and Councilman Russell Morgan, parks, buildings, street lighting and advertising.

Mr. Walder also was confirmed for reappointment to the Harbor commission. Also appointed were: Collector Stanley F. Sculthorp, tax searcher; Mr. Roberts, searcher of assessment for municipal improvements; Lesley D. Carhart, building inspector; Philip Dinkelberg and Herbert M. Todd, three-year terms on the board of health; John J. Christolas, two-year term, and Mr. Walder, one year, on the local assistance board; John Scott, five-year term on the shade tree commission; D. A. Caruso and Michael Manigrasso, three-year terms on the planning board; Mrs. Gertrude Keyes, Police Capt. James J. Egidio and Mr. Morgan, three-year terms on the recreation commission, and the following special officers:

Waldron P. Smith, Edmund F. Hartcorn, Albert L. Loux, Earl De Cordova, Joseph Dender, Joseph Caruso, Michael Manigrasso, Henry Arthur, Wallace Bacher, Fred Weiler, Engelbert Brenner, Patrick J. McConnell, Allen J. Tracy, Edward De Cordova, Frank Siegfried, Harry Murtha, Pierre Simpson, Joseph Miles, Alphonse Van Seversen, John B. Murphy, Russell Morgan, John Reiner, Robert Levy, Clifford Barker, Clifford Huddleston, Vincent Finn, Reamer Keller, Grover Williams, Edgar M. McMonigle, Dorothy E. Pennetti, Waldron P. Smith, Jr., Edward G. Walder, Everett C. Curry, William E. Woodward, Walter Gibson, William Carell, John E. Weiler, William F. X. Connell and Philip Hanson.

In brief remarks, Mr. Tracy and Mr. Connell pledged to work for the best interests of the borough. "I am looking forward to 1959 and working with the council," said Mr. Tracy. "Despite the fact that our political viewpoints are different, I am sure all will work for the borough of Atlantic Highlands."

Mr. Connell said that, although he and Mr. Tracy comprised a minority on the council, they would do their best for those who had voted for them, and those who hadn't would "see that the best interests of Atlantic Highlands are always in our hearts."

In brief ceremonies, Ralph Bruder, secretary of the Atlantic Highlands fire department, presented a gold badge to former Chief John Joslin, who reported a total fire loss for the year 1958 of $7,190. Mr. Bruder also introduced Fire Chief George Rich; Joseph Caruso, first assistant chief, and Paul Muir, second assistant chief.

Another ceremony found Harry C. Ross, civil defense director here, presented an up-to-date "basic" map of the borough to Mayor Smith. The map, showing every street in the borough, has figured in civil defense exercises, Mr. Ross said. The mayor commended him for his "outstanding" efforts in those pursuits.

Mayor Smith's annual message follows:

It is again my privilege and pleasure to address the citizens of the borough at the end of the business year 1958 and the beginning of the year 1959. It is always a pleasure to report the closing of the prior year with all bills paid and our borough in a sound financial condition.

May I welcome the new members to the governing body, namely Mr. Tracy and Mr. Connell. I can assure them of the co-operation of all borough officials in their term as members of the borough council and we look forward for that same co-operation so that Atlantic Highlands will continue as one of the finest communities in the state of New Jersey. There are numerous duties to maintain the borough in its fine condition and each of them will be called upon to assist in the performance of those duties.

With the coming of new members, we always find that former members are retiring and I desire to extend the appreciation of the residents of the borough to Mr. Curry and Mr. Merritt for the services that they have rendered as borough officials on behalf of those residents. I am sure that their retirement from the council table does not mean that they will retire from public service as I know the years that both have served are an indication of their continuing interest in all civic matters whether they hold an official position or not and we look forward to calling upon them from time to time when the occasion arises to assist in the performance of civic and municipal activities.

The remaining members of the council have served you well and I commend them for that service: Mr. McConnell as chairman of the finance committee, Mr. Walder as chairman of the police committee, Mr. Morgan as chairman of parks and public buildings and Mr. Hanson as chairman of the water committee.

It is a known fact that we alone, sitting as your governing body, could not provide the many services and conveniences that our residents enjoy if it were not for the co-operation and assistance of numerous residents who are willing to devote their time and efforts on community activities; I speak of the board of health, the Public Health association, the planning board, the board of adjustment, the shade tree commission, the library association, the Harbor commission, the juvenile conference committee, Civil Defense council, recreation commission, fire department and first aid squad.

Serving on these committees, boards and associations, exclusive of the fire department and the first aid squad, there are in excess of 50 residents. You can readily understand that the operation of your community and its well-being are not entirely in the hands of the governing body but are dependent upon the assistance of fellow townsmen who are interested in our future. I thank them for their services in the past and look forward to their continued interest.

We boast of a sound financial condition only because our taxpayers promptly meet the payment of their taxes. Our collector, Mr. Sculthorp, has informed me that again the tax collections are in excess of 90 per cent of the tax levy.

Our actual surplus will not be known until our annual audit is completed, but we do know that we have a substantial surplus, including an investment of $50,000 in short term government securities which is available to our use should it become necessary. We believe that a municipal operation is not too different from an ordinary business and it is necessary to have surpluses against times and conditions of recession or depression. We hope we will never be compelled to exhaust those surpluses.

Our revaluation program is continuing and a report will be made at our first business session of this year. The purpose of this program is to fix a standard for the valuation of all land and buildings in the borough to the end that each owner of property will be paying his proportionate share of the cost of operation of school and municipal government and for the elimination of any inequalities that may exist.

As your elected officials, we do not represent any selected group, but all the residents of the borough and we assure each and every one that our offices are open at all times to receive constructive suggestions. Our council meetings are public to which everyone is invited. Our municipal records are public records which may be examined by any interested persons. We invite attendance at our meetings so that you will hear directly how your government is being operated.

I desire to thank the Police department, our borough employees, and everyone connected with the administration of our government.

In closing may I extend to each and every one a happy, healthful and prosperous New Year.

SMOKE DAMAGE

RUMSON — A fire — which started between the kitchen and living room wall — caused smoke damage to portions of the house of Jay Holly, Navesink ave., Sunday morning, police reported. They said Mr. Holly discovered the fire when he returned from church. The Rumson fire department answered the call. No damage estimate was available.

IdeaExchange Meeting Held

SHREWSBURY — The Neighborhood Girl Scout council held an "exchange of ideas" meeting Monday afternoon in the school. The meeting was represented by leaders, each of whom brought in handwork made by the girls for Christmas gifts.

Leaders and troops were thanked by Mrs. Harry Keller for participating in the Thanksgiving and Christmas projects, both of which lived up to this year's theme, "You Can Count on Her for Service."

Mrs. Rolf Barman was complimented on her arrangements for the Christmas caroling, and Mrs. George Koenig, who headed the recent roller skating party, was thanked.

Mrs. George Steck, Mrs. Howell Walton, Mrs. Barman and Mrs. Koenig are in charge of the program, with Mrs. Edward Myers in charge of the arts and crafts display for the Founders' day program of the Parent-Teacher association in February.

The next neighborhood meeting will be held Feb. 2 at 1:30 p. m. in the school.

Charged With Careless Driving

RUMSON — Robert Picton, 53 Poplar ave., West Long Branch, has been charged with careless driving after a car he was driving hit a tree at Rumson rd. and Buena Vista rd., police reported.

The accident took place Jan. 1 at 5:04 a. m.

Police said they were told by Mr. Picton he reached down to pick up a cigarette and lost control of the vehicle.

His wife, a passenger, suffered a broken ankle.

Patrolman James K. Shea investigated.

Builders to Hear Economist

SPRING LAKE HEIGHTS — "How To Double Your Income in 1959" will be the subject of a talk to be delivered before the N. J. Shore Builders association as the organization's inauguration meeting at Beau Rivage restaurant Tuesday at 7 p. m.

The speaker, William A. Bennett, Jr., is one of the nation's leading economists, and through the years has been closely associated with the building industry. He will give "income doubling tips" designed for both large and small volume builders.

Mr. Bennett will be introduced by Robert Schmertz, president, shortly after Mr. Schmertz and his newly-elected fellow officers are installed by William H. Oliver, president of the State Home Builders association.

She replaces Miss Mildred S. Schmidt, who resigned to become curriculum consultant for the National League for Nursing.

Mrs. Fellini, who resides at 355 Bath ave., Long Branch, was graduated from the nursing school of Springfield (Mass.) hospital and received her B. S. in public health from New York university, and later her master's degree in administration from Columbia university. AAUW Slates College Speaker

RUMSON — Richard Pearson, executive vice president of the College Entrance Examination board, will speak at a meeting of the Northern Monmouth County branch of the American Association of University Women next Monday night in Presbyterian Fellowship hall.

Mrs. S. Benedict Levin, Little Silver, chairman of the educational study group, said that invitations have been extended to county school principals and superintendents.

Mr. Pearson's subject will be "What Is Happening to the Able Student in Schools and Colleges?" The speaker served as college board program director for the educational testing services of Princeton from 1952 to 1956.

Baron Takes Office; States Prime Goals

NEW SHREWSBURY — Democrat Karl K. Baron started his two-year term of office as mayor Thursday at the borough council's reorganization meeting. Also taking office were two councilmen and an assessor.

Councilmen sworn in were Daniel Renshaw and Herbert L. Willett, 3d, both for three year terms. Andrew G. Shepard (Adm. U. S. Navy, Ret.) was sworn in as assessor for a three-year term starting in July. Adm. Shepard, who defeated Joseph H. Jordon for the post in November, actually took office Nov. 6, when Mr. Jordon resigned. Because of the revaluation program under way in the borough, Mr. Jordon resigned so that Adm. Shepard could become familiar with the program.

The council elected Philip H. Meyer, Jr., council president.

Reappointed were Jerome S. Reed, clerk and assessment searcher; Mrs. Ruth B. Crawford, tax collector and tax searcher; Henry F. Labrecque, engineer; Milton Mausner, attorney; Joseph J. Seaman, auditor, and Ernest Hiltbrunner, road supervisor.

Other Appointments

Councilmen Meyer and Willett, along with Louis A. Steinmuller, were reappointed to the planning board. Mr. Meyer will serve for two years, Mr. Willett for three years and Mr. Steinmuller, six years.

In other appointments, Harrison W. Hubbard and Angelo Zanetti were named to three-year terms on the board of adjustment; Anson W. Peckham, five-year term, on the recreation commission; Getchel McCall, four-year term, and Councilmen Renshaw, one-year term, both on the local assistance board.

G. Holmes Paullin was reappointed Civil Defense and Disaster Control director. Others appointed to the CD council are John Lemon, James McKee, Alfred Schibell, Andrew Handy, Mrs. Dorothy Wilde, James Herring, Alfred MacMoyle, Robert Brandt, Dr. Gordon R. Smith, Mrs. Catherine Ganson, John Mayer, Eric Holmgren, and Frank Jordon.

Dr. Smith was renamed police physician and Mr. Schibell, heating inspector. William B. Brown was appointed a special police officer, and Mrs. Jeannette Cobb, court clerk.

Inaugural Speech

Mayor Baron, in his inaugural speech, listed three major tasks facing the borough in the new year. They are: stabilizing the rising tax rate, revaluation, and modernizing the municipal codes.

The new mayor cited the rapid growth of the community and said "It is inevitable that we will be confronted with a substantial tax rise for 1959 because of commitments already made."

He pointed out that the borough must attract industrial and commercial ratables to help stabilize the tax rate. Mr. Baron noted that the industrial congress he has formed to seek these ratables already has received inquiries from industries the borough hopes to attract.

"Hand in hand with stabilizing our taxes," he said, "goes the job of modernizing our municipal codes. We must review, re-examine and, if necessary, rewrite to update our zoning laws, and create an up-to-the-minute industrial building code. We must do everything we can to slow down the runaway rise in residential growth. We need a breather."

Tax Committee

On the subject of revaluation, Mr. Baron noted that the program may involve hardships for some of the people.

"We are going to do everything we can to prevent or alleviate such hardship," he stated.

He said a tax committee would be formed soon to advise the council on this matter.

Fair Haven Mayor and Council

The Fair Haven governing body had its reorganization meeting New Years day. The oath of office was taken again by Mayor Edgar V. Denise and Councilmen Russell H. Minton and Eugene Magee, all successful candidates for re-election in November. Shown at their first meeting of the year are, left to right, Councilmen John C. Damico, Tony E. Hunting and Magee, Treasurer George W. Curchin, Attorney William R. Blair, Jr., Mr. Denise, Borough Clerk Roy W. Nelson, Councilmen James L. Davison, Minton and Jesse J. McIlray.

Gray, 3 Councilmen Sworn in Red Bank

Mayor George A. Gray and three councilmen were sworn into office at Red Bank's reorganization meeting Monday night in the municipal building.

Councilmen sworn were Peter W. Falvo, John Warren, Jr., and Everett C. Baynton. Councilman Frederic E. Giersch, Jr., who also was elected to the council last November, was given the oath of office Friday. He is now in California on business. Mr. Giersch also was elected president of the council.

John Bryan, who was named deputy borough clerk last year when Mrs. Amy E. Shinn announced her retirement, was officially named borough clerk.

Mayor Gray, who now begins his second term of office, told the council, "Gentlemen, I want to say thanks that you're all here again."

Fourth Term

Mr. Baynton begins his fourth term of office. Mr. Warren begins his first full term, having replaced Harold E. Williams last year. Mr. Giersch, who was named to replace Harold Hurley, will serve for one year, as will Mr. Falvo, who replaced Charles T. Bruno.

Also receiving the oath of office were the three borough fire chiefs for 1959. They are Albert T. MacDonald, chief; Walter England, first deputy chief, and Samuel Scalzo, second deputy chief.

Appointed to council committees by Mayor Gray, with the chairman listed first in each case, were:

Police, Baynton, Giersch and Oakley; finance, Falvo, Harry Malchow and Giersch; fire, Giersch, Baynton and Oakley; streets, lighting and sanitation, Oakley, Warren and Falvo; water and sewer, Malchow, Oakley and Giersch; parks, recreation, health, welfare and buildings, Warren, Giersch and Baynton, and personnel, Oakley, Malchow and Giersch.

Heads River Group

A new chairman of the river improvement committee was named by Mayor Gray. She is Mrs. Donald Hubbard, who replaces Mr. Falvo. New members on the committee are Mr. Warren, James Gettis and Edward Harvey. Reappointed on the committee were Joseph C. Irwin, John P. Mulvihill, Jr., Ensley M. White, Philip J. Bowers, Rigaud B. Paine, Frederick E. Giersch, Sr., John Westbrook and Raymond G. McCartney.

Dr. Alfred Podell was named deputy borough and police surgeon, replacing Dr. Victor Siegel. Dr. Leo C. Rocco was renamed borough and police surgeon.

Receiving three-year terms as constables were Thomas J. Hackett and Alexander Tomaino. One more constable remains to be named for a three-year term.

Carusoe, auditor; Samuel Carotenuto, borough attorney; Dominick Pingitore, building inspector, public officer under the substandard housing ordinance and building official under the building code; Everett F. Brower, Jr., electrician; Thomas F. Mead, mechanic.

Meeting Nights

Council reestablished its meetings on the first and third Monday of each month at 8:30 p. m. in the municipal building. The Monmouth County National bank and Merchants Trust company were named depository banks for borough funds, and a safe deposit box was rented from the Monmouth County National bank. The Register was named the official newspaper for publication of all official notices and ordinances and other legal publications required by law.

In a windup of old business, council approved a resolution setting up an agreement with the Mainstay Federal Savings and Loan association, 36 Monmouth st., to use part of the firm's rear lot for parking borough vehicles. The agreement will be in effect for five years.

Walker is Approved To Borough Council

SHREWSBURY — Kenneth L. Walker, Jr., 17 Buttonwood la., was appointed to the borough council New Years day by Mayor Bernard B. White.

The reorganization meeting was the first held in the borough on a New Year's day.

Appointment of Mr. Walker to the council was the first official act by Mayor White who was sworn into office at the reorganization ceremonies. Councilmen James W. Bly and John W. VanBrunt also were sworn into office. Both men were incumbents.

Councilwoman Mrs. Lois MacMahon Joice abstained from voting to approve the appointment of Mr. Walker. She later told The Register she felt Mr. Walker's appointment "might be a case of conflict of interest."

Mr. Walker operates a real estate and insurance business with his father. Under a municipal set-up, all insurance firms doing business within the borough get a certain commission from insurance bought by the borough.

Because of the possible conflict of interest, Mrs. Joice said, she felt that "in all conscience" she could not vote to approve Mr. Walker's appointment.

Mayor White and Mrs. Joice have crossed political paths before. An inter-party battle took place when the Republican executive committee attempted to pick a candidate for mayor. There was a committee deadlock between Mrs. Joice and Mayor White, then members of the council. The decision to pick Mr. White came only hours before the legal deadline.

Mr. Walker, in a letter to borough council Tuesday night, said his firm is withdrawing from the municipal insurance set-up because of his appointment to the council.

'Sincere Appreciation'

In his opening remarks, Mayor White expressed his "sincere appreciation to all employees" of the borough for "their wonderful help and co-operation" last year.

"It was a great help to me," Mayor White said, "when I became acting mayor on Sept. 15 to know that we had, and still have, men and women serving our community who knew their respective jobs throughly."

Mayor White took over the post when the late Mayor John H. Hawkins was killed in the Sept. 15 train wreck in Newark bay.

"I want to express my appreciation," Mayor White continued, "to all the people for the support they gave my fellow councilmen and myself. I assure you that I am undertaking this position with the full knowledge of what my responsibilities will be as mayor, and I will serve Shrewsbury to the best of my ability."

Mr. Walker has been a member of the planning board for about four years, and has also served as vice chairman of the Shrewsbury industrial committee. He is a member and past president of the local Republican club. Mr. Walker also was the first president of the local Community Appeal.

The Greater Red Bank Area Junior Chamber of Commerce gave Mr. Walker its first "Distinguished Service Award" in 1956. Mr. Walker has served as vice president of the Monmouth county Insurance Agents association and is an approved appraiser for the Veterans Administration and Federal Housing Administration.

All persons named by Mayor White to boards, committees and salaried positions were reappointments. Still to be named, however, are replacements on the zoning board of adjustment, planning board and industrial committee. The zoning board vacancy was caused by the death in December of Howard G. Strauss, board chairman.

James W. Bly was elected president of the council, replacing Mayor White, who held the position before the death of Mayor Hawkins.

Also set up by the mayor was a permanent sewer study committee. Mrs. Joice is chairman, assisted by Councilman John W. VanBrunt, and Francis P. Drucker, a member of the planning board. Mayor White called the study group "one of our most important committee in the borough." A preliminary study of the possibility of installing a sewerage system in the borough was started last summer.

New Post Is Created At Synagogue

Retired from Leon's, Feldt to Become President's Assistant

RUMSON — Harry Feldt, who has retired as manager of Leon's Cleaners, Dyers and Launderers of Red Bank, has been appointed assistant to the president of Congregation Bnai Israel of Greater Red Bank.

The post was created by the congregation's board of trustees last month. Mr. Feldt will be in charge of operating the building, and will be the on-the-premises representative of the president, William I. Klatsky.

In announcing the appointment, Mr. Klatsky said increased activity in the synagogue and community center led the trustees to believe there should be a person available at all times to act as a liaison between the congregation's administration and the membership.

Mr. Klatsky also said the new position "assures us that the membership will have someone available at all times to assist with problems relating to the congregation and the Jewish community. We think this is a very large forward step in making the synagogue a real service center."

Mr. Feldt, who wears the Silver Beaver, the state's highest scouting award, served two terms as president of the congregation and several terms as secretary. He has been a member of its board 35 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Feldt live at 92 Lake ave. They have three children, Mrs. Corrine Stutts of Houston, Tex.; Dr. Leonard Feldt, a professor on the staff of the testing program at Iowa university, and Miss Marna Feldt, who is studying in Sweden.

Mr. Feldt, who is 65, was with Leon's 35 years. He retired New Years day.

St. James Fund Reaches $455,145

Msgr. Emmett A. Monahan, pastor of St. James Catholic church, Sunday announced that the St. James Church School fund has reached $455,145 in cash and pledges.

A campaign with a minimum goal of $300,000 ended Nov. 28 with a suscription of $329,133. Since then, the monsignor said, $26,012 has been received. He added that when all parishioners who have not pledged to the fund respond, he hopes the fund will reach "its projected aim of $500,000."

The $1,000,000 24-classroom and gymnasium-auditorium will be built at 28 and 32 Peters pl., houses which are being used as temporary classrooms. Upon approval of a zoning variance by the Red Bank mayor and council, houses at 14, 16 and 18 Peters pl. will be converted into classrooms for the pupils now in the houses at 28 and 32 Peters pl.

Move to Arkansas Halted; Trimboli Faces New Count

Guido Trimboli, 29, former Red Bank patrolman who last week announced he was moving to Arkansas, has been charged with "willful false swearing."

Mr. Trimboli, who was dismissed from the police force Dec. 18, was arrested in his home, 28 Earl st., Dec. 30 a few hours after he announced to newspapers his intention to move to Arkansas.

A preliminary hearing before Magistrate John V. Crowell was postponed until Jan. 12 at 8:30 a. m. Mr. Trimboli is free in $2,500 property bond.

The complaint, signed by County Detective Capt. William S. Mustoe, on direction of Prosecutor Vincent P. Keuper, charges that Mr. Trimboli told the Monmouth county grand jury Sept. 3 that he "knew that police officer Raymond E. Sergeant, Jr., has a key to Mechanik's Toy store in 1958; and thereafter on the ninth day of December, 1958, . . .said. . .he . . .did not know that officer Raymond Sergeant had a key to Mechanik's toy store on May 9, 1958."

Because of this conflicting testimony, the complaint says, "one or the other of the aforesaid statements is false."

Two Appeal

Mr. Trimboli was dismissed from the force after being found guilty of six of 19 charges placed against him for violation of departmental rules. Patrolman Sergeant and Patrolman William C. Story were suspended following departmental hearings, and have filed appeals in Freehold.

Assistant County Prosecutor John C. Petillo, who represented the county at the hearing last week before Magistrate Crowell, told the Register Monday, "Mr. Keuper is handling the whole matter himself."

The charge of false swearing, Mr. Petillo said, is a misdemeanor.

Conviction of the charge of false swearing holds a maximum penalty of three years in jail, or $1,000 fine, or both.

False swearing, unlike perjury, need not concern statements "material to an issue." Perjury is a high misdemeanor.

Red Bank Savings, Loan Assets Up

Millward Reports $1,000,000 Increase During 72d Year

The Red Bank Savings and Loan association increased its assets almost $1,000,000 in 1958 and now serves more customers than any time in its 72-year history, Harold B. Millward, president, reports.

Mr. Millward, in releasing the association's annual report, said the institution's "steady growth" was due to the management's ability to meet the thrift and home financing needs of the community."

For 72 years, he said, Red Bank Savings and Loan association has contributed to the area services for thrift and home ownership by providing a safe, convenient and profitable institution for savings, and by granting sound home loans.

Among highlights of the association's 1958 operations were the following:

1. Net savings increased by $831,459.94, bringing total savings to $8,359,266.28.

2. Savings members increased to 4,565 with 646 new accounts opened in 1958.

3. The savings members received a total of $226,179.52 in dividends, at the rate of three per cent per annum.

4. The association loaned $1,642,670.51 to 158 families in this area for the purchase or construction of homes. Total home loans outstanding amount to $7,628,627.80.

5. Reserves were increased to $736,382.14, exceeding the reserves on hand at the end of last year by $83,410.58.

The association officer said there appeared to be a continuing inclination for members to build up sizable savings accounts for all purposes, and that the capacity for people to save should be greater in 1959.

A substantial number of new homes built in the area and financed by the Red Bank Savings and Loan association were of improved design and quality. The demand for this type of home continues, Mr. Millward stated.

Officers and directors are: Edwin R. Conover, chairman of the board; Harold B. Millward, president; Louis S. Conover, vice president and treasurer; Martin Van Buren Smock, vice president; Noel J. Lartaud, secretary; Anna W. Van Note, assistant treasurer, and William E. Holloman, assistant secretary.

Other directors are: Theodore D. Parsons, A. Alvin Whiting, David W. Russell, Frank F. Blaisdel, Harold A. Hendrickson, James H. Anderson, William H. Hintelmann Jr., William A. Fluhr and Edward H. Conway.

Counsel for the association is Parsons, Labrecque, Canzona and Combs.

Little Silver Council Reorganizes

This was the scene as Little Silver's mayor and council reorganized for 1959 at a New Years day meeting. Left to right are Councilmen Douglas C. Wright, Charles E. Folsom and Charles W. Stephens; James R. Minogue, associate borough attorney; Mayor P. Paul Campi, and Councilmen Lewis R. Lowry, Edward F. Torre and Nelson M. Ayers. Mr. Wright and Mr. Ayers earlier were sworn into office by Borough Clerk Fred L. Ayers to begin three-year terms. They succeed Councilmen Victor P. Satter, who declined to seek re-election afer 23 years' service, and Arthur L. Cone, Democrat, who was defeated after serving three years. The council is all-Republican. Mayor Campi is a Democrat.

Mayor Campi's Address

LITTLE SILVER — Following is the complete text of Mayor P. Paul Campi's address at the New Years day reorganization meeting.

"Dear Friends:

"This date marks the anniversary of my first year in office as the mayor of Little Silver. On this occasion I want to take the opportunity to extend the very best of New Years wishes to my many friends in Little Silver and on the borough council. This instance also affords me the opportunity to formally welcome Nelson M. Ayers and Douglas C. Wright as members of the official family of the borough and to wish them well in the performance of the duties in the positions to which they have been elected.

"On this occasion it is customary that the mayor report to the citizens and voters of Little Silver relative to the accomplishments in the borough during the past year.

At the start of my first year as your mayor there were a number of matters pending about which I want to talk very briefly:

1—Oakes rd.—this street, marking part of the boundary between neighboring Rumson and our town, had been in very poor condition—the street surface was bad and drainage conditions left much to be desired. By co-operative arrangements with the borough of Rumson and some slight assistance from the county we have now completed the improvement of this street to the satisfaction of all.

2—Dredging of Parker's creek—this waterway, together with its feeding tributaries, comprises an important part of the drainage facilities for the borough. Work on this project had progressed to the point where the contract was let to commence dredging. However, it was found that not all the required easements for access had been obtained. Consequently, work on this project has been temporarily suspended to be resumed in the near future after easements have been obtained either voluntarily or through other means. This latter course of action will, of course, increase the cost to some extent.

3—Sewerage—reports by the committee appointed to study this matter have not, as yet, been completed. Once the survey of facilities and study of necessary reports have been completed all necessary meetings will be held until the matter is concluded to the satisfaction of the residents.

4—Borough hall facilities — the choice presented here is do we remodel and/or renovate the present structure or do we construct a new building? Confronted by the necessity for modernizing other borough facilities of equal or greater importance, it has been decided to undertake a plan for gradually modernizing the present building. Of great importance has been the need to provide safe and secure storage space for the records of our municipality. To this end provisions are being made to construct a fireproof vault in the basement of the borough hall. Also as part of the program of gradually modernizing this building plans are under way to provide meeting quarters on the second floor for public groups.

During the past year three new ordinances of major importance have been enacted in order to keep up with changing times:

1—Swimming pools—this new ordinance provides regulations for adherence to health and safety standards and to prevent complications to our already overtaxed drainage facilities in the construction of private swimming pools.

2—Bicycles—this new ordinance imposes on that segment of our population an awareness of safety measures necessary when riding bicycles on the public streets. It also provides measures to minimize thefts of bicycles.

3—Subdivisions—through this ordinance steps can now be taken to provide construction of homes and streets more in keeping with changing times. In other words, through upgrading of construction requirements better drainage results and, through corresponding upgrading of street construction standards, it is expected that there will be a sharp reduction in the cost of maintaining streets constructed under the revised standards as compared to streets constructed heretofore.

Continuing on the report of borough affairs I just want to mention, briefly, the matter of taxes. You are, I am sure, aware of the fact that the tax rate is based on financial requirements to operate the municipality—which includes all matters of administration, education and the cost of being part of the American system of government. The cost of administration has risen slightly because of the desire of the residents to compensate members of the police force on a level more in keeping with present living standards and in line with salary scales existing in nearby communities. The cost of education has risen and will continue to rise with the increase in school attendance. In this regard the voters, once again, exercise the controlling factor over costs. Once a school budget has been accepted by vote of the taxpayers your Mayor and Council have no choice but to incorporate in the tax rate the amount necessary to meet that budget. Hence, the responsibility for the tax rate rests with the taxpayers. Your governing body merely expresses the wishes of the residents.

For the coming year matters to be considered are those still pending from last year as well as the following:

Planning Board—under the comprehensive jurisdiction of this body will fall the following: 1—A master plan; 2—A shade tree commission; 3—Standards to eliminate look-like houses.

The latter two items on the agenda should cost taxpayers nothing and will enhance values of homes.

Fire—measures to establish and enforce a fire prevention ordinance.

Police—measures to modernize the administration of the police department.

Light Industry—means to increase ratables through attracting light manufacturing and other acceptable industries to those parts of the borough designated for industrial use.

Recreation facilities—acquisition of waterfront property presently available for future development for recreational purposes.

In closing, I want to express my appreciation for the degree of cooperation extended me during the past year by borough officials, both elective and appointive, and to enlist the co-operation of all so that our town can progress at an even greater rate than heretofore. As I have mentioned repeatedly in the past I am open at all times to worthwhile suggestions from borough residents and invite all who can to attend meetings for the purpose of contributing their thoughts.

"Thank you, very much."

Invents Phone Lock

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Charles W. Medenbach of East Keansburg, is the recipient of a U. S. patent, entitled "Locking Device for French Phone."

The present day telephone is often referred to as a "French phone." It comprises a base and a hand set, with a switch on the former being held in its open position by the weight of the latter. When the hand set is lifted, an electrical circuit is completed to the operator at the central telephone station, or a circuit is closed so that the usual dial may be manipulated.

The foregoing arrangement is ideal for adults. However in the average home where there are children, they often mimic adults by removing the telephone hand set from its support and thus cause considerable confusion or annoyance. This situation may become so acute on party lines that reasonable use of the telephone by the other subscribers on the line is prevented.

It is the object of Mr. Medenbach's invention to present a solution to this problem and thus he has devised a novel contrivance in the form of a C-shaped clamp, the upper end of which fits over the top surface of the hand set while its lower end fits into the usual open portion of the base directly below the hand set. The lower end of the clamp is provided with a spring-pressed detent that retains it in its position of use.

According to Mr. Medenbach, the clamp of his invention may be snapped quickly and easily into its position of use and likewise may readily be removed by any adult. However, the average child will not anticipate the manner of releasing the clamp or have the strength to do so. Consequently protection is provided against the aforementioned annoyances to which users of telephones are often subjected.

It should be noted that provision may be made for a key which locks the clamp of Mr. Medenbach's invention and thus prevents unauthorized persons from using the telephone.

Application for the patent, which consists of four claims of originality, was filed July 27, 1954.

A cloudburst or gully-buster is the description given to a torrential rain best known as a flash flood. The Weather bureau's official definition of a flash flood is "a local flood which rises and subsides rapidly."

WHAT DOCTORS SAY ABOUT

• Electrocardiographs

Q. Now that doctors have ways of testing the heart with electrical gadgets, isn't it pretty easy to tell when a person has a bad heart?

A. The electrocardiograph is a marvelous device and a great help in diagnosing heart conditions, but it doesn't work like a slot machine. The strip of paper that comes out of the machine doesn't have the diagnosis written out in English. There is simply a series of wavy lines that give clues to trouble. A perfectly good heart will sometimes send out signals that look bad on the strip of paper or a bad heart may broadcast good signals. It is always necessary for the doctor to consider what the machine records and what he knows about the patient. To "read" an electrocardiogram requires a great deal of training and experience.

Answers do not necessarily reflect the opinion of all doctors. The diagnosis and treatment of disease is the function of the patient's personal physician. Questions directed to Science Editors, P.O. Box 396, Madison Sq. Sta., N. Y. 10, N. Y. will be incorporated in these columns when possible.

Fort Donor Plan Begins

FORT MONMOUTH — With the first 1959 visit of the Red Cross bloodmobile scheduled here for Jan. 15, Capt. William L. Graham, post blood-donor chairman, reminded all civilian employees here "of their opportunity to earn blood credits for themselves and their families through participation in the post blood donor program."

Under this family blood credit policy, Capt. Graham pointed out, any civilian employed at Fort Monmouth who donates a single pint of blood during the bloodmobile visits scheduled at the post will be assured that blood needs for himself and members of his immediate family will be met for a period of one year from the date of donation.

A family blood credit for married personnel covers the donor's husband or wife, children and other close relatives residing in the same household who are dependent on the employee.

In the case of single personnel, Capt. Graham said, it covers parents and unmarried sisters and brothers residing within the family unit.

Capt. Graham said this coverage may be extended only to families of civilians actually employed at Fort Monmouth.

U.S. Student Habits Come Under Attack

RUMSON — The seriousness toward study and attitude toward teachers of American high school pupils came under attack by a group of students educated in foreign countries at a panel discussion presented to members of the junior class in Rumson-Fair Haven regional high school recently.

Students from England, Germany, Greece, Netherlands, Scotland and Switzerland stressed their observation that "American high school students don't read enough, study enough, or show sufficient respect to their mentors."

Panel Participants

Renata Cook and Werner Raab from Germany, Susan Hill from England and Roland Marchetti from Switzerland, all of whom are enrolled at Red Bank high school; Margaret O'Neill from Scotland, a senior at Middletown township high school; Michael Landis, a freshman at Long Branch high school, who has been educated in Greece, and Gerald Dulker, a regional junior who is a recent arrival from the Netherlands, composed the discussion group.

The panel was moderated by Herbert A. Korey, regional director of guidance.

The speakers pointed out that in Europe, education beyond the age 14 is a privilege extended only to students who have proven themselves, and college preparatory training is offered only to top-notch student who successfully pass examinations early in their high school career.

The panel members agreed that European schools are more stringent in their requirement of foreign languages than schools they have attended in this country. They also describe mathematics as being taught in combined units rather than in separate year or half-year periods for each course.

'Spare the Rod'

Very few European schools "spare the rod" and physical punishment is not unusual according to the panel members.

"Strap-whipping" is used in Scotland to solve disciplinary problems — while teachers in Greek schools whip students for not studying or not knowing their lessons as well.

Recommendations for changes in American education offered by the former European students included decreasing out teachers' pupil load, organizing trade schools for those students not going to college, and toughening the physical education program.

In the question and answer period that followed, it was brought out that student government has been developed to a much greater extent in this country than abroad.

The program presenting the comparison of educational systems keynoted the new human relations series introduced at Rumson-Fair Haven regional high school by the guidance department.

Subsequent meetings for the 11th grade students at the school — to supplement their study of citizenship education — will feature programs of inter-group education by key public officials including local, state, and national leaders in the human relations field.

The next session will be held Jan. 26, when Dr. John P. Mulligan, assistant commission of education in charge of the division against discrimination in the state department of education, will describe the activities of his organization and the New Jersey discrimination situation.

Group to Undertake New Activities

Bruce Gets Braillist Certificate

Library of Congress Approves Work Of Fair Haven Man

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Robert Bruce of 67 Hance rd., Fair Haven, has been certified as a braillist by the division for the blind of the Library of Congress.

The certificate qualifies Mr. Bruce, who has transcribed six volumes in braille as textbook material for blind children attending regular sighted schools, to transcribe books into braille on a volunteer basis for the Library of Congress.

Mr. Bruce was awarded the certificate upon approval of a 60-page trial manuscript in braille, which he submitted to the Library of Congress as the final step in the lengthy qualification process which includes a detailed course in braille transcription.

The 14-lesson course, required of all prospective braillists, was conducted by the braille group of the Telephone Pioneers of America, a nationwide organization of men and women who have attained 20 or more years of service with the Bell Telephone system. Mr. Bruce is a retired employee of the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

The braille group, sponsored by several chapters of the Telephone Pioneers, was organized in 1955 and has several hundred volunteer members from various parts of the Bell system who devote much of their leisure time to transcribing books into braille, recording "Talking Books" and performing other related services for the blind.

Units have been formed in New York city; Newark and Passaic; Milwaukee, Wis., and Buffalo, N. Y. The Library of Congress and other organizations depend on such volunteer groups for braille manuscripts of books for which the need would not justify quantity production by a braille printing house. The selection of books to be transcribed is made by the Library of Congress, rather than the individual braillists, in order to avoid duplication and secure manuscripts of those books for which the need is greatest.

3 More Weeks For Aliens

NEWARK — E. P. Bouchard, Nw Jersey district director of the U. S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, said today that aliens in New Jersey have only three more weeks in which to comply with the federal law requiring that aliens report their address to the government during January of each year.

The immigration official urged all aliens who have not yet complied, to go as soon as possible to the nearest post office or Immigration Service office to file the report.

Parents or guardians must file the report for alien children under 14 years of age.

Mr. Bouchard said the address report is required each year from all aliens except those in diplomatic status, representatives of certain international organizations and persons admitted temporarily as agricultural laborers.

He pointed out willful failure to comply carries penalties, including a fine and deportation. He estimated that 160,000 aliens will report their addresses in New Jersey before Jan. 31.

'58 Agricultural Products Estimated at $353,100,000

TRENTON — The on-the-farm value of New Jersey agricultural products during 1958 totaled $353,100,000, an increase of about 1.5 per cent over the revised figures for 1957, according to preliminary estimates of the New Jersey crop reporting service.

Livestock products accounted for $203,200,000 of the total, a decline of $1,400,000 from the year before. The only category of products in the livestock group to show an increase was meat animals, which rose 15.6 per cent in value to $21,000,000.

Crops were valued at $149,900,000, up 4.5 per cent from the year before. Record-breaking yields were common in 1958 and the combined total production of all grain, vegetable, fruit, and hay crops was up 26 per cent. Lower prices prevailed, however, and total value did not keep step with total production.

Eggs retained their first-place rank among New Jersey farm products despite a 2.8 per cent decline in value. The 1958 production was worth $80,300,000, compared with $92,900,000 in 1957. Milk was in second place with $66,500,000, one per cent less than the previous year.

Vegetables ranked third, the same as last year, but declined 3.5 per cent in production value to $52,800,000. Nursery and greenhouse products, New Jersey's fourth most important agricultural commodity group, registered a 1.7 per cent increase in value to $32,500,000. Poultry products other than eggs, were worth $25,400,000 in 1958, compared with $26,400,000 in 1957.

Grains and soybeans showed the largest percentage increase in value of any group of New Jersey agricultural products, rising 63.16 per cent over 1957, when yields were sharply cut by the prolonged dry weather. They rose from ninth to sixth place with a total value of $21,000,000. Meat animals were in seventh place.

Other products listed in the preliminary estimates for 1958, in order of rank, are as follows: hay, $17,300,000, up 20.9 per cent; tree fruits, $12,200,000, down 12.9 per cent; berries, $6,600,000, down 8.8 per cent; white potatoes, $5,300,000, down 19.2 per cent, and miscellaneous agricultural products, $1,800,000, up 15.3 per cent.

County to Make Survey Of Population Characteristics

FREEHOLD — The Monmouth county planning board has announced it would begin a project this week to obtain information on population characteristics and composition in new residential developments in Monmouth county.

The census will be carried out on a sampling basis developed after extensive evaluation of the price ranges of all new residential developments.

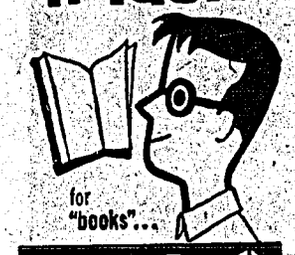

In commenting on the survey, Charles M. Pike, Monmouth county planning director, stated "that although 1960 census information will be available shortly, it will not be possible to separate information for new residents of the county."

The county planning board, he said, has long recognized the need for this type of study "since new housing draws a selective type of family." The work will be carried out as part of a population study financed in part through a grant from the Housing and Home Finance agency.

Mr. Pike stated "It is vitally important that information of the type being tabulated be available for the use of public and private agencies in the county to enable them to plan for necessary facilities and services resulting from the tremendous growth taking place in the county."

Mr. Pike stressed that the cooperation of everyone enumerated would be appreciated and was essential to the success of the program. The information will be confidential and appear only in statistical form. The census information will be summarized and analyzed as part of a population report available in March.

Will Offer Bill to Aid Joint Schools

ELIZABETH (AP)—State Sen. Robert C. Crane (R-Union) said Tuesday he will introduce legislation to offset a $255,242 loss in state school aid by seven regional districts in 1959-60.

The seven districts, all operative for at least five years, face the losses because of a December ruling made by the attorney general's office.

The ruling stipulated that local fair share of basic school costs in these districts must be calculated on the basis of four mills for every dollar of equalized tax valuation, instead of three mills.

Freehold Regional high school stands to be affected by the ruling. Rumson-Fair Haven and Monmouth Regional high schools will not be immediately.

Asks Furman Review

Sen. Crane said he had asked Attorney Gen. David Furman to review the decision because regional districts already had their 1959-60 budgets certified by the state department of education.

Furman's office had indicated that the three-mill rate is good only for the first five years a regional district is in operation. The four mill rate then comes into being for five years and the district must calculate its share of school costs on a five-mill basis.

Regular districts already do this.

The law was designed to stimulate the formation of regional school districts.

However, some of the districts feel that the 1954 measure did not really take effect until 1955, which would mean the higher rate would not go into effect until 1960.

Sen. Crane said he agreed with the districts holding this contention and added that he had the support of Sen. Wesley Lance (R-Hunterdon), incoming Senate president.

Morris, Passaic, Monmouth, Burlington and Camden counties were urged to ... bipartisan sponsorship of the bill.

The Garden State Parkway in New Jersey in 1957 collected more than $2,000 in tolls mailed in by motorists who did not have proper change at the highways automatic toll gates.

State Hospital Safe Driving Course Starts

MARLBORO — The safety committee of Marlboro State hospital is conducting a free, 10-minute driver safety-rater test for all hospital employees who drive motor vehicles.

The test is being given daily, Monday through Friday, for a two-week period in the personnel department. It is under the supervision of Sgt. John Matey of Fords and Kurt Schoenfelder of Port Monmouth, members of the hospital police department. Thomas M. Russo, hospital personnel director, is chairman of the safety committee.

The test measures visual acuity, color recognition, depth perception, field of vision, and reaction time. No record is being kept of the employee's score and it will in no way affect employment with the hospital. The test is given for "the personal guidance of employees in order to help them correct faults of which they may be unaware and to promote safer driving habits." Permission is being given by the hospital administration to take the test during working hours.

Dr. J. Berkeley Gordon, hospital medical director, said he is "happy to be able to co-operate with Governor Meyner's state traffic safety program and hoped that all hospital employees would avail themselves of the opportunity offered to help protect themselves, their families, and others on the nation's highways."

Tool Engineers Meet Tuesday

EATONTOWN—Monmouth chapter, American Society of Tool Engineers, will commence its winter educational meetings Tuesday at 6:30 p. m. in Old Orchard Country club.

The program will be a color movie-lecture, "Resistance Metal Gathering." It describes a modern metal working process where heat generated within metals by resistance to the passage of electric current is used to shape metals much in the same manner as resistance welding.

There also will be a talk on "Resistance Welding" by F. R. Woodward of the Taylor-Winfield corporation of Warren, Ohio.

New Wide Angle Camera

Dr. Eugene Trachtman, 3 Monmouth st., Red Bank, is shown with the special purpose extreme wide angle camera that he has designed.

Dr. Trachtman used the camera to take aerial pictures of the Naval Air Station, Lakehurst, recently. The special camera was lowered on a 13-foot boom from an airship. The boom was needed to avoid photographing parts of the airship.

The camera has little resemblance to an ordinary camera in either appearance or method of operation. The special camera's mechanism, when tripped, causes the entire camera to rotate. It makes three complete revolutions about its axis in one second. During the first turn the camera picks up momentum and reaches a constant rate of speed. At the start of the second revolution the special slot-type shutter opens and remains open during the full second revolution, giving an effective shutter speed of 1-250 second. The shutter closes at the start of the third revolution and the camera slows down and stops.

New Communications Center Is Developed

FORT MONMOUTH — Development of what is called a new highly mobile, air transportable communications center — designed to direct fast moving U. S. Army forces — was announced last week.

The system — which is said to have an extremely high degree of mobility — can be set down almost anywhere by helicopter, and be flown out immediately for relocation elesewhere.

It can also be moved rapidly from place to place on conventional Army trucks.

Developed by the Army Signal corps, it provides the vital nucleus for a communications network of radio, telephone, telegraph and teletypewriter combat links.

Remote Destination

The system can be carried by helicopters to a remote destination in hours rather than days — or can be set up on otherwise inaccessible mountain tops.

With its communications tentacles spread over hundreds of miles, the new system can get an urgent message through to a distant outpost even with direct lines broken or destroyed.

Speed and flexibility in communications would be vital on a battlefield where troops would have to be continously on the move and widely dispersed to avoid annihilation by a nuclear warhead, the Army says.

For quick transportation and adder versatility, the center is made up of separate aluminum houses or "shelters"—each fully equipped and independent.

These can be hooked up quickly to fit any battle situation.

Small centers for the front lines would have two or three shelters — larger headquarters would have as many as 24.

Electric Supply

Each shelter carries its own independent supply of electricity, but can also plug into a central power source.

High priority combat messages flowing into the center from combat groups and other sources would be immediately available to the Army field commander.

And the same network of communications lines carries his message with reflex speed to higher headquarters or to Army combat elements.

The new system — the first fully air transportable message center of its kind — is the result of 12 years of design and research.

It was developed under the guidance of the U. S. Army Signal Research and Development laboratory.

Employers Must File By Jan. 31

CAMDEN — Important employment tax forms recently sent employers should be filed no later than Jan. 31.

Chris L. Gross, district director of Internal Revenue, who called attention to the deadline, said Internal Revenue Service publication No. 393, "Your Employment Tax Forms," recently was mailed to all employers in the Camden district.

Mr. Gross said the package contains:

Form W-2, "Withholding Tax Statement-1958" to be furnished to employees not later than Jan. 31. The booklet contains enough forms for six employees.

Form W-3, "Reconciliation of Income Tax Withheld from Wages," to be filed by the employer not later than Jan. 31. Form W-3 should be filed with the last quarterly return (form 941) for 1958.

Form W-4, "Employee's Withholding Exemption Certificate," for use by new employees before receiving their first pay by other employees who need or wish to change a previous certificate.

Form 941a, Continuation sheet for the employer who has more employers than can be listed on his quarterly return on form 941.

Form 7018, "Order for Employment Tax Forms," for requesting additional forms from the district director.

Publication 213, poster reminding employees of the importance of claiming correct number of withholding exemptions.

Check List, List for determining whether a need exists for filing form 940, the annual return of employers of four or more under the Federal Unemployment Tax act.

Mr. Gross said this reminder is issued so employers will not discard the forms without realizing their importance. In case some have already done so, additional forms can be obtained from his office at 808 Market st., Camden 1.

Thrift Week Is Scheduled

The banks of Monmouth county have designated the period of Jan. 17-23 as Franklin Thrift Observance Week, Harold W. Walling, president of the Monmouth County Bankers and Clearing House association has announced.

The county program will be coordinated with the National Thrift committee's objective of commemorating the memory of Benjamin Franklin, recognized throughout the world as the "Father of Thrift."

The author of the Poor Richard sayings was born Jan. 17, 1706.

The theme of this year's observance will be "Save — The Art of Making Money Plenty," taken from one of Franklin's philisophical writings.

Mr. Walling, who also is vice president of People's National bank, Keyport, said the 21 banks would feature this theme in advertising and various other ways.

The association's speakers' bureau will schedule appropriate talks during the week. Organizations in the county may obtain the services of a banker-speaker, without cost by contacting Ernest Bencivenga, vice president of the First National bank, Freehold. He is chairman of the bureau.

Increase in Business Zone In Shrewsbury Seen Soon

SHREWSBURY — An ordinance which will extend the business zone 80 feet deeper along Newman Springs rd. will probably be introduced at council's Jan. 20 meeting.

Council Tuesday night instructed Leon Reussille, borough attorney, to draw up the measure for its next meeting.

Mayor Bernard B. White said members of the council and planning board inspected the area involved Dec. 27 and said the council "agreed fully" with the planning board's recommendation to deepen the business zone.

The planning board made its recommendation at a meeting early in December.

Action to increase the zone comes six weeks after Murray Rosen, Red Bank builder, started suit to upset a variance granted to Joseph J. Fratantonio to build an A&P market on Newman Springs rd. near the site of the old Red Bank Towners baseball field.

The 80-foot strip to be added to the business zone would be taken from the R-3 zone and would make the business zone 310 feet deep along Newman Springs rd. from Laurel st. to the Jersey Central railroad crossing.

A major issue in the granting of the variance for the A&P market was a 50-foot parcel in the R-3 zone which would be used solely for parking. The proposed market would contain 21,000 square feet and be built at a cost of $180,000.

Teaches Cha-Cha To Dance Masters

Mrs. Lois McDonald, who conducts her classes in ballroom dancing in Fair Haven and Rumson, was invited to be one of the teachers at a recent meeting of the Dance Masters of America held in the Sheraton-McAlpin hotel in New York City. She taught the Cha-Cha to a group of 125 instructors.

Mrs. McDonald has been a member of the Dance Masters five years. Last summer she conducted classes in ballroom dancing at Driftwood Beach club, Sea Bright, and Monmouth Beach club.

GOP Mayor, 2 Democrats, In Raritan

Mayor Harry P. Seamen was the only Republican to survive a Democratic near-sweep of the Raritan township election in November. He won a second term by a margin of 93 votes while Democrats William R. Greene and Mrs. Jeanne C. McDonough won as tax assessor and tax collector, respectively, by margins of more than 300 votes. Mr. Greene will take over as assessor July 1. The other two victors were sworn in New Years day. Shown above, left to right, are Township Clerk Wayne B. Darland, Mrs. McDonough, Mayor Seamen and Mr. Greene. Former Tax Collector Mrs. Mabel I. Walling did not seek re-election in November.

Fathers' Night Is Slated

HIGHLANDS—At a recent meeting of the Parent-Teacher association of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Catholic school, announcement was made of "Fathers Night" and auction Tuesday, Jan. 27.

Mrs. William E. Kornek, first vice president, conducted the meeting in absence of Mrs. Luke Penta, president, who was reported ill.

Mother Mary Clara, principal, announced that diocesan tests will be held in the school Jan. 16 and 17.

Mrs. Ruth Wood, sunshine chairman, was commended for her promptness in sending cards. Proceeds from a special collection was used for baskets for the needy families for Christmas.

Mrs. Kornek, chairman of the Triple S blue stamp project, said those who wish to participate can either send the stamps to school, leave them at the rectory, or place them in a box in the vestibule of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kelleher were thanked for obtaining the candy for the children's Christmas party.

Rev. Joseph J. Donnelly, pastor, extended thanks for co-operation the past year.

Raritan Club Gives Decorations Prizes

$30,136 Increase Forecast In Shrewsbury School Budget

SHREWSBURY — A $30,136.82 increase in the 1959-60 school budget was forecast at a special meeting of the board of education Monday night.

The board tentatively adopted a budget calling for expenditures of $372,316.82. Last year's budget was $342,180.

Public hearing on the budget will be Monday, Jan. 26, at 8 p. m.

Major causes for the increase are, tuition to Red Bank high school, and salary increments to teachers.

An increase in the tuition charges and, a jump in the number of students attending Red Bank high school caused a rise of $19,752 over the 1958-59 budget figure of $73,380. The new figure is $93,132.

Teachers' salaries show an increase of $12,139 from $142,000 in 1958-59, to $154,139 in the 1959-60 budget. The hike also provides for hiring an additional teacher.

Enrollment to Rise

The two increases, salaries and tuition, provide for a jump of $31,991 over last year. Decreases in other appropriations for 1959-60 drop the overall rise to $30,136.82.

Enrollment in the school is expected to jump by 40 pupils from 720 this year to 760 during 1959-60.

Also headed for a big increase is the local tax levy—from $286,179 in 1958-59, to $313,273.82 in 1959-60. State aid will also be increased, from $35,647 to $38,767 in 1959-60.

Total appropriations for current expenses in the 1959-60 budget will rise by $35,266, to $319,081. Last year's figure was $283,815.

A $1,200 drop is forecast for repairs and replacements, from $5,800 to $4,600 in 1959-60, and the debt service will drop by $3,929.18, from $52,565 to $48,635.82.

Tax Collections Hit 93.44%

SHREWSBURY—Tax collections in 1958 here hit 93.44 per cent, Councilman John W. VanBrunt told the mayor and council Tuesday night.

The borough also came out with a $3,361.11 unexpended balance from the 1958-59 budget, Mr. VanBrunt said. A total of $468,422.56 had been appropriated for municipal purposes, and $465,081.45 was spent.

Councilman James W. Bly reported that fire damage during the past year amounted to $1,500, and that the fire company spent 11 hours fighting 17 fires.

A letter was received from Monmouth County Prosecutor Vincent P. Keuper addressed to Police Chief Raymond Mass asking that a safety survey be made of all grade crossings in the borough. The request for the survey was made by the state Public Utilities commission, Mr. Keuper's letter said. Councilman Edgar W. Heller, Jr., police committee chairman, said a study would be made of the Patterson ave. crossing.

License Time

Mayor Bernard B. White reminded residents that the time has come once again to purchase dog licenses. Letters will be sent to residents reminding them of the licenses needed.

Councilman William W. Curdt reported that he has been named a "captain" for the advanced contributions for the Red Bank first aid and rescue squad's $75,000 fund drive.

Council also heard Mr. Heller report that a street light would be installed on Queen Anne dr. by Jersey Central Power and Light company this week.

Estimate 15½ Per Cent Hike In Highlands School Tax

HIGHLANDS — The board of education Monday night introduced a proposed 1959-1960 budget calling for a 15½ per cent increase in the school tax levy.

In dollars and cents, this means that taxpayers here will have to pay $15,808 more than last year to keep the school system going. The budget lists $150,346 as the amount to be raised by taxation this year, whereas $134,538 was needed last year.

The proposed budget, which is set at $226,828 as compared to $205,812 for the current year, will raise the local tax rate an estimated six points.

William Feste, board president, attributed the budget hike to the following:

A $10,500 increase in high school tuition.

An increase of $4,000 in transportation costs.

Increases of $400 in utility expenses and $730 in social security administration costs.

Mr. Feste noted that Atlantic Highlands high school tuition rate has been raised from $495 to $525. He pointed out that the borough will send an estimated 165 students there this year.

Teacher Raises

Teachers will receive salary increases ranging from $200 to $380. Joseph R. Tiscornia, school principal, said that some teachers will receive a flat $200 increase provided by state law, while others will receive the annual increment plus a $150 adjustment to place them on the salary guide.

Mr. Tiscornia will get a $500 raise, upping his salary to $7,000 a year.

The total appropiation for teachers' salaries is $66,000 as compared to $62,000 last year.

Frank Bolen, finance chairman, pointed out that the board will use $20,000 from a surplus fund of $29,304.80. He said that this is the smallest surplus figure the board has had in many years.

He said that part of the remaining $9,304.80 in surplus would have to cover the over-expenditure of the transportation account. Mr. Bolen said that the loss of railroad service forced the board to contract for buses to transport children to Atlantic Highlands. The cost of the buses was not figured in the current budget, he said.

The board has set aside $10,000 for repairs and replacements; $8,000 for capital outlay; and $8,025 for debt service. The bulk of the budget appropiations will go for current expense, which is set at $200,803.

Opposition

The proposed financial schedule ran into opposition from Mrs. Florence P. Adair, board member, and Samuel Silberblatt, board vice president.

Mrs. Adair objected because she did not like the idea of a voting on a "packaged" budget she had not seen before.

Mr. Silberblatt voted against introduction of the budget stating "I was frozen out on my dental program." He had sought to have $1,000 added to the budget to create a dental clinic.

The idea was rejected by the board Dec. 15, but Mr. Silberblatt made a second attempt to get the program started.

Mr. Silberblatt wanted to take $2,000 that was in the surplus fund for the program and add money to the capital outlay account to finance the clinic.

Mr. Feste informed him that money could not be added to the budget because the capital outlay figures had been sent to the state Dec. 12. He said that this was done according to law so that the district's state building aid could be determined.

Enrollment Drop

The board secretary, Mrs. Theresa Horan, was authorized to advertise the budget and set a date for a public hearing. Mrs. Horan said that the hearing would be held sometime between Jan. 13 and Jan. 31.

In other business, Mr. Tiscornia reported that school enrollment for December had dropped to 382 students, a decrease of eight from November.

RESUME STUDIES

MATAWAN — Miss Ruth McDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin McDonald of Ravine dr., has returned to the Sheppard Enoch Pratt hospital at Towson, Md., after spending the week-end with her parents. She will complete her three months' training there Jan. 18 and will return to the Episcopal hospital in Philadelphia to resume her nursing studies. Miss Susan McDonald, Ruth's sister, returned to Glassboro State college Sunday after spending her vacation with her parents, and sisters, Margaret and Alvina.

The Pendum Swings—GOP Takes Over

Union Beach Republicans took control of the governing body New Year's day as Matthew J. Hanas, center in photo, and Robert Holland, left, were sworn in by Borough Clerk Alfred T. Hennessy, Jr. The two men defeated Democrats John J. McArthur and Robert H. Schmidt by a narrow margin in the November election, giving Republicans a 4 to 2 majority in the council. The borough's mayor, Boyle K. Pattison, is also a Republican. Although the GOP won the council posts, local Democrats still outvoted Republicans in all the November state and county contests.

Keansburg Newspaper Plant, Tavern Destroyed by Fire

KEANSBURG — The Keansburg News, local weekly newspaper whose building was destroyed by fire New Year's day, will be published today on schedule, spokesmen for Otto Barth, publisher, announced.

The blaze, cause of which remains unknown, destroyed both the News building and adjacent Shamrock bar and grill on Beachway at Highland ave.

Fire Chief William Snyder estimated the loss at $75,000. The fire chief and borough police are conducting an investigation of the fire.

The blaze apparently started at the rear of the tavern building, Chief Snyder said. Early witnesses reported seeing trash burning in a container at the back of the building.

A bus driver, William Bates, discovered the fire and turned in the alarm at 11:30 a. m. Firemen reported the frame buildings were "pretty well gone" when they arrived at the scene.

The tavern had been closed for the winter season. The license and building had been sold recently by the Keansburg National bank to Arthur Stock, Sea Girt, and Edward McLoughlin, Trenton. The Keansburg News building was owned by the New Point Comfort Beach company.

Mr. Barth said the News business office has been moved to 320 Main st. The newspaper management had planned to move to that address in the next several weeks to obtain added space. Salvageable print shop equipment is being moved to another building at 71 Beachway, where it is hoped it will be ready for operation within two or three weeks, spokesmen for the paper said.

Meanwhile, other print shops are aiding the newspaper with typesetting tasks. This week's edition will be printed in the Keyport Weekly plant.

Mr. Barth estimated his equipment loss at $35,000 and said only $15,000 is covered by insurance. The publisher collapsed at the scene and was treated by the first aid squad.

Assisting the two borough fire companies were firemen of the Belford Independent company, Middletown, which sent its 75-foot aerial ladder truck, and the West Keansburg company of Raritan township.

New Jersey had its own tea party in December, 1774, a year after the famed Boston affair. A group of patriots disguised as Indians burned a tea cargo landed at Greenwich, N. J.

"We have nothing except the clothes on our backs," said Mrs. Johnson.

She said the fire was believed to have been caused by faulty wiring.

Living in the house, in addition to the Johnsons and their two children, were Mr. Johnson's mother and his sister and her four children.

Mrs. Johnson said her family will accept anything—food, furniture, clothing or donations.

Mayor, 2 Councilmen Sworn at Fair Haven

FAIR HAVEN — Mayor Edgar V. Denise and Councilmen Russell H. Minton and Eugene Magee — successful candidates for re-election in November—were sworn into office at last Thursday's reorganization meeting.

For Mr. Denise, it is the start of his tenth term in office.

Mr. Minton is beginning his seventh term while Mr. Magee is starting his third.

At the same time, Mr. Minton was unanimously elected council president, replacing Councilman James L. Davison. It is the governing body's policy to alternate the post each year.

Mr. Denise, in summing up council's last year, said it was a "successful one," although the borough is entering the new year with a number of "problems."

Chief among these, he said, is the tax situation and the revaluation program, as well as the new borough hall and the riverfront situation.

To Draw Up Budget

The governing body will meet with the mayor next Tuesday to begin drawing up the municipal budget for the new year.

There was no indication if taxes for municipal purposes will go up, down—or stay the same.

While the borough has completed its revaluation program, it was decided by the governing body recently not to put the new figures into effect this year.

"The revaluation matter is something we still have to work out," Mr Denise said.

Council has announced its intention to put up a new $50,000 borough hall on River rd., near Fair Haven rd., but the plans have been halted pending the recommendations of a library study committee recently appointed by Mr. Denise.

The new borough hall will include a library—but a number of local groups are in favor of an even bigger one than council planned to provide. The governing body decided to hold off any construction until the group's report is in.

Riverfront Situation

In regard to the riverfront situation, another Mr. Denise-appointed committee—to study that area—submitted a number of recommendations.

Council now has them under study—and may appropriate funds in its new budget to take care of the immediate suggestions put forth by the committee.

In other business at the meeting, Mr. Denise renamed the same council committees for 1959.

They include, with the first name mentioned as chairman:

Streets, community activities, docks and parks — Tony E. Hunting, Magee and Jesse J. McIlray.

Fire, first aid and insurance — Magee, McIlray and Hunting.

Public buildings, sanitation, library and zoning — McIlray, John C. Damico and Davison.

Public utilities, sidewalks, curbing and public relations — Davison, Hunting and Minton.

Police and civilian defense — Damico, Magee, and Davison.

Finance, printing, and supplies — Minton and Magee.

Other Appointments

The following appointments, made by Mr. Denise were approved by council:

Roy W. Nelson, borough clerk; Joseph J. Seaman, auditor; William R. Blair, Jr., attorney; George W. Curchin, treasurer; Henry F. Labrecque, engineer, and Arthur Davison, official driver and borough mechanic.

Charles Moraller, fire company recording officer; Mrs. Janet Rowland, director of welfare; Leonard Mack, heating inspector; Melvin P. Stout, air raid warden chief, and Robert Matthews, civilian defense director.

Mr. Nelson, certifying official to make certificates as to liability for municipal improvements; Mr. Curchin, searcher for municipal liens; Mr. Nelson, official to certify subdivision approval, and Thomas W. Carlock, building inspector.

On Zoning Board

Reappointed to the zoning board were:

George S. Schenck and Howard Isherwood, both two years, and Charles Soden, one year.

Reappointed to the planning board were:

Mr. Denise, Mr. Magee and Mr. Carlock, all one year; Thomas J. Smith and Mrs. Edward Leddy, both two years, and Mahlon Parsons, Middletown, adviser, one year.

Reappointed to the library board were:

Mrs. Alfred Brower, four years, and Col. C. R. Haig, one year.

Reappointed to the board of health were:

William Olsen and Dr. John Powers, both two years.

Reappointed to the local assistance board were:

George Egner, three years, and Mr. Damico, one year.

Special Police

Reappointed as special police officers were:

Walter F. O'Neill, Raymond T. McCue, Oscar Becker, Arthur Davison, Frank J. Perry, James Flynn, Mr. Carlock, Obadiah Hallenbake, Mr. Stout, John H. Fix, Allen Sears, Matilda Arnold, Lester Roome and Mrs. Nelson.

Approved as fire police were:

Carl Burnside, James Butler, Wallace Bennett, Peter Brokaw, Edward Cook, Joseph Cross, Werner Felsmann, Henry Harvey, Noel Lartaud, Mr. McIlray, Walter Morton, William Nye, Mr. Perry, Mr. Stout, James Stalfa and William Tansey.

Council withheld approval of Randolph Cook and Edward Porter until they successfully complete physical examinations.

Fire Chiefs Sworn

Also sworn in at the meeting were Bernard Rosenberg, fire chief; Dominick Paolucci, deputy chief; Pat Halleran, first assistant chief, and Richard Pettigrew, second assistant chief.

Mr. Rosenberg replaces James Connor.

The fire company—under Mr. Connor's direction—came in for much praise at the meeting by the governing body. They were cited for the "fine job" they did during the past year as well as for their co-operation with other municipal organizations.

Also praised was the first aid squad.

Mr. Denise announced the officers of the first aid squad for the new year:

Mr. Matthews, captain; Mr. Halleran, first lieutenant, and Mr. Lartaud, second lieutenant.

Hunting Thanks Groups

At the suggestion of Mr. Hunting, the governing body thanked the many civic, church and educational groups in the borough "for their outstanding work during the past year."

"Such organizations as the Lions club, the Garden club, the Chamber of Commerce, and our church groups—to name only a few—have been a great help to all of us during the year," Mr. Hunting said. "They deserve to be congratulated and thanked."

Mr. Denise agreed.

"They all help to make up the fine community spirit we have here in Fair Haven," the mayor said.

The official borough depositories for 1959 will be:

Merchants Trust company, Monmouth County National bank, Mainstay, Federal Savings and Loan, Freehold National bank, and the Shadow Lawn Savings and Loan association.

It was also voted by the governing body that the tax collector be authorized to charge six per cent interest on delinquent taxes and assessments.

On the recommendation of Mr. Nelson, the mayor and council voted to put into operation a new payroll system—called far more efficient—for borough employees.

Council will continue to hold its meetings on the second and fourth Mondays of the month.

Bnai Israel Youth Attend Convention

Five members of the youth group of Congregation Bnai Israel attended the national United Synagogue youth convention last week in Buffalo, N. Y.

They were Kenneth Kalman, Arthur Siegal, Melvin Fink, Harold Snedcof and Miss Diane Krongelb.

The Red Bank delegates cast votes for national officers and participated in study group programs and meetings when the organization's constitution was changed.

On the social side, delegates were taken on sightseeing tours, were guests at a dance, and participated in workshop meetings where they learned Israeli dances.

The Red Bank study group met Saturday at the home of Miss Judy Long on 85 West Front st. The discussion was in charge of Rabbi Arthur H. Hershon. They were guests Saturday night at a dance in Metuchen, held by a youth group in that city.

The Red Bank group will hold a bowling party Sunday, Jan. 18, between 3 and 5 p. m. at the Red Bank Recreation Center on Newman Springs rd.

Guiney Sees Higher Taxes In Highlands

HIGHLANDS — This borough is in for several "lean financial years," according to Mayor Cornelius J. Guiney, Jr.

Mr. Guiney made that prediction this week, after the school board introduced a proposed 1959-1960 budget calling for an estimated six-point increase in the tax rate.

He said that everything would be done on the municipal level to hold the line against the rising tax rate in prospect for the community.

He said that "the road department budget will be cut to nothing" in order to reduce municipal spending. "The borough will spend only what is necessary to keep one man and one truck operating in that department," Mr. Guiney said.

"We can not cut the salary of borough employees," he added, "as they are the lowest paid of any municipal officials in the area."

Mr. Guiney pointed out that the refund of $10,000, paid by Gothard V Kadenbach for a 4½-acre tract of land adjacent to the Twin Lights, also would hike the tax rate.

Mr. Kadenbach bought the property at public auction in November, 1957, but the transaction was voided because the borough had not foreclosed on all the lots in the tract. This could add eight points to the rate, Mr. Guiney said.

He also noted that the revaluation program in the borough will affect the rate.

Capital improvement spending by the borough will have to wait, he said, "though we will have to buy a new road grader." He said that the old one is beyond repair.

He said that new business ratables will not materialize until the court litigation over the zoning ordinance is settled.

Two motels were scheduled to be built on Scenic dr., Mr. Guiney said, but court action has stopped those plans.

According to Mr. Guiney, Otto Gillig, owner of the Ship Ahoy motel, Sea Bright, has dropped his plans to build a motel, and Robert M. Jackson, Rumson, who planned to build the other motel, has decided to wait until the zoning dispute is settled.

GOP Foothold in Matawan Twp.

Republican Peter J. Waters, who scored an upset victory over Democratic Committeeman Salvatore F. Vena in the November contest in Matawan township, was sworn in Friday, along with Mrs. Pauline K. Behr, a Democrat, who will fill out a two-year unexpired term as tax collector. Mr. Waters campaigned against what he termed 'one-man control' and urged that the committee conduct night meetings rather than afternoon sessions. Mrs. Behr replaces former Tax Collector Charles J. Kelly. Shown above, left to right, are Mr. Waters, Mrs. Behr, Township Clerk Mrs. Rose K. Wenzel, Mayor John Marz, Jr., and Committeeman Stephen J. Kalieta.

Discolored Water Supply Scored by Raritan Citizens

RARITAN TOWNSHIP — Mayor Harry P. Seamen, in response to complaints from residents Friday night, agreed to contact the Public Utilities commission concerning discolobration of the local water supply.

Residents complained to the township committee that water supplied by the West Keansburg Water company was discolored and was ruining clothing.

Edward J. Fischer, who was defeated as a Democratic candidate for mayor in the November elections, produced a sample of the orange-colored water which he said came from a faucet in his home.

Mr. Seamen told Mr. Fischer that he did not need a sample of the water as he had the same trouble in his home.

One woman resident, who said she was new in the community, asked whether the water was safe to drink.

Mr. Seamen informed residents that the recent water discoloration was due to a damaged filter at the water plant. He said that he had been in conference with the company officials who assured him that the trouble had been corrected.

Ask Action

Residents still not satisfied with the company's reason for the situation asked Mr. Seamen to contact the PUC.

Mr. Seamen said that it would be better if the taxpayers contacted the utilities agency, as private complaints carry more weight than municipal intercession.

The committee set Jan. 19 for receiving bids on a dump truck for the road department. Committeeman Anthony De Maio said the new truck will replace an old vehicle in the department which is constantly breaking down.

Former police Lt. Charles Mack, who was not reappointed to the part-time force, turned his badges over to the committee stating, "I hope these do somebody else more good than they did me."

"I was proud to wear them until last year," he said, "but I couldn't agree with the police commissioner so I was dropped."

Mr. De Maio told Mr. Mack that it was not a personal matter, and that he (Mr. Mack) had a chance for a departmental hearing, but did not take advantage of that opportunity.

Inactive Since May

Mr. De Maio told The Register that Mr. Mack has not been assigned duties on the force since May.

He went on to state that the committee felt that Mr. Mack had not shown any interest in his position when he failed to ask for a hearing, so he was not reappointed.

Mayor Seamen informed the committee that he would meet with officials in Keyport to discuss a drainage condition on Clark st. A letter was received from the borough clerk in Keyport asking for a meeting on the problem.

The committee passed a resolution refunding all but $250 of a $6,000 bond to the H. L. Realty company, developers of Foxwood Homes. The $250 will remain in escrow, officials said, pending correction of a drainage problem on one of the property sites in the development.

A temporary budget of $34,900 was adopted to run the township until the 1959 municipal budget is adopted.

Mrs. Warke Heads Group

RUMSON — Mrs. Thomas Warke was installed as president of the Women's association of the Rumson Presbyterian church last night.

Other officers are:

Mrs. M. A. Carvalho, recording secretary; Mrs. William Scalzo, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Harry Kettel, treasurer; Mrs. Charles S. Callman, fellowship chairman; Mrs. Marion Krouse, program chairman, and Mrs. George Brown, world service chairman.

The installation was conducted by Rev. Edward J. Costello, assistant pastor.

Slate Meeting On 1959 Appeal

EATONTOWN — A meeting will be held Monday at 8 p. m. in the borough hall to decide if a Community Appeal fund drive will be held here this year.

Plans for the public meeting were discussed last week at a meeting in the home of Postmaster Francis Bruce, Maple ave. He announced that he would be willing to serve as chairman of the campaign for 1959.

Mr. Bruce said residents expressed interest in having the appeal revived. Spencer Patterson, chairman of the 1956-57 drive, reported no appeal drive was held last year because of organizational difficulties and lack of interest and support.

If residents attending the Monday night meeting approve the appeal drive, plans will be made to run the campaign in February.

Middletown Youths Win Academy Nominations

Karl J. Ege, son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl L. Ege, Locust Point rd., Locust, has received notification of his nomination for appointment to the U. S. Air Force academy, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Academy appointments are made on the basis of tests given the 10 nominees from each district.

Two Soldiers Face Hearing In Eatontown

EATONTOWN — Two Fort Monmouth soldiers will face a hearing in municipal court Jan. 17 on four charges.

They were identified by police as David Howard, 23, and Ellison Alston, 37, both assigned to headquarters company.

Chief William Zadorozny gave this account:

The soldiers drove through a traffic light at rt. 35 and rt. 71 Saturday night.

Patrolman William Hutting took up the chase and stopped the vehicle—driven by Howard.

A small fight broke out, the chief said, and Patrolman Hutting called Oceanport police for help.

After being taken to the police station, Chief Zadorozny said Alston became noisy and had to be subdued. He was charged with assault and battery.

Howard was charged with drunk driving, not having a driver's license, and carrying a concealed weapon in his car. The chief said a knife was found.

Howard is free on $225 bail and Alston on $100 bail after a hearing before Magistrate Peter J. Edwardsen.

Pre-Marital Course Set

The Family Life bureau of the Catholic diocese of Trenton has announced the appointment of the Rev. Joseph A. Bischoff, assistant pastor of St. James church, Red Bank, as director of the Red Bank Center for Pre-Marital Instruction.

Rev. Joseph A. Bischoff

The center will begin its annual nine-week course of instruction for engaged couples and those contemplating marriage within the next year Wednesday at 8 p. m., and will continue each Wednesday at the same hour for eight weeks.

The sessions are held in the auditorium of Red Bank Catholic high school on Broad st. The center serves the Northern part of Monmouth county, other centers being at Freehold and Asbury Park.

In announcing the program, the Family Life bureau stressed "the need for such courses of instruction for those contemplating marriage—a vocation which is to endure for life and which will engulf a much wider scope of work than any other vocation or profession." Engaged couples and those contemplating marriage need only present themselves at the opening of the course, Father Bischoff said.

There are no fees or charges and all are welcome, he added.

Following is a list of topics which will be discussed during the nine-week period of instruction: "Marriage in Christ—Its Real Meaning and Purpose," "The Genuine Significance of Conjugal Love," "Medical Aspects of Marriage," "Economic Preparation for Marriage," "The Marriage Ceremony and Legal Safeguards," "Adjustment in Marriage," "The Home — The Child's Primeval School," and "Your Home—A Church in Miniature."

This is the fourth year for the Red Bank center. The program has been assisted during the past three years by Dr. A. J. Kolarsick, Dr. Thomas J. Gilmour, Dr. George Massell, Dr. Charles Paterno and Dr. Frank Pignataro.

Two Fined $210, Lose Driving Rights

FAIR HAVEN — Eugene DeVincenzi, 5 Gold st., and Miss M. L. Scott, 106 Shrewsbury ave., both of Red Bank, were each fined $105 and had their driving privileges taken away for 90 days Dec. 30.

The action came in municipal court before Magistrate John V. Crowell.

Mr. DeVincenzi and Miss Scott had been involved in a two-car accident Dec. 9 on River rd.

Police Chief Carl J. Jakubecy said Miss Scott had originally reported she was the driver of the car while Mr. DeVincenzi — who holds a learner's permit — was a passenger.

It was actually the other way around, the chief said.

Miss Scott had ben charged with violating the learner's permit law while Mr. DeVincenzi was charged with failing to report a motor vehicle accident.

The driver of the other vehicle in the accident was Harmer S. Trafford, 36 DeNormandie ave., who had been charged with reckless driving. He continues in critical condition in Riverview hospital.

In other court action, F. Menkens, 75 Ave. D, Atlantic Highlands, was fined $15 on a careless driving charge.

Miss Peters JRC Delegate

RUMSON — Patricia E. Peters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Peters, 40 Wardell ave., has been selected as a delegate to the National Junior Red Cross convention to be held next spring in Washington, D. C.

The selection was made by Mrs. J. Henry O'Hern, sponsor of the Junior Red Cross and the Monmouth county board of directors.

Miss Peters, a sophomore in Rumson-Fair Haven regional high school, has an active background in Red Cross activities.

In addition to her assignment as secretary to the county Junior Red Cross organization, she is currently serving as a JRC representative to the county Red Cross board of directors.

Last summer, she was a delegate from Rumson and the county to the Junior Red Cross leadership training center in Peddie school, Hightstown.

At regional, Miss Peters, is director of the Junior Red Cross council, and is a member of the Future Nurses club, the Business Service club, the Tower players, and the debating club.

In her freshman year, she was class treasurer.

The Rumson girl also has her eye on becoming a member of the Junior Red Cross Eastern area advisory council — for which position she was recently proposed as a candidate.

Pupils Taking Dancing Lessons

OCEANPORT — Fifty-four pupils of the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades in Oceanport school enjoyed a Christmas dance last week in the school auditorium. They are taking ballroom dancing lessons at the school, with Gene Butler of Eatontown as their instructor.

Mr. Butler conducted a series of dance contests. Mike Wilcox and Rosalie Buffum won the Fox Trot contest, and Eustace and Eric Forsythe the Jitterbug contest.

The following also received prizes: Mary Lou Rowe, Henry Northrop, Thomas Williams, Nathalia Gillam, Wayne Edwards, Linda Berry, Laurette Brenner, Mary Ellen Cody, Carol Ann Massaro, John Cornell, Chris Widdis, Jimmy Landeau, Robert Carlson, Nickie Lulken, Bernie Dziedzic, Kathy Eustace, Doreen Palaia, Linda Bozarth, Mary Ann Pascucci, Carol Witek, Rosalie Buffum, Kent Darlrymple, Edward Berry, Eric Forsythe, Gale Carlsen, Mike Wilcox, Gilbert Hunter, Jr., Pamela DeVecchio and Earl Miller.

When the pupils complete the second part of the course, they will receive diplomas. These will be presented at a regional party dance.

Members of the PTA dance committee serving as hostesses when refreshments were served included Mrs. Lulken, Mrs. John Cornell, Mrs. Gilbert Hunter and Mrs. Edward Berry.

Seamen Lists Goals for 1959 In Raritan

Re-elected as Mayor; Collector Sworn In; Police Dept. Shuffled

RARITAN TOWNSHIP — Republican Harry P. Seamen was re-elected mayor and Mrs. Jeanne C. McDonough, a Democrat, took office as tax collector as the township committee organized for 1959 at a meeting in municipal building Thursday.

William R. Greene, Democrat, who won election as tax assessor in the November contest, will be sworn in July 1.

Appointments were made as follows:

The firm of Roberts, Pillsbury and Carton, borough attorney; Joseph J. Seamen, Perth Amboy, auditor; Craig Finnegan, engineer; Edwin H. Walling, building inspector; Mrs. Rose Nappi, municipal court clerk; Wayne B. Darland, improvement search officer; Fred A. Nice, tax search officer; J. Carlton Cherry, treasurer, and Dr. James A. Weldon, township physician.

Police Lt. Charles Mack was dropped from the police department without explanation. To replace him, William J. Smith was promoted from sergeant to lieutenant.

Other police appointments were William J. Till, chief; Robert H. Thorne, Jr., promoted from patrolman to sergeant; and Edward J Werthwein, John Dowd, Andrew Linde, James J. Cullen, Leo V. Smith and Holmes J. Gornerley, patrolmen.

Mr. Seamen said the police department will be enlarged during 1959. The governing body does not, however, plan to convert the department to a full-time basis, it was reported.

The committee will continue to meet the first Friday of each month at 8:15 p. m. in municipal building.

Named to the local assistance board were Committeeman Ralph E. Mundy, one-year term, and Anastasia Aumack, two-year term. Howard K. Meyer, Sr., was appointed to the zoning board of adjustment for a five-year term. Named to the planning board were Robert G. Weigand, three-year term (a reappointment), and Mrs. Janet Smith, four-year term.

Committee appointments of the governing body were: Anthony DeMaio, police, fire, and buildings and grounds; Mr. Mundy, insurance, civil defense, welfare and first aid, and Mr. Seamen, streets, finance and public utilities.

The township committee confirmed these officials of the fire department: William Hill, chief; John Calamari, first assistant chief, and Frank Siano, second assistant chief. The board of fire chiefs is comprised of Mr. Hill, Frank Nappi, Mr. Calamari, Joseph Phillips, Mr. Siano and Malcolm Peseux.

Mr. Seamen listed these goals for 1959:

Better drainage through improvements to creeks in the Hazlet, Centerville and West Keansburg sections; a new public library; continued co-operation with the board of education in its program of land acquisition for schools and recreational facilities; an enlarged police department; traffic lights at the rt. 35 Fleetwood entrance and the rt. 36-Poole ave. intersection; traffic survey studies of rts. 35 and 36, and the paving of several streets in the older sections of town.

The mayor praised the board of education for its work during 1958 and lauded its new superintendent, R. Thomas Jannarone.

Mr. Seamen announced that work on the township's new tax map has been completed.

Beadleston Sure Of Oyster Ban

Assemblyman Alfred N. Beadleston (R.-Mon.) expressed confidence Tuesday that the state will not permit oyster farming in the Navesink and Shrewsbury rivers.

The legislator said he had discussed problems involved with top officials of the state Department of Conservation and Economic Development and now is "reasonably certain" that no commercial leases will be granted.

Mr. Beadleston also said he and Assemblyman Clifton T. Barkalow (R.-Mon.) are prepared to introduce an amendment to a state law, RS 50: 1-23, that would add these waters to those which already are barred from oyster exploitation.

This law sets aside several sections of water from Delaware bay to Barnegat and Cape May to Ocean county.

Wants Other Talks

"Before proceeding with our legislation," Mr. Beadleston told The Register, "We wish to talk first with Commissioner Salvatore A. Bontempo and possibly with Gov. Robert B. Meyner and go over the details."

The assemblyman told a reporter that in urging state officials not to consider the use of the Navesink and Shrewsbury he made the points that both are small rivers and are most important for the recreational advantages they offer to large numbers of people.

There has been no direct word from the state on any action contemplated since 175 persons gathered at a meeting in Fair Haven in October and vigorously opposed any leasing plan. That session was conducted by the Atlantic Coast council of New Jersey's Shell Fisheries division, directed by Christopher H. Riley.

The leasing plan was favored by Norman F. Jeffries, Port Norris oysterman; Professor Harold H. Haskins, operator of an oyster research laboratory at Rutgers university, and Stanley K. Walling, Belmar, originator of the idea of collecting seed oysters from the Navesink, the waters of which have been termed "polluted" as far as shell fishing is concerned.

Mr. Riley said in October that the state had been considering making available for lease all Navesink areas except "channels, boat basins, mooring areas and riparian grants." No estimate of acreage involved was given, but all indications were that operations here could be quite extensive.

The oyster issue is not new. It came up two years ago and met similar objections by municipal leaders and boating interests.

Hospital League Sets Luncheon

LONG BRANCH — The tenth anniversary of the Service League of Monmouth Medical Center will be marked tomorrow at a paid-up membership luncheon in auxiliary hall. A feature of the celebration will be the presentation of a check for $2,000 to George J. Bartel, hospital administrator, as the final payment of a $6,000 pledge made by the league for an examining room on the pediatrics floor of the hospital's proposed new west wing, planned for construction in 1960.

The service league was founded in 1949 by a group of 35 women from the shore area for the purpose of rendering service to all departments of the hospital on a volunteer basis, raising funds for the purchase of special equipment, conducting educational programs as a means of promoting an understanding of the services and facilities of the hospital, and furthering advantageous public relations between the hospital and the surrounding communities.

Mrs. Walter Kohn, Deal, served as the second president, and other past presidents include Mrs. Lester Barnett, Elberon, and Mrs. Nathan N. Frankel, Interlaken.

Mrs. A. Alvin Weinstein, Deal Park, is the current president of the league which now has 350 members. The group gives approximately 2,000 hours of volunteer service yearly, concentrating their efforts on the pediatrics floor.

The group also established and maintains a patients' library. In the ten years since its founding, the organization has contributed more than $40,000 in equipment and moneys to Monmouth Medical Center.

Mrs. Irving L. Bander and Mrs. Samuel Stevens, both of West Allenhurst, and Mrs. Frankel, Interlaken, are serving as chairmen of tomorrow's affair. Decorations in a Hawaiian theme, are being planned under the direction of Mrs. Louis Kremer of Little Silver; Mrs. Gilbert Meltzner, Oakhurst; Mrs. Samuel Barr, West Deal, and Mrs. Daniel Mendelsohn, Asbury Park.

Local Adult School Slates Registration

Registration for the 12th consecutive term of the Red Bank Adult school will be held Jan. 19, 22 and 26, between 7 and 9 p. m. in Red Bank high school.

Classes — which meet Thursday nights — will begin Jan. 29, and classes — which meet Monday nights — feb. 2.

The new term — according to Willard F. Browning, director — will feature six new courses including, Discovering Modern Poetry, the American Family and Its Problems and, The Power to Govern.

Other new courses will be advanced courses in antiques, creative writing and first aid — which will be continuations of courses offered in the fall term.

The course in modern poetry will utilize materials exploring the nature, preoccupations, major themes and the characteristic forms of expression of the chief modern poets. The course, which will feature recorded readings by the poets themselves, is aimed at increasing the reader's enjoyment of modern poetry through heightening his appreciation of the new dimensions which have been added to older forms, Mr. Browning said.

The course will also explore 10 themes including "The Modern World as Seen by the Poets," "The Theme of Frustration," "Childhood and Loss of Innocence," "Man and Nature," "Doubt and Struggle," "War and Death," "The Humanist Acceptance," "The Mystic Vision," "The Religious Transcendence" and "The Poets on Poetry."

Survey Course

The American Family and its Problems will be a survey course of the structure and functions of the American family with special emphasis on family unity, organization and ways to achieve harmonious family living.

To be included will be development of the present day family, the modern urban American family, marriage, parenthood, problems of the modern family, special problems of the father in the modern family, special problems of the mother in the modern family and child rearing.

The instructor will be Frank L. Singer, social worker at the Arthur Brisbane child treatment center.

The Power to Govern will comprise 10 sessions to be devoted to the problem of how to control the power to govern in an age of "big government."

Editors of the course, according to Mr. Browning, will present authoritative documents and their own arguments to debate the subject, "Whether the principle of separation of powers — Congress, Court and President — embedded in our American system, has been in the past or is now adequate to the needs of the American government and the American people."

Topics Listed

Topics will include, "The Governing Power," "The Division of Functions in Government," "The Judicial Power," "The Executive Power," "The Legislative Power," "Intraction Among the Powers," "Domestic Issues," "Foreign Issues," "Separation of Powers and Administrative Agencies," "Separation of Powers and Civil Liberty," and "Separation of Powers: Alternatives and Evaluation."

Miss Elisabeth Kelley, social studies instructor at Red Bank high school, will be the discussion leader.

The curriculum also will include the following courses, basic antiques, basic auto mechanics, blueprint reading, basic bookkeeping, ceramics, intermediate contract bridge, dress pattern making, effective speaking, basic English, English and citizenship, advanced first aid, French for beginners, furniture refinishing, high school equivalency, interior decorating, investing in stocks and bonds, landscaping and gardening, nature and wildlife (meets Saturdays), painting, psychology, reading and beginners sewing.

2 Democrats Take Posts; Erosion Drive Continues

SEA BRIGHT — The seating of two Democratic councilmen at the loss of one Republican, preparation for a new drive to bolster defenses against the sea and a brief squabble over the appointment of a fire apparatus engineer were New Year's features here.

Installed on the council as it reorganized were:

Walter L. Johnson, fire chairman, starting his second full three-year term. Mr. Johnson, resident manager of the Peninsula house, also is a member of the local board of education.

John S. Forsman, sewer and sanitation chairman, entering the local government for the first time. He is a repairman with the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. His success at the polls in November followed his close defeat for the same office a year earlier.

Leaving the board was Charles Eilenberger, a Republican who had had long serve as a Sea Bright official.

A Hurried Session

The organization session moved rapidly. It was over in little more than a half-hour, ending in what was believed to have been record time.

The only point of discord—and it got no support from the council—came when John Ryan, vice president of Ocean fire company, permitted to speak from the audience, opposed Mayor Thomas Farrell's appointment of Richard S. Forsman as assistant fire pumper engineer.

Mr. Ryan said he did not think the salaried job should go to a man who has had only eight or nine months' service with the company. But Mayor Farrell closed the issue by saying he had chosen Mr. Forsman because of his qualifications. Also named an assistant fire pumper engineer, without salary, was John A. Forsman.

Farrell's Address

In addressing the council briefly, Mayor Farrell expressed thanks to outgoing Councilman Eilenberger and the others who served in 1958 for "their wonderful co-operation" which made possible "a whole lot of progress in Sea Bright. I hope we continue on in the same way with the new council."

The mayor noted he was entering his 20th year of service as a public official in the borough. Through the years, he said, it was clear that "the only way we can accomplish good things here" is through co-operation and harmony within the governing body.

He set as the "number one goal" for the year a continuation of the erosion fight. The mayor said he had been informed that the state Jan. 19 will call for bids for a project to build up a rock jetty off from the northern boundary of the Trade Winds beach club, South Beach, and repairs to the North Beach sea wall.

This year, he said, the borough is planning for a $300,000 program by asking the state for half the money and by attempting to convince the board of freeholders to make a major contribution toward the local share of the cost.

In the $100,000 program, only 10 per cent of the money is coming from the county. Mayor Farrell said he hopes the county will give a considerably larger share of the cost for the 1959 program.

Details of the new erosion plan—which will concentrate upon the buildup of a jetty off Center st. and put remaining funds into perhaps two North Beach jetties—were to be discussed by council and the freeholders at a joint meeting Monday night.

Mayor Farrell also called upon council to do what it could to hold local taxes down, maintain the fire department and recreation center. "I know you will do a good job," the mayor told the councilmen.

Mr. Eilenberger, in withdrawing from the council table, thanked the officials with whom he has worked and the borough's voters "for allowing me to serve them."

Other Ceremonies

In other ceremonies:

A Henry Giordano, Long Branch, was sworn in for another term as borough attorney, Mr. Stevens as clerk, and Harry Lake as Sea Bright fire chief, succeeding Mr. Altman. A chief's badge was presented to Mr. Lake.

Mayor Farrell announced his council committees for the year as follows: the first named being chairman:

Finance, insurance and public buildings—Sam L. Diggle, Jr., Mildred N. Anderson and John A. Carlson.

Police and town hall—Carlson, Forsman and Mrs. Anderson.

Fire and water—Johnson, Carlson and Neils Jacobsen.

Streets and lights—Jacobsen, Diggle and Forsman.

Sewer and sanitation—Forsman, Johnson and Diggle.

Beachfront, recreation, licenses and leases—Mrs. Anderson, Jacobsen and Johnson.

Mrs. John F. Norton extended thanks to the governing body for promoting the activities of the recreation commission here in the pas year.

Mr. Forsan thanked the Sea Bright Women's Democratic committee for decorating the council chamber with flowers for the meeting.

The new council voted to continue to hold regular meetings on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month, at 8 p. m. Eastern Standard Time and at 9 p. m. Daylight Saving Time.

The Appointments

Following are the appointments for 1959:

Mr. Giordano, borough attorney; Mr. Stevens, clerk-treasurer; Mrs. Joan Axelsen, assistant borough clerk; John P. Weir, for three years, magistrate; J. W. Seaman & Sons, borough engineer; Joseph J. Employees to Get Salary Hikes

SHREWSBURY —Borough council introduced a new salary ordinance Tuesday night which proployees and establishes three new positions.

The new positions are a patrolman second class, a road maintenance man and an assistant.

Public hearing on the measure will be held Tuesday, Jan. 20, at 8 p. m.

Councilman Edgar W. Heller, Jr., said the new police post was established to make an added step between probationary patrolman and chief. At the present time there are only three different police positions: probationary, patrolman first class and chief. The position of sergeant was dropped when Chief Mass was promoted from sergeant to his present position.

Pay increased under the ordinance will go to Chief Mass, up $400 to $5,600; patrolman first grade, up $300 to $4,900; probationary patrolman, up $400 to $4,400; A. M. Fitz-Randolph, health officer, up $100 to $1,500; John W. Parker, street superintendent, up $400 to $5,200; Mrs. Isabel R Parker, tax collector, and Mrs. Ortrude VanVliet, borough clerk, each up $200 to $4,000.

The patrolman second class will receive $4,600. The road maintenance man will receive $3,800, and his assistant will get $3,600. Men in these categories are presently paid on an hourly basis. The overseer of the poor will receive $150.

Calvary Baptist School Cited

OCEANPORT — The Sunday-school of Calvary Baptist church, 1305 Eatontown blvd., has won by a wide margin two contests in competition with other schools of similar size.

One contest was sponsored by the Conservative Baptist association of New Jersey; the other by the Philadelphia Sunday-school association. Awards will be presented to the local Sunday-school.

The contests, which lasted for a two-month period, were based upon the increase of average attendance. The Calvary Baptist Sunday-school showed an increase of over 125 per cent over the corresponding period of the previous year.

Roy Webb, of 24 Leland ter., New Shrewsbury, is superintendent of the Sunday-school. The pastor, Rev. Paul Smith, states that the advance of the school is indicative of the general rapid growth of the church. The church recently purchased a large house which once belonged to Sidney Beers, former mayor of Oceanport. Additional facilities, however, are needed. Plans are being made to erect a first unit of a new church building on the same property in the near future.

'My Daddy Is the New Mayor'

Seven-year-old Norman J. Currie, Jr., aids Borough Clerk Mrs. Adelaide B. Crammer as the child's father, Norman J. Currie, Sr., was sworn in Friday night as mayor of Keyport. Mr. Currie, a Democrat, took office with three new Democratic councilmen, putting control of the governing body in the hands of the Democrats, by a 4 to 2 majority, for the first time in half a century. The Democrats won on the issue of sewer authority dissolution, and have wasted no time in preparing for the change. This week, unannounced, the new officials started making alterations in municipal building to set up a borough sewer department office. Shown above, left to right, at the swearing-in ceremonies, are Councilmen John J. Dane, Alton V. Walling and Robert J. Strang, Norman Currie, Jr., Mayor Currie and Mrs. Crammer.

Income of Fruit Growers In State Not Likely to Change

NEW BRUNSWICK—Fruit growers in New Jersey can look forward to slightly higher prices, but smaller crops in 1959, in the opinion of a Rutgers university agricultural economist.

George T. McCloskey, who has been sizing up the fruit outlook, says the effect will be to keep growers' income in 1959 about the same as in 1958.

As usual, the size and quality of crops in other states will affect prices in New Jersey.

Mr. McCloskey sees a possibility of a more favorable market for New Jersey and other Eastern strawberries considering the fact that the national strawberry acreage is expected to be five per cent smaller in 1959 than in 1958. California acreage has dropped the most — 14 per cent.

Also in prospect are a large crop of blueberries, favorable harvest conditions, good prices and a stronger processing market. The economist looks for another large cranberry crop, too.

Taking the longer view, Mr. McCloskey sees a continuing rise in total fruit consumption in the years ahead as the population expands. Consumers will expect higher quality and better appearance in their fruit and there will be greater use of canned and frozen convenience items.

Before planting new trees or plants, Garden state growers would be wise, to appraise both consumer and trade preferences for alternative varieties, suggests the economist. For example, new apple plantings throughout the country lean heavily toward highly colored varieties, particularly of the Delicious type.

Advises Farmers To Rotate Crops

FREEHOLD — Successful vegetable growers follow a definite crop rotation or plan to include a good soil improvement or cover crop between the harvested crops. They use a soil building or sod resting crop in every four-year rotation.

This will mean either that one of the present crops will be eliminated, or the acreage of the crops now being grown will be reduced to include one year of resting. The same crops may be grown in rotation with the reduction made only in the size of the acreage.

In converting to this sod rotation, the first, second, and possibly the third year, there is a small reduction in the yield. This need not be true if you will concentrate your fertilizer and irrigation water on fewer acres and give better care and attention to the smaller plantings, says County Agent Marvin A. Clark.

Little is proven on the effect which certain vegetable crops have on the crops which follow them in the rotation, but growers know through practical experience that cabbage, cauliflower and broccoli will not produce high yields on fields which grew these crops the previous season.

The same thing is true with many of the vine crops. A holdover of insects and especially diseases in the soil is also a factor.

Buty the Best Seed

The highest priced seed is usually the cheapest in the long run, according to County Agent Clark. Buying certified seed is the first step in getting the best because this seed usually comes from fields which have been thoroughly rogued by a qualified inspector and are certified as being true to variety and free from disease.

Few of the vegetable crops for seed purposes are being certified and the second rule for the growers of specialty crops who do not wish to take a chance is to purchase the best seed available from several sources.

Grow a row or two a year in advance to make sure that it is true to name and will produce satisfactory yields of high quality under local conditions. The results of this test a year ahead will show what the grower can expect the following year. He can then make a selection and plant only the seed of the variety or strain which was best in this trial.

When a variety or strain has been purchased from a seedsman, be sure to get the stock and lot number of that particular lot. As soon as a crop has proven itself, then order seed immediately for next year's planting, giving the stock and lot number of the seed desired. This should be done as soon as the crop has proven itself and before the next year's seed has been distributed among seedsmen.

Feed Young Stock Well

Heifers are apt to be stunted unless they get enough feed to make normal growth up to the time of their first calving. Many herds have undersize cows that lack capacity to produce well, largely because they were underfed as heifers.

If an animal lacks size when she has her first calf, the chances are that she'll never get the chance to make up for lost growth, according to Frank A. Wright, extension dairy specialist at Rutgers university.

Milk production makes heavy demands on an animal's body, and these needs must be met before she can make use of nutrients for continued growth. Because of repeated reproductions and lactations an animal is unable to complete her growth and so never reaches normal size.

Wright mentions that youngsters make better use of their feed, considering their size, then older cattle, and so he says it's a shame to feed them the worst hay on the farm or the sweepings from the manger.

A month-old calf fed liberally on milk will gain a pound a day for every hundred pounds of live weight while a daily gain of a quarter of this is a lot for a two-year-old. Up to a month of age, a calf may store 70 per cent or more of the protein, calcium and phosphorus in the milk she drinks. After growth is completed there is little storage of protein and minerals.

If you must feed coarse, stemmy hay to heifers, be sure to give them two or three pounds of a fitting ration every day, Mr. Clark adds, with a free choice mineral mix, say two parts of steamed bone meal to one part salt.

Pepper Pest

Here's good news for South Jersey pepper growers and everyone who enjoys eating peppers, a Garden state specialty.

The pepper weevil, a serious pest of peppers in the Deep South, was found in the Vineland area in 1957. It wiped out the crops of several growers.

During the 1958 season, New Jersey Department of Agriculture pest surveyors working in co-operation with Rutgers University searched the Vineland area twice for weevils. The fields that were infested in 1957 were found to be free of the pest in 1958.

Dr L. C. Merrill, Rutgers entomologist, says it appears that the pepper weevil was not able to overwinter satisfactorily here, and unless it is introduced again from the Southern states is not likely to give trouble as a major pest.

The pepper weevil survey is typical of the teamwork projects carried out by the State Department of Agriculture and the university. Results of the surveys are released to New Jersey growers as soon as information becomes available.

Thawing Pipes

A blow torch is handy for thawing frozen pipes, but . . . use of a torch can lead to disastrous results if high pressure steam is generated between sections of ice-plugged pipes. An explosion and burst pipes can result.

Always start thawing so that steam and hot water can escape from an open pipe end, cautions W. C. Krueger, extension farm engineer at Rutgers university.

And a blow torch is dangerous when it is used near materials that will burn. In this case the old method of wrapping pipes in rags and soaking them with boiling water is still the best.

Frozen pipes that are buried or otherwise out of reach can be thawed by the electric resistance method, using a portable generator or even the electric welder.

But this requires skill, and is best left to a serviceman with experience.

Gypsum Improves Soil

Soil in gardens and home grounds that suffer from a tight clay texture can frequently be improved with the use of gypsum, or calcium sulfate, advises Wallace A. Mitcheltree, extension soils specialist at Rutgers university.

The material should be applied at the rate of one pound per square yard or 100 pounds per 1,000 square feet. It can be spread on the surface without working it into the soil or if conditions permit can be worked in. It can be applied over any growing plant or crop such as grass or perennial flowers or shrubs.

Its effect on the soil is to shrink the clay, causing minute cracks and crevices to appear, allowing space for water to move down through the soil, and also for the soil material itself to break up more easily during tillage.

This time of year is best for applying the material, since more water will be moving down through the soil from now until spring than at any other time, advises Mr. Clark. Also frost and chemical action of gypsum seems to give the greatest improvement. The material can be applied in spring with satisfactory results, however.

The agricultural grade of gypsum should be used and can be bought at most farm and garden supply stores. If a store does not stock gypsum it can get it for you.

Rules for Brooding

Just as failure to observe traffic regulations can lead to accidents, so negligence in following rules in brooding chicks can lead to trouble, says Richard O. Rice, associate agricultural agent.

There is nothing new in brooding chicks, he continues. Success goes to the poultryman who follows rules calling for fresh air, plenty of feed and room for chicks to grow.

Mr. Rice offers these time-tested rules for brooding:

1. Provide seven square inches of floor space under the hover when coal and oil burners are used, and 10 square inches for each chick where gas and electric brooders are used.

2. Insure one-half square foot of floor space for every chick to eight weeks of age, then one square foot to 12 weeks, and two square feet after 12 weeks when chicks are brooded in confinement.

Keep the brooder temperature at 95 degrees at the edge of the hover an inch from the floor with 5 degrees lower each week.

Provide a gallon fountain containing pure fresh water for every 100 chicks, followed by automatic fountains at four to six weeks of age.

5. Consider any ammonia or gas fumes a danger signal. Fresh air is essential.

Mr. Greenwood was appointed to fill the unexpired term of John N. Smock, which still has a year to run. However, Mr. Greenwood decided, instead, to be a candidate for three years.

Seymour Koteen is running unopposed for the one-year term.

Voorhees Starts Sixth Term

FREEHLD — Abram D. Voorhees, Manasquan, was sworn in to start his sixth three-year term on the Monmouth county board of freeholders Friday.

Mr. Voorhees, who won re-election in November, was first elected to the board in 1943. Joseph C. Irwin, Red Bank, was elected director of the board for the 10th straight year.

In a brief speech, Mr. Voorhees said his election showed confidence in his work and "approval of our conduct of county business."

Reappointed by the freeholders were:

William H. Oliver, Neptune, three-year term on the county planning board; Oliver G. Presley, Long Branch, one-year term as county fire marshal; John L. Second Hearing Scheduled On Elimination of Crossings

The second round of Red Bank's battle to have six railroad grade crossings in the borough eliminated will begin next Thursday at 11 a. m. in Newark.

Commissioner D. Lane Powers of the Public Utilities Commission informed the borough by letter Monday night of the new hearing. The first hearing, held Oct. 16, ended in confusion. The borough had presented facts covering the need for elimination of the grade crossing, but Commissioner Powers said plans should have been presented on how the crossings would be eliminated—either by elevating or depressing the tracks.

Borough Attorney Samuel Carotenuto said yesterday there was no reason for the borough to spend "$10,000 to $15,000 in engineering surveys" until the PUC had decided whether or not there was a need for elimination of the crossings.

Red Bank applied for elimination of the crossings in August, 1957. The crossings are at West Bergen pl., Chestnut, Oakland and Monmouth sts., and Shrewsbury and Bridge aves.

Cost of elevating the tracks has been estimated at more than 10 million dollars.

Parsekian Heads Motor Vehicle Unit

TRENTON (AP) — Gov. Robert B. Meyner said Tuesday he expects Ned J. Parsekian to be in charge of the state motor vehicle division for some time, but hasn't promised to appoint him director.

Mr. Parsekian was moved over from director of the state workmen's compensation division to become deputy motor vehicle director Dec. 31, while Mr. Meyner was vacationing in Florida.

He is now acting [illegible] in place of Frederick J. Gassert, Jr., of Harrison who resigned as director to become an aide to U. S. Sen. Harrison A. Williams (D-NJ).

Franklin Named

Thomas L. Franklin, Rutherford, Tuesday was appointed acting director and secretary of the workmen's compensation division to replace Mr. Parsekian.

Asked at a news conference if he plans to send Mr. Parsekian's nomination to the state Senate when it meets next week, Mr. Meyner replied, "I don't know.

"I haven't made any decision as to whether he should be nominated or shouldn't be nominated," the governor added. "I'm not committed to anything. I expect him to run the division for some time to come."

Never Appointed

Mr. Meyner recalled that Robert S. Finley, Princeton, served as acting state treasurer for several months without ever being appointed treasurer.

The governor said he hasn't discussed Mr. Parsekian's status with Essex County Democratic Chairman Dennis F. Carey or State Sen. Donal C. Fox (D-Essex).

Asked if Mr. Parsekian might be considered a controversial figure who would have difficulty in winning senate approval, Mr. Meyner replied, "Have you ever known anyone who wasn't controversial who could do anything"

And questioned about the lack of public announcement on Mr. Parsekian's shift to the motor vehicle division, the governor said the details were handled by Attorney Gen. David D. Furman and "I don't recall having suggested secrecy.

Holmdel Unit Sets Planning Confab

HAZLET — Residents from every part of Holmdel township are expected at a meeting next Tuesday night of the Old Manor Civic association where a discussion on "Holmdel—It's Future" will see Bernard Goldsmith, chairman of the planning board, and Miss Lois Gruelich of Morrow Planning Associates, outline various aspects of the growth possibilities of the township.

The two speakers are expected to define those portions of the township's master plan which have been made public and to interpret them in terms of their effect on the community.

The meeting will be held at 9 p. m. in the new school.

Prior to the public meeting, members of the civic association will meet in closed session at 8 o'clock to vote on an amendment to the organization's constitution, which would permit changing the name of the group to Holmdel Civic association and opening its membership to all residents of Old Manor and persons living in the Hazlet area.

In a letter sent to all members of the group earlier this week, Richard T. Levins, president, and members of the executive committee urged approval of the constitution's amendment so that the association could increase the scope of its service and activities.

At an executive committee meeting Tuesday night in the home of John Landers, athletic chairman, Mr. Levins announced the appointment of Russ Lagattuta as membership chairman. Mr. Lagattuta, who lives at 5 Mayfair rd., will replace Mr. Landers in the post so that the latter can devote full time to athletic activities.

Also designated were three members to represent the association at an organizational meeting of the Bayshore hospital group tonight. Named were Mrs. William Honan, Leo Imperato and Mrs. James A. O'Keefe.

James Reagan, community affairs chairman, and Mrs. Diane Mumford, women's chairman, will plan the association's participation in the January "Mothers March on Polio."

Mr. Landers announced plans for a Sports night, to be held this month for the benefit of the basketball program to be inaugurated by the association. A circular inviting Holmdel residents to the general meeting Tuesday night will be distributed this week-end.

Advises New Weed Killer Use Only on Trial Basis

FREEHOLD — Simazine, new weed control chemical, is being recommended on a trial basis only in New Jersey, advises County Agent M. A. Clark.

The chief advantage of the new material is its ability to persist in the soil, extending the weed control period long enough to kill most annual grasses that germinate in corn. Trials in eastern Pennsylvania last year showed no grasses or broadleaved weeds at harvest time in October. Some quackgrass, Canada thistle and horsenettle escaped.

D. A. Schallock, Rutgers weed expert, says the chemical has been found to be dependable except in extremely dry periods, when few herbicides work effectively. Disadvantages of Simazine are its relatively high cost, when broadcast over an entire area, and its staying power in the soil. Since it persists for a long time, there is danger that the build-up in the soil might injure the following crop of oats or other small grains.

Research is in progress on this persistence problem, and it should be possible to advise corn growers before they have an opportunity to put on a second application.

Dr. Schallock says the story is different with sweet corn, and it appears now that Simazine will be used extensively on that crop next year.

Rats in Corncribs

Rats can still get into conventional corncribs using hardware cloth of half-inch mesh for sides because of the difficulty of completely sealing off the top or roof section.

But it's easy to prevent rats from climbing the sides, says County Agent M. A. Clark. Just place a band of sheet metal around the crib at the 4-foot height, bending the upper edge out at right angles three or four inches.

To discourage rats from digging under a foundation or footing, place a shelf-like projection of asbestos-cement board or poured concrete a foot wide at a depth of 12 to 16 inches.

Rats will burrow down to this shelf, but in contrast to their usual cleverness, do not seem to have the intelligence to travel away from their goal.

Water-Treated Cabbage Seed

Both black leg and black rot disease are usually brought in on the farm in the seed of cabbage, broccoli, and cauliflower. Unless the seed has already been disinfected, the grower should by all means treat his own seed, advises County Agent M. A. Clark.

Disinfecting seed is not difficult. Hot water is recommended to kill the disease. The heat of the water is the only way of killing the organism which is located inside the seed coat. The water is used warm enough to kill the disease but not so hot as to affect germination of year-old seeds.

The water is heated to a temperature of 122 degrees. This temperature should be tested with two thermometers located at about the location in the container at which the seed will be suspended.

The seed is then tied in a loose cheesecloth bag, similar to that used when treating pepper seed, and is held in the hot water for the required time. For cabbage this time is 25 minutes and for broccoli and cauliflower only 18 minutes.

Immediately after the seed has been taken from the hot water, hold it under a cold water faucet to check the heating process and then spread on paper and dry as soon as possible.

Just before planting, dust the seed with 75 per cent captan or 75 per cent thiram, using one level teaspoonful to a pound of seed.

Using Enough Lime

Records of the 1958 Ten-Ton Tomato club members, representing 554 growers, show that over 45 per cent of the field in which tomatoes were grown were below pH 6.0 reports C. H. Nissley, Rutgers vegetable specialist. The lowest record showed the soil pH test to be 4.5. The records also disclose that 213 growers applied lime for their 1958 crop. Seventy-two of the 213 growers applied hydrated lime and 141 limestone.

Since liming material is so important, vegetable soils should be tested at least once every two years. This is especially true where growers use poultry manure and are heavy users of nitrogen.

Lime increases the activities of the nitrogen-fixing organisms in the soil. It removes toxic material such as active aluminum and iron from the soil solution and also makes phosphorus more available for plant use. It also improves the structure of both the surface and subsoil.

Since the majority of local vegetable soils are lacking in available magnesium, invariably the recommendations given with the soil test will indicate that a dolomitic or magnesium lime rather than a high calcium lime should be used to correct this condition.

Liming materials can be applied at any time during the year, says County Agent M. A. Clark. If the soil is quite acid, hydrated lime can be used because it will have the entire winter to penetrate fairly well into the soil.

But if lime is applied just previous to the sowing of a crop or to the plantbed or other plant-growing soils, a dolomitic or high magnesium limestone is preferred.

Liming material should be mixed as thoroughly as possible with the soil after application.

Reviews Electrical Terms

Electricity is so comonly used in this day of mechanization that it is well for everyone to become more familiar with its language, in the opinion of Kenneth E. DeBusk, extension farm engineer at Rutgers.

Here is his brief review of some common electrical terms:

The volt measures electrical pressure similar to pounds in a water system. Voltage supplied in ordinary electric service is either 115 or 230. In a three-wire, single phase service, the voltage between the two outside black wires is 230 volts, and between either outside wire and the center white wire, 115 volts.

The watt is a small unit of electrical energy used in measuring the current itself. A horsepower is about 746 watts (100 per cent efficiency). To figure the number of watts being used by an appliance or motor, multiply the volts in the line by the amperes that the appliance draws.

The kilowatt hour (KWH) represents 1,000 watts being used for one hour. This is the measure of work done as recorded by the electric meter and on this basis the rates for electricity are figured.

The ampere is a quantity measure for electric current, similar to gallons per minute in a water system. Amperage is found by dividing the wattage by the voltage. For instance, a 660-watt brooder on 110 volts would use a six ampere flow of current. The size of wire to be used in wiring a house depends upon the number of amperes required by the equipment.

Alfalfa Weevil

Alfalfa weevil will be a serious pest of alfalfa next season, warns Dr. Leland G. Merrill, extension entomologist at Rutgers university.

This year the cool, moist weather retarded the development of the weevil more than the alfalfa. As a result, first injury from the weevil did not appear until the crop was 18 or 20 inches tall. Many growers sprayed or cut immediately and sprayed the stubble to prevent further damage.

County Agent M. A. Clark recommends making plans for next season to control alfalfa weevil and other pests when alfalfa is up about 10 to 12 inches. Some larvae, many adults and some eggs can be found at that time. Spray provides about three weeks' protection.

As soon as alfalfa is in the bud stage, a prompt cutting followed by spraying the stubble will prevent weevil losses on the second cutting.

If spittlebug or pea aphid is present when the spray goes on the first cutting, add malathion for increased effectiveness. If there are no pea aphids, heptachlor will give reasonable control of spittlebug and take care of the weevils, too.

Granular heptachlor, applied in fall, has shown promise in tests. If such applications ever are approved, spraying for alfalfa weevil in spring may not be necessary. But until details are worked out, forage spraying is the best possible practice to insure satisfactory yields of high quality hay, Dr. Merrill says.

Says Planning Is Vital

It's time to develop a definite replacement program for layers needed in 1959-1960, reminds John C. Taylor, extension poultry specialist at Rutgers university.

Plans should take into account housing and rearing methods to insure plenty of room and other needs.

For example, says the specialist, if birds are to be raised in confinement rather than on range, the poultryman will have to give close attention to a careful schedule of housing to insure adequate floor space.

Careful planning may eliminate the need for buying new equipment and suggest ways of using the present equipment to the best advantage. Four hatches a year make four times as much use of equipment than one hatch and keep down overhead costs.

If a poultryman is satisfied with layers he raised in 1958, it is advisable to return to the same source for 1959 chicks, suggests Richard O. Rice, associate agricultural agent. It is still good planning to count on 85 per cent of the chicks bought to develop into good ready-to-lay pullets.

Finally, he cautions, place orders well in advance of the wanted delivery date, and view with suspicion so-called deals and price concessions when you buy chicks in 1959.

White Makes 2 Appointments

SHREWSBURY — Mayor Bernard B. White made two more appointments to borough positions Tuesday night, one of them a bipartisan choice.

Joseph A. Christman, 54 Trafford st., a Democratic candidate for council the past two years, was named to a three-year term on the planning board. He replaces Kenneth L. Walker, Jr., who was appointed to the council New Years day. Mr. Walker will continue to serve on the board as a council representative.

Fred C. Lewis, Jr., 174 White st., was appointed to the sewer study committee. Mr. Lewis is a professional engineer employed by Colgate Palmolive company in the research and development department in Jersey City.

Mr. Christman has been a resident of Shrewsbury seven years and is a graduate of Red Bank high school. He served as a first class petty officer in the Navy in World War II, and is superintendent of the Stephen J. Gross, Inc., plumbing and heating firm. Mr. Christman is married and has six children. He is a member of the Monmouth county Boy Scout executive council and Red Bank council, Knights of Columbus.

Mr. Lewis moved to Shrewsbury in 1949. He received a bachelor of science degree from Newark College of Engineering in 1939. He is married and has two children attending Red Bank high school. State Hospital Seeks Volunteers

SHREWSBURY — Dr. J. Berkeley Gordon, medical director of Marlboro state hospital has requested volunteer assistance to the nursing service at the hospital. Through the co-operation of the Marlboro Hospital auxiliary, to which Dr. Gordon appealed, and the county Red Cross chapter, a training course for Red Cross volunteer nurses' aides to serve at this hospital will start on or about Feb. 2.

After completing the 40-hour course, volunteers will be entitled to wear the light blue uniform which earned respect in World War II when volunteer nurses' aides helped alleviate the critical shortage of trained nurses.

Dr. Gordon urged local women interested in this type of volunteer work to enroll. The classes, in order to be effective, must be limited in size. Among the qualifications are "dependability, good health and a desire to help the physically and mentally ill."

More information may be had by calling the county Red Cross chapter in Shrewsbury or by contacting Mrs. Gordon, member of the boards of the Marlboro Auxiliary and the county chapter; Mrs. Alma Penn, assistant director of nurses and Red Cross trained nurse-instructor who will conduct the classes, or Mrs. Elna Anable, director of volunteers. They may be reached at the hospital. Mrs. James McCosker, Ward ave., Rumson, also will welcome inquiries.

Mrs. A. W. Kennedy, Fair Haven, is chairman of the Red Cross volunteer nurse's aide committee. Mrs. William Zilger, Little Silver, is president of the Marlboro auxiliary, and Mrs. John B. Green, Locust, is the auxiliary's public relations chairman.

By the end of 1957, the cost of construction and improvements on the Garden State Parkway in New Jersey totaled 204 million dollars. The toll road is 173 miles long.

ASBURY PARK — The New Jersey Natural Gas company has issued its annual report for the fiscal year 1958, ending Sept. 30, showing a 25.4 per cent increase in gas sales.

The company distributed 8,715 million cubic feet during the fiscal year as compared to 6,952 million cubic feet the preceding year. At the end of the fiscal year the company had 122,894 customers, an increase of 4.9 per cent.

The report, mailed Dec. 30, to all stockholders, shows a 19.5 per cent increase in the number of heating customers. At Sept. 30 there were 37,446 in this category, an increase of 6,108 in the one-year period.

In a letter to stockholders, James S. Abrams, Jr., chairman of the board, and Dale B. Otto, president, said, "New residential and commercial construction in the company's service area continues at a greater pace than in many other sections of the country, and indications are that it will follow this trend of increased activity in the next year."

Red Bank Edges Red Bank Catholic in Thriller

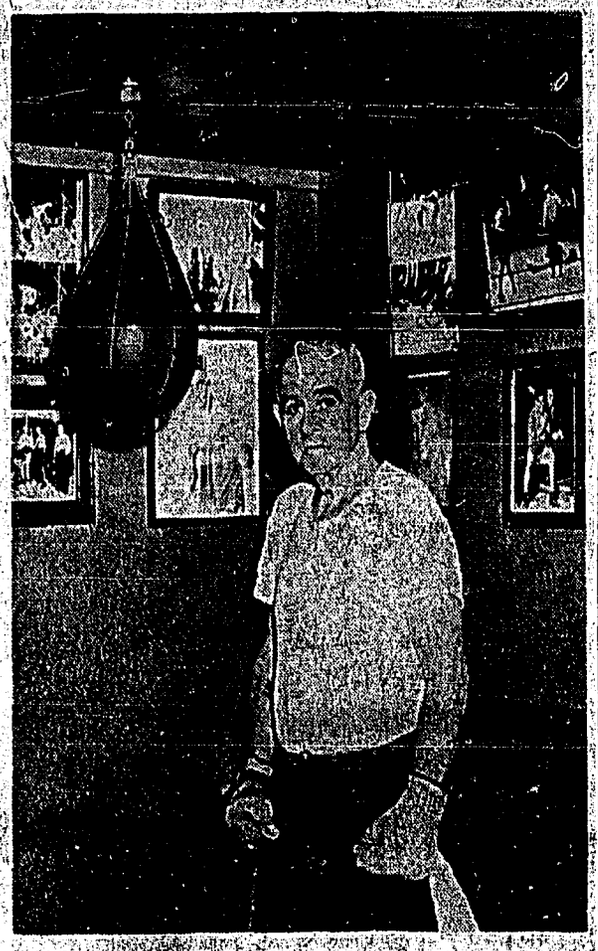

"Hy" Spotting Sports

By Hy Cunningham

RUMSON WAS SADDENED SATURDAY NIGHT WHEN WORD OF JOHN L. McAVOY'S death was reported. Mr. McAvoy was a retired New York state boxing referee. Not only was this borough saddened by the passing of this great sportsman, but New York, Brooklyn and the boxing world that knew him when he was the third man in the ring felt the hard uppercut.

Those who were acquainted with John L. McAvoy cherished his friendship and his wisdom, and most of all the sound advise that he used to give to the young people of the borough. McAvoy started coming to Rumson each summer when the borough was a noted summer resort, and later decided to make his permanent residence there. In those days a population of 2,000 was a big number for the borough.

McAvoy enjoyed a full life in the sports world. No one knew how old he was, and even his nephew Clifford couldn't give an exact date of his birth. He thought it was close to 80, but he wasn't making a definite statement.

The late John L. McAvoy

John got his start in pugilism when he donned the boxing gloves back in 1879. In this part of the game he didn't stick around long. After three years of absorbing leather, he decided swinging gloves was a pretty tough racket. At this point he decided to quit the ring in a fighter's role before he was knocked crazy.

McAvoy liked the game, and decided to take up refereeing. This decision came in the days when boxing had tough sledding in New York. In those days boxing was more or less controlled by what they called "membership clubs," which were the backers of weekly shows, or whenever they were held. When we speak of "membership" days we're speaking of the 1903 to 1911 years. Back then, the sport was fighting a do or die life, and McAvoy was in there fighting for the sport.

Johnny started card refereeing in New Jersey in 1918 and spent two years officiating in this state before he went back across the river again. When he was working in the Garden State, neighboring New York state was having its troubles getting the sport organized properly.

One of the interesting things in his early life before moving into the boxing field, was the days he was a jockey. Johnny rode in Gloucester in 1893, the last year of racing in N. J. (That is, before the present racing law was written into the books.) He always received a tremendous charge when telling stories of his riding days. One of these stories developed when he was riding under contract to Frank James, brother of the notorious Jesse James (outlaw personified) who had a string of 12 horses. He loved to tell this particular story: "After retiring from the track and getting into the refereeing game, I was working a bout one night and heard a ringside fan, not satisfied with the decision, roar out, 'McAvoy, I know you rode for Jesse James' brother, and you're still a burglar.'"

During World War I, Johnny refereed some of the biggest bouts in France, and also was given the opportunity of being the third man in the ring in England, Belgium and Germany. In San Juan, Puerto Rico, he handled the Harry Jeffra-Sisto Escobar bantamweight championship to round out his traveling log as a referee. His big bout in big time boxing was the Max Baer-Jimmie Braddock battle in which the Cinderella man hit the top.

After McAvoy retired about 10 years ago, he relaxed during the winter months and worked at Monmouth Park during its racing season. John used to get daily selections from experts of the turf sport and mark them on his program. Each afternoon it was a continuous parade of friends to McAvoy's stand where he would generously take time to inform his friends of his so-called "inside information."

When not working, Johnny kept in excellent condition by playing handball, tennis, long walks and working out in his own gymnasium he built in the rear of his Rumson home. He was a devoted tennis player and was one-half of the Rumson tennis doubles championship for a good number of years.

He sparkled at pro-football in the days when gridders played to indoor crowds. It wasn't a gridiron in those days, it was a good old plain wooden floor in which the boys absorbed many a splinter. McAvoy also was a great swimmer. Johnny was never a champion in any of the sports in which he participated, but it took a champion to beat him.

In the past couple of months he was having trouble with his eyesight, and arrangements were being made for an operation. Because of this difficulty, he was unable to send out his Christmas cards. One of his last requests was: Tell Hy Cunningham to mention in his column the reason why McAvoy had not been able to send out his cards. This was a happy time of the year for him, and he enjoyed sending as much as receiving when it came to Christmas cards.

John L. McAvoy will be greatly missed in the borough of Rumson. He was not only a great friends of ours, he was a great friend to anyone he was associated with.

Our sincere condolences and the condolences of sportsmen

Late Spurt by St. Rose 5 Edges Caseys in Bowl Play

ASBURY PARK—A seven-point spurt in the fourth quarter broke a nip and tuck game wide open and enabled St. Rose of Belmar to defeat Red Bank Catholic, 47-35, for the championship of the Holiday "Basket-Bowl Jubilee" played in the Convention hall last week.

Sponsored by the city of Asbury Park, the tournament wound up its final night with a pair of naturals in the Purple Roses meeting the Caseys, and Asbury Park hooking up with Neptune.

In the opening contest Asbury Park edged Neptune, 48-43, in an exciting tussle. Big Bill Hutzley sparked the Bishops with 16 points and scored half of that number in the big third period.

Red Bank Catholic and St. Rose battled for three quarters before the early fourth quarter spurt put St. Rose out front to stay.

The first three quarters were slow as far as points were concerned, but both clubs were working on tight defenses. The first quarter was a 7-6 one with the Caseys taking the edge. In the second chapter, St. Rose took a two-point margin, 11-9, and then outscored Red Bank, 10-9 in the third. The fourth period was the big one with 30 points being scored, St. Rose took the edge, 20-10.

The Caseys took an early, 6-2 lead before Mike Brundage dribbled in for two, Lynch hit with a foul and Pete Moss made the count, 7-6, when he dribbled through for two points as the quarter ended.

In the slow moving second session the score was knotted at eight all and 15-15. Late in the quarter Ross scored from underneath and Eddie Slover converted a foul to make the score, 17-16, at the half.

Brundage opened the third period with a field goal followed by a foul on the play which gave the Roses a 20-16 margin. Field goals by Bill Hartman and Dennis Lynch knotted the count, but then baskets by Brundage and Ross gave St. Rose a four-point margin. Charlie Shay hit from the corner and Whalen matched that field goal. Shay and Brundage exchanged foul shots followed by Lynch's field goal for a 27-25 third quarter score.

At the start of the fourth the Roses iced the issue when Brundage dropped in a pair of fouls, Ross added another, Whalen dumped a field goal and Ross converted a pair of fouls for a nine-point lead, 34-25. After that spurt the Caseys were never able to catch up.

Lynch was top offensive man for the Caseys, netting 18 points. Kennedy, who was not hitting consistently, tallied seven points, and so did Shay.

Ross was the big gun for St. Rose with 20 points, followed by 11 markers tossed in by Whalen.

Asbury Park and Neptune were at each other's neck for three periods before Asbury got loose for a nine-point run which gave the Bishops a 38-31 lead at the end of the third.

With the count knotted at 29-all, Hutzley scored with a hook shot, then the Bishops dropped in eight of nine foul shots for a 38-29 lead. After Hutzley's field goal the foul conversions went like this, Hutzley two, Shapiro one, Sullivan one and Gatta and Kern two each.

In the final session, with three minutes to go, Coach Gus Villapiano's club had a nine-point lead. With about 90 seconds to go Neptune closed the gap to within three points, 44-41, but the Bishops managed to score four points to two for Neptune to wrap up the game.

CENTRAL WINS, 65-44

BERKELEY TOWNSHIP — Paced by Dick Pine's 23 points, Central Regional high school turned in a 65-44 victory over Brick township Tuesday night here. The win was the second in three conference games for Central Regional.

Morris Gets This One

Larry Morris, Red Bank high school cager, leaves no doubt that he was one of the rebound bosses in the Red Bank-Red Bank Catholic game Tuesday night. Morris is shown retrieving ball without much opposition from Hartman of the Caseys. Others watching are Charlie Shay, 12, and Paul Naughton, 14. Caseys lost, 62-58.

Caseys Rally After Trailing By 17 Points to Lose, 62-58

A "never-say-quit" Red Bank Catholic high school basketball team gave Red Bank its toughest battle of the season Tuesday night when the Caseys lost to the Bucs, 62-58, on the Harding rd. gym floor.

The Caseys made the game interesting for fans as they were the underdogs from the first quarter right up until they exploded in the fourth chapter.

Coach Don Czok's quintet trailed Red Bank by as much as 17 points in the late stages of the second period, and were behind 14 points at the end of the third quarter. Still not to be counted out, the Caseys caught fire and pulled to within two points with 17 seconds to go, and then just missed knotting the score when Dennis Lynch's jump shot rolled around the hoop and out.

Bucs Hold Early Lead

Red Bank held an 11-10 first quarter lead and then followed with the Bucs' best offensive action of the contest when they rolled up 15 straight points to take a 25-10 margin early in the second period.

"Scooter" Paul Hall was the big little man in the second period, keeping Red Bank well in front of the Green and Gold quintet. Of the 18 points scored in the period, Hall dunked in 12, with Vince Claglia, Larry Morris and Bob Ellison scoring the other field goals.

Morris moved the Bucs out in the first period when he stepped to the foul lane and converted four of five attempts, which gave the Bucs a 15-10 lead. Hall scored on a jump and Ellison stole the ball and drove in for a layup shot which gave Red Bank a 19-10 advantage.

The Bucs continued to have matters their way in the second quarter, and, after a six-point spurt, they held the lead, 35-18. In that spurt, Hall scored on a drive and a steal, and Ellison shook the net with a jump shot.

After outscoring the Caseys by six points in the third period, the Bucs were almost hustled right off the floor in the final session.

Fouls Hold Back Lynch

Lynch, who rode the bench most of the first half because of personal fouls, returned to action in the second half and he was like a fuse of a dynamite stick. In the final period, he and Eddie Kennedy dunked in 16 of the 19 points scored.

In the first three minutes of the fourth period, the Caseys sliced seven points off Red Bank's lead. With three and one-half minutes to play, Red Bank Catholic pulled up to a 60-54 score on Kennedy's basket. Kennedy hit again with less than three minutes to go and the Caseys trailed by only four points.

Pandemonium broke loose with 17 seconds remaining when Lynch dunked in a pair of fouls to make the count, 60-58.

After each side lost the ball, and between timeouts, it was Lynch who almost knotted the score with a one-hander that rolled around the rim and out.

Two Delayed Fouls Made

At the buzzer, Tony Howard was fouled, but there was so much excitement on the court with fans and players, it took the officials several minutes to find shooter Howard, who came out on the court after fans had the gym almost emptied. With officials and a few fans watching, Howard converted both fouls to make it a 62-58 score.

"Scooter" Hall was the player to watch as he put on a show for Buc fans. He was hot with his jump shots, scoring 18 points and one foul shot for the night. He also was a demon on steals and all around floor play. Claglia racked up 18 points and played his usual fine floor game. Morris finished with 16 points, and he was tremendous around both boards.

Kennedy, one of the aces of the Casey squad, was not a starter, but when he got into the game he soon was called a "starter." This boy started tossing in points from all areas of the court and with all types of shots. He scored 15 points in two periods and wound up the final quarter with eight markers.

Lynch, who was curtailed because of fouls, got moving when he returned, and Red Bank Catholic was a different club. Lynch started scoring in the final period when it counted, and then just missed deadlocking the score.

Doors Not Closed

The crowd was a god one, but not like the past when Frank J. Pingitore, athletic director, was forced to lock the doors for safety and playing reasons. One reason the doors might have stayed open for this game was that the Casey school is busy with mid-year examinations.

Middletown Township Loses To Neptune in Class A Tilt

NEPTUNE — Middletown township high school recovered from a bad first half, but just couldn't overhaul Neptune as the Scarlet Fliers racked up a 51-44 triumph Tuesday night. It was the opening Shore Conference class A game for both schools.

Nate Ramsey and Ray Nowlin were the Flier sparks. Each contributed 13 points. Help came from Henry Moore, 12 points, which put three Fliers in double column scoring figures.

Neptune led right from the start when moving out to a 10-1 lead, Moore scoring eight straight points. Neptune was out front, 12-3, at the end of the first quarter.

At the half Neptune led, 32-17, after outscoring the Lions, 20-14, in the second chapter. Ramsey led the winners in this period, netting eight points.

In the second half the tide changed as the Lions warmed up and outscored Neptune, 17-8, to pull within six points of the leaders, 40-34. Leon Waitt set the pace for Middletown in this rally with six markers.

Middletown kept plugging away, but never cut the gap to less than five points in the concluding period.

Waitt was high man for the Lions with 17 points.

The Fliers also won the junior varsity tilt, 50-33, and took the yearlings, 41-32.

1,625 Nominated For Two Races

CAMDEN—Sixteen hundred and twenty-five nominations have been received for the Garden State, the world's richest race, and the Gardenia, Garden State park's two outstanding tests for two-year-olds to be run during the 1959 fall meeting at the local track. Nominations closed Dec. 15.

The Garden State, which grossed $297,250 when won by C. T. Chenery's First Landing in 1958, has drawn 936 nominations. The Gardenia, which is restricted to juvenile fillies and grossed $135,960 when Reginald Webster's Quill romped home in front in last year's renewal, has drawn 836. Both winners were named champion in their respective divisions at the end of the year.

The current value of the Garden State is $118,040, this to be increased by eligibility payments of $100 each in March and $250 each in June, and entry and starting fees of $1,000 each and possible supplementary nomination fees of $10,000 each. The current value of the Gardenia is $60,565, with eligibility fees of $75 each in March, $125 each in June, entry and starting fees of $500 each and possible supplementary nominations of $5,000 each.

The international appeal of the two tests is attested by the fact that nominations include owners from Canada, England, Ireland, Puerto Rico and Cuba, as well as 39 states and the District of Columbia in this country.

Among the 11 nominees of Alfred G. Vanderbilt for the Garden State is an unnamed full brother of the great Native Dancer, a roan colt by Polynesian-Geisha. This is the first time that the Maryland sportsman has returned to the bloodlines that produced Native Dancer. Aly Khan, who presented the trophy to the winner of the Gardenia in 1958, is among the nominators for the same race this year.

Four previous winners of the Garden State have nominated for the 1959 renewal. They are Cain Hoy stable, winner of the first running with Turn-To in 1953; Elmendorf, which scored with Prince John in 1955; Calumet Farm, which sent Barbizon in to win in 1956, and Claiborne Farm, winner in 1957 with Nadir.

Both races are contested over the two-year-old championship distance of one mile and a sixteenth. No definite dates have been announced for the 1959 runnings, but the Garden State generally is scheduled for the final Saturday in October, with the Gardenia one week previously.

FREEHOLD SHOCKS ASBURY

FREEHOLD — Freehold Regional high school rallied with a 30-8 fourth quarter to shock Asbury Park, 74-44, Tuesday night on the Colonials' court. Ronnie Griffiths, Freehold center, hung up 27 points to pace the victors.

Coach Gus Villapiano, who uses more players in one game than some coaches do in three, had 16 competitors in this fray. Freehold used eight players.

Brookmeade Nominates Unnamed Colt

OCEANPORT — The nationally prominent Brookmeade Stable of Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane has nominated a colt from one of its most successful mares—Sun Mixa—to the $100,000 guaranteed gross Sapling for two-year-olds to be run during Monmouth Park's 1959 meeting.

The unnamed youngster, by the brilliant Irish thoroughbred Sea Charger, is one of 562 nominees, representing many of America's leading stables, who are eligible to the six-furlong Sapling. Entries close Jan. 15, for the Sapling, which had its inaugural running at old Monmouth Park July 24, 1883.

Sun Mixa is the dam of such stakes winners as Encore, Grand Canyon, Sunny Dale and Fertile Lands. Of the 11 foals dropped by this extraordinary daughter of Sun Briar, all are winners. Sea Charger, the sire of the Brookmeade colt, is one of Royal Charger's best sons and presently stands in this country. A stakes winner abroad, he was a close second in the Irish Derby of 1953.

The Sea Charger-Sun Mixa colt is one of seven yearlings made eligible to the Sapling by Brookmeade Stable, which held the national title in 1934 and 1950, and annually is among the leading money-winning thoroughbred racing stables in the country. Mrs. Sloane's trainer is the 34-year-old Elliot Burch, who succeeded his distinguished father, Preston Burch, last year.

Among the top stables represented with candidates for the Sapling are Calumet Farm, Cain Hoy Stable, Darby Dan Farm, Hasty House Farm, Fred W. Hooper, William G. Helis, Jr., Maine Chance Farm, Ogden Phipps, Mrs. Ada L. Rice, Alfred G. Vanderbilt and George D. Widener.

Its conditions revised this year, prompted by the growing emphasis on two-year-old racing in the country, the Sapling will be the first of a series of rich races for juveniles staged by the three New Jersey tracks. A sweep of this Golden Triangle series would net the winner more than $250,000 and boost his stature among contenders for national honors.

The new conditions of the Sapling have proved so popular with the nation's horsemen that the response to the fixture is the greatest in the history of Monmouth Park. As a result, management has made plans to pinpoint the Sapling as a highlight of its 50-day meeting, presenting this championship event in a setting worthy of the occasion. A full program of pageantry on Sapling day is being discussed by officials to insure a memorable afternoon of racing.

Foals of 1957, who were two-year-olds on New Year's day, may be made eligible to the Sapling until Jan. 15 upon payment of $25. The new conditions of the stake include provisions for a series of valuable breeders' awards.

'Y' Sets Cage Meeting Sat.

Basketball officials of the YMCA leagues have scheduled a meeting for Saturday at 3 p. m. at the YMCA building to discuss plans for a loop for seventh, eighth and ninth graders.

Cagers in this category interested in playing basketball have been urged to attend the meeting. If the turnout is large enough, leagues will be formed and competition will start the following week.

Everyone in the league will get the opportunity to play and the league will be made up according to the number in attendance.

Splits and Misses

By
PAUL A. ALBRECHT

With the ending of the old year, the Red Bank Businessmen's league finished the first half of its 1958-59 season. That first half was a doozy. The boys rolled as they never had before. Seven of the 16 teams have rolled at least one 1,000 game, the highest being a 1,094 by Red Bank Recreation, the most being two each by Red Bank Roofing, DeFalco's Hardware, Red Bank Recreation, Arnone's Texaco Service and Monmouth Lumber. Red Bank Recreation came close to rolling a 3,000 series, just missing with 2,992. In this category, DeFalco's Hardware heads the list with two 2,900 series. Roofing, Recreation, Arnone's, Marx Brothers and Crate's Beverages have one each. All teams have rolled at least one 2,700 series and only three teams have failed to hit the 2,800 mark. Sal's tavern is top team in the number rolled with six 2,700 sets and two 2,800s. Sal's tavern is averaging 901 without a 1,000 game or a 2,900 set, yet is only in second place with a two and a half game deficit. Red Bank Roofing holds that top slot with an 897 average. Third place DeFalco's Hardware has a 902 average and is four and a half games out. The high average team is Arnone's Texaco with 904, yet is down in fourth place with four games less in the win column than the Roofers. The low average teams are Kimmerle Paints and Old Village inn, 867. This is an 870 league and the above two teams, plus John Daniel's Men's shop, 868, and Nat's Jewelers, 869, are the only ones below the league average.

Adding the total number of series rolled and comparing this with the number of 2,700 or better series turned in by the teams, we find that better than one third have been in this category. Similarly checking the 900 or better games, we find that almost 40 per cent of the 768 games rolled were in this range. All this adds up to a league average of 886. Sal's tavern proves that steady bowling keeps a team on top. This team has not hit a 1,000 game nor a 2,900 series, yet it is in second place only two and a half games out. Sal's Barbers is almost duplicating Sal's tavern. The barbers' high game is 999 and high series is 2,877, yet is in sixth place, six games behind.

There is a certain amount of luck involved in any sport. Bowling is no exception. Looking over the results of the first half of the season in the Red Bank Businessmen's loop, however, it seems that tough luck plays a more important part than good luck. The Progressive Life Insurance company has the eighth highest average in the league, 890, yet it was only last week that it reached the 500 mark in won and lost. This is the team that rolled three 900 games one night to total 2,770 and yet lost all three. That was the night that Marx Brothers picked to roll a 1,060 game and a 2,960 series. The Marx Brothers team came in for a little tough luck that night itself. Ordinarily, both counts would have been high, but Red Bank Recreation was a mite hotter that same night and hit for 1,094 and 2,992. Fate must have been feeling exceptionally quirkish that night as the Recreation team could win only two games. Sal's Barber Shop took the final one with a 966 score. At that, the Barbers rolled in its own tough luck. The Barbers rolled a 2,877 total on games of 974, 937 and 966, yet lost the first two.

Of the 304 900 games rolled, 59 were in losing causes and two in a tie. Perhaps a clue to why Red Bank Roofing is on top is the fact that it has lost only three 900 games while rolling good enough to beat the other teams six times when that team amassed 900 or better. Progressive Life Insurance has the poorest record along these lines, having lost six 900 games and beating the opposition only twice. Old Village inn is in the basement, yet has won four times out of six. Kimmerle Paints has been involved the fewest number of times in these 900 to 900 matches — four times — and has broken even. Sal's Barbers has been involved more than any other team — 11 times — and has won only four of these games. Marx Brothers, on the other hand, has the best record. Of 10 such set-tos, the Marx team has won seven. Yet here, too, we see the quirk of fate. Marx Brothers is seven games from the top and yet is sporting an 892 average, eighth high. Alvino's Texaco and Old Village inn make the picture complete by becoming involved in a 914 tie game.

If any bowler has a defeatist attitude, the Red Bank Businessmen's league is no place for him. Sal's Barbers rolled a 974 game against Red Bank Recreation and lost the game by 120 pins. That was the game that Red Bank Recreation collected 1,094 pins. Other heart breakers: Red Bank Roofing lost to DeFalco's Hardware, 952 to 977; Crate's Beverages lost to Progressive Life Insurance, 956 to 973; Marx Brothers beat Old Village inn, 957 to 952; Grilli Construction beat Red Bank Recreation, 961 to 953, and Sal's tavern, 957 to 946. Individually, Harry Greenwood should feel let down. Harry rolled a hot 264 Dec. 15. Up until that night, the second high game in the league was a 258. This should have made him second high, but alas, that same game Tony Caprioni rolled a 274. Then to add insult to injury, Sonny Acerra came up with a 265 the next game, and Harry is now out of the money. All in one night. Some weeks prior, Amory Osborn had totaled 288, and this is still tops. Les Jones has the high series of 681. Ed Gaunt is second with 667 and Fred J. Bruno, third with 655. Quite a league this season.

The Fair Haven firemen may not win the A division title in the Shore Firemen's league, but their top kegler, Chum Chandler, is well on his way to winning two individual prizes. A few weeks ago, Chum poured strike after strike in that one-three pocket and came up with a 288 game. Last Friday night, on his home alleys at Fair Haven, Chum continued his fine aim on that one-three pocket with games of 258, 189 and 257 for the division leading series of 704. This is the first 700 set of the season reported to this column, and we believe that it will stand up. Congratulations, Chum.

A. C. Radio and Television has a head start for the second half of the season in the Red Bank Recreation Wednesday Night league. With 45 games in the record book, the TV boys are much better than that two of three record required of a champion. Thirty-three wins and 12 losses is almost three of four. Four games in arrears is Atlantic hotel, which in turn is a like number ahead of Marx Brothers. There are 51 games left of the schedule, so a four-game lead is far from comfortable, yet it is an advantage. The other teams must win that many more to pull even, much less pass the front runner. It is all A. C. Radio and Television. This is the team with the only 1,000 game — 1,009 — and the high threesome of 2,750.

Sponsor Armand Crupi is responsible for his team's high station in life. He has really rolled this season and is sporting 179. Andy DeNucci is the high average man by virtue of having knocked over 14 more pins than Armand, so we will declare it a tie for high average. Andy also owns high series with his 651, and Bill Vendevelde's 253 is the high game. Dink Allen is roaring right along and may yet take over the lead as he is just one pin per game behind the leaders. Another pin back is Floyd Schlafone and Dodo Acerra. Quite a close race.

Mil Garment used to dominate this league, but not this season. At present, Mil Garment is trying to stay in the first division with a 24½ and 20½ record. This is only two games better than Davison's Maintenance, four and a half better than Globe bar and six and a half better than Bernard J. Marx agency. Rumson Radio and Television team is at the other end of the band from A. C., having won but eight games of the 45 rolled to date, and is the only team averaging under 800. A look shows that team averages go right down the line in accordance with the games won and lost.

Clayton's Meats is moving ahead in the Middletown Women's Bowling league. Here, as in the Red Bank Wednesday night league, the leading team is bowling at a good clip and has won 30 of the 42 games rolled. Harold's Radio and Electric has climbed into second place, five and a half games behind Clayton's, and also has the high three-game series with a 2,232. In third place is Middletown Lanes with 23 and 19, for a seven-game deficit, but owns the only 800 game in the league, an 828. Bahr's Landing is tied with Middletown and is a full length up on Monmouth Street Cuiso. Lafayette's Dairy, Gehlhaus Bakery, El-Moc-Kl, Robert A. Braun and Red Bank Service Center make up the second division in this loop.

Dot McCue is well on her way to copping the average crown with a 183 count. Jean McKay is the nearest contendor with 180 and Anne Albrecht rounds out the 150 gals with 155. Joan McCay has a good chance of taking the high individual game and series awards with her 248 and 621 counts. Of course, anything can happen but these are tough counts to beat.

New Jersey's New Fishing Code in Effect

Regulations Explained By William Coffin, Conservation Officer

TRENTON — New Jersey fishermen now may angle for game fish under the 1959 fishing code which eliminates closed seasons, the state division of fish and game, Department of Conservation and Economic Development, has announced.

However, William P. Coffin, chief conservation officer of the state division of fish and game, reminded licensed fishermen the new regulations require that each angler who fishes for or possesses trout must have a trout stamp from Jan. 1, opening day of the trout season, until June 30.

The 1959 fish and game code launched the trout and landlocked salmon seasons Jan. 1. It continues until March 15. The seasons will be reopened April 11 and will extend until March 1, 1960. This will provide continuous trout fishing in New Jersey except during the period from March 15 to April 11, when the state fish and game division will carry out its annual stream stocking program.

Under the new fish and game code adopted Dec. 16, there will be no closed season during 1959 in open inland waters on pikeperch (walleyed pike), pickerel (Eastern or chain, sometimes called pike), smallmouth (black) bass, and largemouth (Oswego) bass. However, there are separate regulations for Greenwood lake and for the Delaware river.

Mr. Coffin warns that fishermen who catch trout while fishing for pickerel through the ice or in open waters may retain the trout in their possession only if they have the proper trout stamp in addition to the required fishing license. Legislation has been introduced to require that trout fishermen have this stamp in possession throughout the calendar year.

The new fish and game code requires that the trout season for 1959 commence one half hour before sunrise New Years day and extend to midnight, March 15. Then the trout season will reopen at 8 a. m. Saturday, April 11, and extend to and include Feb. 29, 1960. During the months of April, May and June, certain streams will be closed one or two days a week to permit restocking. After May 11, certain streams of the state will become exclusive fly-fishing stretches.

During the new year there will be no minimum size limit on trout. The creel limit will be six trout per day, whether taken in fly-fishing or other waters. Possession limit is one day's catch. The minimum size of landlocked salmon which may be taken is 15 inches and the daily bag limit is two.

The minimum size limit for Eastern chain pickerel in Lake Hopatcong will be 15 inches. There will be no minimum size limit on Eastern chain pickerel in any other waters of the state. The minimum length of largemouth (Oswego) bass and smallmouth (black) bass in all waters will be nine inches. Daily bag and possession limit for largemouth (Oswego) bass and smallmouth (black) bass is not more than five in the aggregate. Fishing for all species of fresh water fish is permitted 24 hours daily (except in fly-fishing trout waters) and those trout streams closed during April, May and June.

Police Bag Parakeet, Owner Still Unknown

LITTLE SILVER—An addition to the police department occurred here the day after Christmas with the acquisition of a yellow parakeet.

Police Chief Fred Ziegler said he was called to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. Guadagno, Azalea ct., where Mrs. Guadagno reported that the bird had landed on a windowsill. The chief said he had no trouble rounding up the bird, which was "nearly frozen."

A cage was loaned by Special Officer Warren Herbert, and the young bird responded to the policemen's care. Chief Ziegler said he has been watching the "lost and found" columns, but no one has advertised the bird's loss. If someone doesn't claim him soon, the police appropriation may have to be upped. "He's eating nearly a box of seed every two days," the chief said, "and is chirping happily."

Gray Squirrel, Rabbit Story Is Featured

TRENTON — New Jersey's most overlooked game, the gray squirrel, is discussed in the January edition of "New Jersey Outdoors," along with the cottontail rabbit, New Jersey's most popular game species, the state division of fish and game, Department of Conservation and Economic Development, has announced.

More than 200,000 squirrels are bagged by hunters in New Jersey each fall, second only to the rabbit kill, which was more than 500,000 last season. The squirrel bag also is about double the usual pheasant kill, which runs from 90,000 to 150,000 a year. Despite the large number of squirrels taken annually, the bulk of the population goes unharvested and is lost to disease, predators, automobiles and other assorted causes.

Jules W. Marron, Sr., supervisor of public relations of the division of fish and game, is author of the article, "Bunnies, Bunnies and More Bunnies." Details of an experimental cottontail rabbit production at the Forked River game farm are also recited by Philip T. Grant, superintendent of the farm. "Co-ordination of Man's Future in Conservation" by Mr. Marron is also in the January edition.

A pictorial story of the opening of the 1958 upland game season in New Jersey is included in the new issue, as well as a study of Spotswood lake by Roland F. Smith, principal fisheries biologist of the division of fish and game. Also included are "Ice Fishing Tricks" by Jack Phillips, Council Highlights, Co-operators Corner, "Fur, Fin and Campfire" by Jack Sords, Press Gleanings, Field Notes, Club News, and Violators Roundup.

In the first half, Jamesburg stayed within striking distance, 26-17. Matawan then exploded in the third with a 19-9 period and went wild for a 22-6 concluding quarter.

Tim Magee, big Huskie forward, was the big scorer in the contest with 20 points. Pete Bennett was next with 12 markers and Neil Scully dunked 10 markers.

Jamesburg tried a tight zone defense, but it failed to bother the Huskies as they expertly hit from the outside.

Matawan won the junior varsity game, 48-21, with Roland Peterson netting 10 points for the winners.

A Bony Battle

If this duel with a skeleton looks fantastic, it is. The scene is from Columbia Pictures' 'The 7th Voyage of Sinbad,' a film made in the exciting new Dynamation process. The swordsman is Kerwin Mathews as Sinbad. The feature will open at the Carlton theater Tuesday for five days. Two science fiction pictures, 'From the Earth to the Moon' and 'Queen of the Outer Space' are to be shown Friday and Saturday.

Signaleers Play Home Tonight

FORT MONMOUTH — The Fort Monmouth basketball team, after a three-week holiday layoff, resumes action tonight when the Signaleer cagers oppose Penn university's JV team at the field house.

Another home tilt this week will have the Signalmen playing the Lafayette college Jayvees Saturday, starting at 2 p.m. This is the only week-end matinee action on Monmouth's home slate.

The Penn game tonight will be Monmouth's first action since Dec. 18 when the Signalmen adjourned for the Christmas holiday with a 5-4 record. Earlier this season at Philly, the Signaleers trimmed Penn, 82-78, to take an 11-4 lead in the series.

The game with Lafayette Saturday will be the 10th meeting between the two clubs. Monmouth holds a 6-3 advantage.

January will be a busy month for the Signalmen as they have 12 contests booked. All but two of these games are scheduled at the field house.

Manasquan Club Rips Branchers

LONG BRANCH — Undefeated Manasquan added another game to its string Tuesday night when rolling over Long Branch, 75-54, in the opening of the Shore Conference competition for both A Division schools.

In the second the Branchers were left in a 21-6 dust and then trailed, 16-8, in the third quarter. Both clubs had the range in the final session with Long Branch getting the edge, 23-20.

Big Mel Wood was the hot spark for the victors, netting 21 points. Jack Neary nabbed 12 and Jerry Melkon tagged the nets for 11 tallies.

Marty Robinson and Les Wright were the only Long Branch cagers in double figures. Robinson hit for 19 and Wright 11 markers.

Holmdel Zone Plan Delayed; Hear Trailer Proposal Feb. 2

HOLMDEL—The planning board announced Tuesday night that the final stages of its master plan will be turned over to the township within a week.

It also was announced that Morrow Associates, Inc., master planners, will present the zoning report later in the month.

William B. Harding, chairman of the master plan committee, said the Morrow firm informed him that the final stage of the plan was completed Dec. 22, but publishing difficulties had delayed delivery of the report.

According to Mr. Harding, the master planners reported that the zoning report is 98 per cent complete.

The board set next Monday night aside to meet with the Morrow firm on the plan, should it be delivered this week.

Mr. Harding reported that the master planners have suggested that a series of public hearings be held by township officials to discuss the report.

According to Mr. Harding, the Morrow firm recommended that hearings be broken down into discussions of specific sections of the plan, such as the "Hazlet area," "Centerville area," and so on.

To Set Dates

The board indicated it will set dates for the hearings if it meets Monday night.

The master planners also recommended that the township make copies of the final report available in the library so that residents could borrow the report and study it. In connection with this, Mr. Harding said, the Morrow firm suggested that a $2 to $5 deposit fee be set if copies are loaned out.

The board received official notice that the plaintiffs in the one-acre zone case have filed an appeal with the appellate division of Superior court.

J. Frank Weigand, township attorney, said that in his opinion should a new zoning ordinance be adopted as a result of recommendations in the zoning report, the appeal would be dropped, and the plaintiffs would have to file suit all over again if they still were dissatisfied with the new ordinance.

The board held over until next month's meeting, recommendations on the proposed trailer courts on property off Middle rd., near Laurel ave.

Bernard Goldsmith, planning board chairman, said the board would listen to objections regarding the trailer courts at that time.

Offers Data

Edward Farry, Keyport attorney who represents residents living within 1½ miles of the site, offered to submit data to the board on the health hazards that he said would be created by the construction of the courts. Mr. Goldsmith asked Mr. Farry to submit the data for board study.

Mr. Farry iterated his clients' objections to the courts, and told the board that the plan was "a cancerous situation which must be approached with caution."

He said the installation of septic tanks in that area would create a dangerous health situation because of the water table.

Otis R. Seaman, township engineer, in a report to the township committee, said that septic tanks proposed for the courts are "too light" and that a better type is needed.

In the report, which was read to the board, Mr. Seaman noted that the depth from ground level to the water table was substandard and should be checked by health officials.

The report also recommends that a 10-foot wide easement strip running to the nearby brook be obtained so that a 15-inch drain could be installed.

Mr. Seaman noted that the plans call for a 44-foot wide roadway, with an eight-foot parking strip. He recommended that parking be limited to the actual coach plot as there is ample room for parking there.

Mr. Weigand noted that an ordinance limiting the number of trailer parks to two was adopted by the township committee after research found that an ordinance barring all camps from the community would not stand up in court.

Hospital Asks Financial Aid

For the third straight year, Monmouth Medical Center has appealed to Red Bank council for financial help in treatment of needy patients from the borough.

Edwin Bry, a member of the board of governors of the hospital, said the "problem of free care has never been effectively tackled" by individual communities or the county board of freeholders.

He told council that under certain conditions, municipalities are responsible for the care of indigent patients. He did not outline the conditions.

Mr. Bry asked council to include in its 1959 budget some appropriation for the hospital to help care for needy patients coming from Red Bank.

Reminding council that this was his third appearance, Mr. Bry said, "Three strikes are out, boys." He indicated that some steps will be taken under the law to have the borough pay for hospital treatment of its indigent patients. Again he did not go into details.

Mayor George A. Gray assured Mr. Bry that consideration would be given to his request during upcoming budget meetings.

Plans are progressing for the garden competition the club will hold May 23 for Fair Haven residents. Also in the spring, members will visit New Jersey's garden at Rutgers university in New Brunswick.

Garden Club Hears Prof

NAVESINK — Dr. Erwin R. Biel, professor of meteorology at the college of agriculture at Rutgers university, spoke to the Garden club Tuesday on the subject of "Climate and Weather."

He was born in Vienna, Austria, received his Ph D degree at the University of Vienna, and has been at Rutgers since 1938.

In his talk, Dr. Biel explained to members how it is possible to change the air temperature around low growing plants and shrubs by planting trees, walls and other obstacles to create shade and cooler air or by removing same to give more warmth from the sun. He also noted that sunken gardens are colder because of down-drafts and wind than gardens planted on level ground.

Announcement was made that the annual birthday luncheon will be held Tuesday, Feb. 3, at Crystal Brook inn, Eatontown, at noon. Reservations will be taken by Mrs. Ward Denison.

Mrs. Harry Austin and Mrs. Graham Ashmead with their committee made five wreaths, three swags and sent two poinsettia plants to Fort Monmouth in December for patients in the wards.

The authority said it is continuing its drive for 100 per cent observance of the automatic operations "in the interest of sound business and in fairness to the more than 99.9 per cent of the parkway motorists who use the automatic collectors without attempting to outwit them."

FREEHOLD—A time restriction on two borough parking lots will have its effect on county employees working in the hall of records.

Council adopted an ordinance Monday night which will limit parking in the Court st. parking lot to two hours and parking on Lafayette st., behind the hall of records, to one hour. Parking was unrestricted in both spots before passage of the ordinances.

Mayor Barton Callahan said the action was taken because the borough's parking problem has become serious. He said the board of freeholders "haven't co-operated" to provide adequate off-street parking for county employees.

KofC Home Is Approved

FAIR HAVEN—The mayor and council—in its last piece of 1958 business—granted a variance to the Columbus club of Red Bank to have a clubhouse on the Calandriello property, Third st. and Fair Haven rd.

The action came before the governing body's reorganization meeting Thursday.

The clubhouse will provide a meeting place for Red Bank council, Knights of Columbus. The Columbus club owns property on Wikoff pl., Red Bank, where it at one time had planned to construct a home.

Borough Clerk Roy W. Nelson said the structure which stands on the property is a non-conforming use in a residential zone. It was used to house trucks, he said.

In order for the Columbus group to add on to the structure—another non-conforming use—a variance was needed, he stated.

A number of stipulations were set up which the club must follow. They include:

1. No parking nearer to Fair Haven rd. than 30 feet from the westerly line of the existing sidewalk on the west side.

2. No parking allowed any nearer to Third st. than 15 feet from the southerly curb line of the street.

3. The driveway to Fair Haven rd. can only be used for egress.

4. A sign will be permitted on the property, but it can not be any larger than 36x48 inches and can not be closer to Fair Haven rd. than 20 feet from the westerly line of the sidewalk.

In the only other business, the mayor and council received the thanks of the Chamber of Commerce for permitting the chief of police to supply transportation for the judges during the Christmas home decorating contest.

See Rt. 35 Widening Soon

SHREWSBURY — Widening of the section of rt. 35 which passes through this borough is slated for sometime this year.

This was the report by Mayor Bernard B. White at council's meeting Tuesday night.

Mayor White made the report in answer to continuing inquiries from residents concerning installation of sidewalks on the west side of Broad st. (rt. 35).

The mayor read a letter from Otis R. Seaman, borough engineer, which said the state highway department had indicated the widening would be completed this year.

The demand for sidewalks on the west side of Broad st. has been made on and off for several years. Cost of installing the sidewalks would be assessed against property owners along Broad st. Parents of school children claim the lack of sidewalks is a safety hazard for youngsters who walk to school.

Construction Falls Sharply

SHREWSBURY — Construction here fell off more than 50 per cent during 1958 compared to the 1957 building figure.

J. Robert Sagurton, building inspector, in his year-end report, said the total estimated value of new construction for which building permits were issued was $343,095 in 1958. The 1957 figure for new construction was $692,829.80.

However, 74 building permits were issued last year—70 were issued in 1957.

Monthly figures on the issuance of permits reflect the dip in the nation's economy early last year. Only 25 permits were issued during the first six months of 1958, with 49 permits being issued in the last half of the year. September was the leading month for permits—24 were issued. Ten permits were given out in April and August.

Construction of 23 new residences accounted for $285,000 of the total value of building in the borough. Forty-two permits were issued for alterations to residences. Estimated value of the alterations was $39,270. One new business building accounted for $9,000, and alterations and additions to businesses accounted for five permits and an estimated $8,575 in construction costs. Three permits were issued for miscellaneous work at a cost of $750.

Taxes and Appointments Face Legislators as Session Nears

TRENTON (AP)—Both houses of New Jersey's legislature will be back in session briefly Tuesday morning to tie up any loose ends left from the 1958 affairs. In the afternoon, the new legislative year will start.

Leaders have said a few minor bills might be rushed through one house or the other. None looked for concerted action on any major matter.

The Democratic assembly is slated to confirm selection of William Kurtz of South Amboy as speaker. Maurice V. Brady of Jersey City will take over as majority leader, and Alfred N. Beadleston of Shrewsbury as Republican minority leader.

Seantors will promote Wesley L. Lance of Glen Gardner to senate president. George W. Harper of Layton takes Sen. Lance's place as majority leader. Joseph W. Cowgill of Camden is the new Democratic minority leader.

An Important Chairman

On that day, Sen. Lance is to announce his choice of an appropriations committee chairman.

This is one of the most important appointments in Jersey's government this year for two reasons:

1. The chairman traditionally moves up to majority leader the next year and senate president in 1961—where he would become acting governor should Gov. Robert B. Meyner be elected to national office; or would be in a position to run for U. S. Senator himself.

2. The appropriations committee will have to wrestle with the state budget. Finding a popular way to balance the next budget will require the wisdom of Solomon.

The most Gov. Meyner's fiscal experts can find in the way of expected income now, is 378 million dollars. Even the most drastic pruning of state expenses can't go below 400 million. So there's a gap of at least 22 million dollars there which needs to be closed. The gap is more likely to be 35 million.

Assemblyman Kurtz may reflect the Meyner administration's thinking when he says the assembly Democrats will not increase the 1¾ per cent corporate profits tax, may raise the cigarette and-or liquor taxes, and will probably not include a sales or income tax.

Referendum Held Likely

Mr. Kurtz says any proposal for a sales tax probably will be put to the voters in a referendum next November, leaving it to them to say whether they want to pay the bill for increased state services.

Those considered the leading contenders for the appropriations chairman are Sens. Walter H. Jones of Bergen, Thomas Hillery of Morris, and Charles W. Sandman of Cape May. Sen. Hillery probably has the edge.

Sen. Jones, coming from New Jersey's banner Republican county, normally would get the post since this is the year for a representative of a "big" county. Sen. Jones also has represented the legislature as counsel in many difficult lawsuits. But he has managed to make himself unpopular with some of his colleagues for what they call his grandstanding, lateness to sessions and outspoken manner.

Lance for Governor

This presents a poser for Sen. Lance. It is believed he would like to be governor. Could he afford to put a potential rival in a jump-off position? But on the other hand could he afford to alienate Sen. Jones by not appointing him or could he do without Sen. Bergen's support?

Sen. Hillery has equal seniority in the senate with Sen. Jones, and has had some service, although not as recently as Sen. Jones, on the appropriations committee.

Sen. Sandman has support because of his post as chairman of the New Jersey (Republican) conference and since he would give South Jersey representation in the senate leadership. Sen. Sandman has the backing of powerful Sen. Frank S. Farley (R-Atlantic).

All three senators are actively seeking the job—but when one looks at the budget problems to be faced, one wonders why.

2 New Councilmen Sworn; To Modernize Borough Hall

LITTLE SILVER — Announcement of a plan to modernize the borough hall highlighted Mayor P. Paul Campi's annual message at the New Year's day reorganization meeting, during which two new councilmen were sworn into office.

The new councilmen, Republicans, are Douglas C. Wright and Nelson M. Ayers. They were administered the oaths of office by Borough Clerk Fred L. Ayers. They defeated Councilman Arthur L Cone, Jr., and Michael F. Guadagno, Democrats, last November. The political makeup of the governing body has Mayor Campi, a Democrat, presiding over an all-Republican council.

In his address, Mayor Campi said council intends to "gradually modernize the present building" rather than build an addition to the fire house. He said a fireproof vault will be constructed to safeguard vital borough records, and that meeting quarters for public groups will be provided on the second floor.

Most of the mayor's address dealt with accomplishments in the past year, and prospects for the future. Among his recommendations was the acquisition of additional recreational and waterfront facilities. The address appears in its entirety elsewhere in this issue.

Folsom Is President

In other business, Councilman Charles E. Folsom was elected council president.

Council committees appointed by the mayor, and unanimously approved, include: finance and bonds, Mr Folsom, Mr. Wright and Lewis R. Lowry; roads and sanitation, Edward F. Torre, Mr. Ayres and Mr. Folsom; lights, ordinances and insurance, Mr. Wright, Mr. Lowry and Mr. Ayres; fire and water, Mr. Lowry, Charles W. Stephens and Mr. Wright; police, Mr. Stephens, Mr. Folsom and Mr. Torre, and public buildings and grounds, Mr. Ayres, Mr. Torre and Mr. Stephens.

Other appointments by the mayor included Otis R. Seaman, engineer; Roberts, Pillsbury and Carton, attorney; Orlando P. Warden, street superintendent; Mrs. Harriet Balkan, librarian and director of welfare; Warren M. Herbert, Albert J. Kolman, Richard D. Tetley, George A. Quimby, Mrs. Marna Croft and Morrell Moore, special police officers; Fred Ziegler, chief of police; Walter E. Ingram, Jr., member of the board of health; Richard D. Porter, magistrate, and Samuel Sacco, borough hall custodian.

Elmer O. Stevens was reappointed borough auditor, and meetings were continued on the second and fourth Tuesdays at 8:15 p. m.

On hand for the brief "closing out" meeting of 1958 were Councilmen Cone and Victor P. Satter. Mr. Satter, a councilman 23 years, did not seek re-election in November.

Among the spectators was Joseph C. Davison, former mayor, who was defeated by Mayor Campi in November, 1957. After the meeting, he congratulated the new councilmen, and extended New Year's greetings to Mr. Campi.

Campi Appoints Bldg. Inspector

LITTLE SILVER — Mayor P. Paul Campi appointed Robert T. Maver building inspector at the New Year's day reorganization meeting of the mayor and council.

Mr. Maver succeeds Winfield S. Wainwright, who held the post 12 years.

Mr. Wainwright's letter of resignation was received at council's Dec. 23 meeting. A letter of appreciation of his services was sent him by the mayor and council. In commenting on the resignation, Mayor Campi said Mr. Wainwright's letter came as a surprise, and that he had spent three hours unsuccessfully trying to persuade him to reconsider.

Mr. Maver, a resident here 18 years, has practiced mechanical engineering 20 years in designing and constructing public utility power plants. For the last several years, he has been engaged in the design of piping systems, plant layouts and construction of chemical plants and oil refineries.

Mr. Maver is a zone warden in the Civil Defense and Disaster Control council, and is a member of the fire company. He and his wife live at 302 Silverside ave. They have two children, Glenn Maver, a Red Bank high school student, and Miss Ellen Maver, who is in the school of nursing at St. Luke's hospital, New York city.

Mr. Maver is a member of Mystic lodge, F&AM, of Red Bank and an elder of the Shrewsbury Presbyterian church.

Other details included 356 record books and index books rebound, 238 record binders used to accommodate the 29,257 papers recorded during the year, and 250 record binders manufactured by the county's own bookbinder, "making it possible to get a better grade of materials at a considerable saving in price."

In his report, Mr. Woolley praised Deputy County Clerk William L. Ulrich, Chief Court Clerk John Miraglia, Naturalization Clerk Mary A. Collins, and his staff.

3 Long Branch Fires Rout 12, Injure 3

LONG BRANCH—Three persons were injured and 12 made homeless by three separate house fires here Tuesday afternoon.

One of the three men hurt was a motorist, Harry Solomon, 227 Castlewall ave. The car he was driving hit a fire-bound Branchport Hose company engine at Bath and Westwood aves.

The others injured were firemen. Elmer Florko of Neptune Hose company suffered a possible fractured hip when he fell from the roof of a house at 681 Morford ave. Monmouth Medical center reported his condition as good. Donald Henry of the Atlantic Engine & Truck company, injured his hand in a fall from a fire truck.

A 90 Per Cent Loss

David Smith, 416 Sairs ave., estimated a 90 per cent loss from a fire that gutted a converted three-story apartment house at 412 Sairs ave. The 12 persons who lived in the building were left without homes temporarily. No immediate cause was found for the blaze which did an estimated $20,000 worth of damages.

The residents, who escaped unhurt, were Mr. and Mrs. Leroy "Bud" Curtis and their children, Susan, 1-½, and Richard, 5; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Willms; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Schwartz and their 3-½-month-old daughter, Bonnie Sue; Mrs. Johanna Avekuk, an Estonian refugee, her daughter, Eva, and the latter's daughter, Tia, 18.

Mrs. Avekuk's daughter told police that three times before this the family had lost all its possessions. A total loss was reported by Mrs. Curtis, who had been planning a birthday party for Richard.

Arrangements were made for those made homeless to stay with neighbors and relatives.

The two other fires were on Morford ave. About $200 in roof damage occurred to a two-story house owned by Vincent Lagroteria, Jr., at 663 Morford ave. The blaze originated from the burning of straw near the house. After the firemen left the scene, they were called back. The house next door, owned by Carl L. Whitehurst, at 661 Morford ave., was ablaze. Some $2,000 was reported in damages from the latter fire.

Fire trucks from Monmouth Beach and West Long Branch joined those from nine city companies at the Sairs ave. blaze.

Four Sworn in at Rumson; Mayor Outlines Projects

RUMSON — Announcement by Mayor Peter Cartmell that the borough council proposes to buy property on the riverfront back of the borough hall for a launching area, and three lots on River rd. in the Victory park area to alleviate traffic congestion highlighted the reorganization meeting of the governing body New Year's day.

The mayor said that when these projects are accomplished the council would be in position to restrict street-end parking and also parking on River rd. where the street is narrow. In the latter case he said the parking lots would be located near Gardella's and Finnerty's markets and Victory park.

Mayor Cartmell said council has engaged Community Planning Associates as consultants on planning matters at a nominal cost.

He praised Edwin F. Connor, who was appointed borough mechanic last October. Savings in his department so far, he said, have equalled his salary.

New Post Office, Bank?

A new post office building and establishment of a branch office of a local bank were projects which should become realities in the near future, Mayor Cartmell said.

Some of the improvements under council consideration were started during the administration of former Mayor Francis Nary, the mayor said, and others were initiated by the present body.

Sworn in by the mayor for new terms on the council were Charles B. Harding, W. Dinsmore Banks, Charles S. Callman and Harry Sundermeyer. Mr. Harding was re-elected president of the council.

Edward Sherman was inducted as fire chief and Edward McSorley as assistant chief by Mayor Cartmell. An ex-chief's badge was presented to John Slocum by the mayor.

The following committees were appointed, the chairman in each case being named first: Finance — Harding, Banks, Harry C. Cronan, Sundermeyer; Police — Sundermeyer, Harding, William F. Halleran, Banks; Fire — Banks, Sundermeyer; Callman, Halleran; Streets — Halleran, Callman, Harding, Cronan; Public properties and utilities—Cronan, Halleran, Banks, Callman, and Sanitation — Callman, Cronan, Halleran, Sundermeyer.

Meeting nights of the council were unchanged: the second and fourth Thursdays at 8:30 p. m.

Rev. Edward J. Costello, assistant pastor of the Rumson Presbyterian church, gave the invocation and benediction.

Moonwatchers Spot Satellite

FORT MONMOUTH — Peter Ross, computer for the Moonwatch team here, and V. J. Kubiln, another employee here, spotted America's Atlas satellite yesterday at 4:53 a. m.

The men were watching from the beach in Long Branch and the satellite passed from west to east. Miss Anne Stommel, team secretary, said the satellite may be visible to shore residents tomorrow at 5:14 a. m. about 38 degrees above the horizon.

Anyone who gets up early enough to look for the satellite should remember, the teams says, that it is difficult to see because the satellite tumbles at the rate of once every three minutes, and is only visible for five seconds on each turn when it is broadside to the sun.

Holmdel 1-Acre Zone Ruling Appeal Filed

HOLMDEL — Attorneys for 16 plaintiffs announced this week that an appeal has been filed in the appelate division of Superior court, challenging a Superior court decision of Sept. 26 which upheld the validity of one-acre zoning within the township.

Neither Edward W. Currie, Matawan, nor Joseph T. Crause, Red Bank, attorneys for the plaintiffs, would indicate whether they were prepared to introduce new evidence in the case.

Both attorneys said that a hearing in the appellate division would not come before March.

The plaintiffs contend that the one-acre zoning created in December, 1956, prevented them from selling their land "for its best use," meaning for mass housing construction, and therefore amounted to confiscation.

They also argued that Raritan township, which borders on Holmdel, had "set the pattern for smaller lot sizes in that area."

In upholding one-acre zoning, Superior Court Judge Edward J. Ascher, citing two New Jersey court decisions, that "the welfare of the community for all time cannot be subordinated to the profit motive of an individual landowner."

Judge Ascher said that, "It is entirely consistent with theory of planning to provide after a careful study of conditions of a community a means of preventing changes in the character thereof . . . pending the formulation of a detailed and completely comprehensive plan for the municipality."

Bernard Goldsmith, chairman of the planning board, announced that public hearing on recommendations of Morrow Associates, Inc., planning consultants for rezoning of the township will be conducted this month.

The defense of one-acre zoning cost the township $10,350.

Waters Protests Democratic Appointments in Matawan

MATAWAN TOWNSHIP — Peter J. Waters, the first Republican elected here in more than 10 years, indicated Friday that he will not be a "me-too" official.

Mr. Waters was sworn in as a member of the township committee at the annual reorganization meeting in municipal building.

He immediately challenged the appointments of Democratic Mayor John Marz, Jr., and assailed the two Democratic committeemen "for failure to consult" him before the list was prepared.

"How can I vote 'yes' or 'no' on any of these appointments," Mr. Waters said, "without even having seen the names? I hope this is not the way you plan to do business in the future."

The GOP official's action caused Mr. Marz to "vacate" his chair as mayor in order to second various appointment motions, which were made by Committeeman Stephen J. Kalleta.

Not in the Law

Mr. Waters was particularly critical of the reappointment of Committeeman Kalleta to a five-year term on the sewer authority. Mr. Marz said that it was "the law" that every member of the township committee must be appointed to the authority.

When Mr. Waters challenged the statement, Township Attorney Ezra W. Karkus checked the statute.

"The law does not require that members of the township committee be members of the sewer authority," Mr. Karkus declared.

"I must have had a lapse of memory," Mayor Marz replied.

"Well it clears up at least one point," Mr. Waters commented. He refused to second the motion, and the appointment was then put through by the two Democrats.

Another verbal battle broke out on the question of night meetings.

"Residents and taxpayers have a right to know what is going on in this town," Mr. Waters declared, "and the only way that is possible is to conduct meetings at night."

Says It Won't Work

"It's been tried and it doesn't work," Mr. Marz replied. "All you get is a lot of argument and you sit here all night without getting anything accomplished."

"Well, there is no doubt that a majority of residents want night meetings," Mr. Waters said. "There is no reason why we have to be different from other municipalities in the county. If the meetings are conducted properly, there will be no problem."

The mayor said that he would "consider" a request by Mr. Waters to start by having one day and one night meeting each month but that the decision would take "a while."

Appointments were made as follows:

Mr. Karkus, township attorney; Joseph J. Seaman, Perth Amboy, auditor; Mrs. Pauline K. Behr, treasurer; Karl F. Heuser, streets and water system engineer; Richard Heuser, engineer for tax map revision; Dr. Francis W. Holman, township physician; Homer Matteson, building inspector; Mrs. Eileen N. Kelly, account clerk, and Ernest E. Hodgson, public works superintendent.

Former Democratic Committeeman Salvatore F. Vena, who was defeated by Mr. Waters, was appointed water meter reader.

Re-elected Mayor

Mr. Marz was re-elected mayor.

Other appointments were: Ralph E. Wallace, court clerk; Mrs. Mary C. Spoor, collector of water accounts; Luther A. Foster, magistrate, three-year term; Mrs. Anna Dellapietro, Mr. Foster and Mrs. George M. Sinnett, local assistance board; Charles R. Short, health officer; Robert Redman, planning board, four-year term, and Mrs. Alice M. Tiemann and Mr. Foster, library trustees.

The meeting date was changed from the second and fourth Wednesdays to the first and third Wednesdays of each month, at 1 p. m.

Representatives of the Taxpayers association again went on record as requesting night meetings, citing the fact that more than 700 residents have signed petitions seeking the change.

Mr. Karkus told the committee that it could change to night meetings any time during the year, if it so desired.

Mr. Waters questioned the appointment of 42 special policemen, asking an explanation of the necessity for "such a large number." Mr. Marz said that fire police and civil defense police were included in the list.

Along with Mr. Waters, Mrs. Behr, a Democrat, was sworn in as tax collector.

Job Outlook Seems Brighter

TRENTON (AP)—What will the new year bring in the way of jobs for 188,000 unemployed New Jerseyans?

Well, the state division of employment security said last week there will be the usual seasonal layoffs well into 1959 but "the basic health of the economy should continue to improve."

In its annual report, the agency said businessmen appear to be facing the new year on a considerably more cautious note than in 1957.

But it added that longer-term job opportunities are on the increase.

It found a big demand for electrical and mechanical engineers and technicians, machinists, auto mechanics, chemists, nurses, women electrical assemblers, and office and restaurant workers.

Youth Contests Readied By Local Elks' Lodge

The Red Bank lodge of Elks is getting set for its annual youth contests, one for scholarship and the other for leadership.

In the running are students from Red Bank public, Red Bank Catholic, Middletown Township and Atlantic Highlands high schools and the Rumson-Fair Haven regional high school.

Patrick J. Vaccarelli, chairman, and Edmund H. Hanlon, co-chairman, of the lodge's youth activities committee, announced today that $400 in savings bonds will go to the winners. Beyond that, the two boys and two girls who capture top local honors will qualify for state and national contests.

Deadline Nears

Applications for each contest must be in the hands of the youth committee by Feb. 1, Mr. Hanlon said. Those of the winners will be forwarded to the Elks' state youth committee by Feb. 15. The state will forward its winning selections to the national judges by Mar. 10.

It was in 1957 when Miss Frederica Ziegler, Elberon, a Red Bank Catholic high school graduate sponsored by the local Elks, won the title of the state's "most valuable student."

As explained by Mr. Hanlon, the scholarship award will be given on an evaluation of "scholastic achievement, citizenship, personality, leadership, perseverance, character, resourcefulness, patriotism, general worthiness and financial need." One boy and one girl in this local competition each will receive a $100 savings bond. State winners each will get a $200 savings bond, and be in line for the national judging.

The Elks National Foundation this year will award 110 college scholarships, Mr. Hanlon said. The value will total $70,000, with identical awards to be made for boys and girls. First place scholarship awards amount to $1,200; second, $1,100; third, $1,000; fourth, $900 and fifth, $800. Fifty general awards will be $600 each.

Qualifications for the leadership contest include initiative, organizational ability, influence on others, citizenship appreciation, perseverance, resourcefulness, a sense of honor as exemplified by records made in school, church and community, integrity, sportsmanship, general character and reputation. This competition is based on total points awarded in the various classifications.

Important factors in judging the leadership papers will be to see how concerned each applicant has been "about our cherished privileges of citizenship under constituted government" and how each has participated in the community and Americanization programs of the area, it was pointed out.

Also to be looked for is how individuals met and overcame difficulties, if they neatly arrange their contest brochures and how they comply with instructions. These factors all will be weighed in counting up the points given in each application.

In the local leadership event, the winning boy and girl each will get a $100 bond.

Mr. Vaccarelli and Mr. Hanlon also are heading this program for the Elks South Central district of New Jersey. They will be working with Elks' youth activities committees in Asbury Park, Belmar, Freehold, Hightstown, Keyport, Long Branch, Lakewood, Lambertville, Point Pleasant, Toms River and Trenton.

Winners of the national awards will be announced at the Elks grand lodge convention in Chicago in July.

Leonardo GOP Club Has Holiday Party

LEONARDO — The Leonardo Republican club held a holiday party in place of its monthly business meeting in the Community fire house last week.

Prizes were awarded to contest winners, John Whelan, Mrs. J. L. Mertz, Mrs. Anna Bergman and Mrs. Cora Mueller. There were 45 members present.

The next meeting will be Jan. 21 in the Community fire house. Harold Copeland, president of the Middletown board of education, will be the speaker.

Students Hear Social Worker

RUMSON — William A. Shea, a psychiatric social worker on the staff of the Pollak clinic, Monmouth Medical Center, was the featured speaker at a recent conference on careers in social work at Rumson-Fair Haven regional high school.

Mr. Shea presented a brief history of social service — showing that its background was "essentially feminine," and had its roots in charity.

He explained that many men entered the field after World War II, when the impact of the war demonstrated the need for helping others.

The speaker stated that a person entering upon a career in social service can look forward to a bright future. Because of a growing recognition of its value and the increasing demand for workers, salaries are improving rapidly, he said.

The talk was one in a series of career conferences scheduled by the regional guidance department to enable students to learn about vocations from experts in the various fields of employment.

New Phone for Busy People

The New Jersey Bell telephone company is introducing here a "streamlined push-button" telephone for people in business who make or take a lot of calls.

In looks and features, it is unlike any previous telephone.

The new instrument—called the "Call Director"—is a low, compact button-studded unit with hand receiver cradled at its side.

It has special features that should make life easier for busy executives and for secretaries or clerks who answer calls, for a number of people, the phone company said.

At the touch of a button, it can provide inter-office communication, arrange conference calls, and "add on" other extensions to incoming calls.

Six-Month Test

The new phone was tested in a six-month trial among business customers in New York city.

New Jersey Bell is introducing it this month in two models. One provides up to 18 push buttons. A larger model has up to 30 push buttons.

The clear plastic push buttons light up to indicate incoming calls, lines in use, and lines on which calls are being held. The names and numbers beside the buttons appear in rectangular windows. The slanted operating panel permits easy reading of numbers and ready use of the buttons.

Great Books Group Meets

The Red Bank great books discussion group will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Red Bank high school library to discuss selections from Confucius' "The Analects."

Persons interested in joining the group have been invited to attend. There are no requisites for membership.

If desired, the selections to be read can be purchased at a low rate from the Great Books foundation, but this is by no means a requirement, the group said.

Great Books foundation is an Illinois non-profit organization — formerly associated with the University of Chicago — which has formulated a six-year adult study course.

The course material constitutes a segment of mankind's knowledge — literary, philosophical, and scientific.

Selections to be read this year cover major writers from Confucius to psychologist William James.

A problem workshop will be featured as program for the Jan. 20 meeting of the Parent-Teacher association in the school.

More than 300 discarded Christmas trees were collected Sunday and burned by the firemen. The company's annual dinner will be held Jan. 17 in Crystal Brook Inn, Eatontown. James V. Ferguson, Jr., is chairman.

June Vincent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Vincent, 67 Campbell ave., celebrated her ninth birthday Dec. 28 with a party in her home. Guests were Richard and Carol Fain and Neil Lavender, Long Branch; Kathy Citarella, Roselle, and Deborah and Colleen North, Carol and Helen Ludwig, Marsha Martin, Marilyn MacStudy, Barbara Shibla, Helen Conover, Lezlie Vincent and Jean Clark, all of this place.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
Red Bank

How prayer and watchfulness brings freshness and newness into human experience will be a topic presented at Christian Science services Sunday.

"Sacrament" is the subject of the lesson-sermon. Passages to be read from the Bible include the following from Psalms (51:10): "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be read the following (4:17-22): "Simply asking that we may love God will never make us love Him; but the longing to be better and holier, expressed in daily watchfulness, and in striving to assimilate more of the divine character, will mould and fashion us anew, until we awake in His likeness."

The Golden text is from Hebrews (13:16): "To do good and to communicate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased."

Jersey Central Signals New Indications of Fare Boosts

NEW YORK CITY — Jersey Central Lines, citing new troubles, indicated this week that it will ask another fare boost in 1959.

"For 1958, we are $2 million short of making ends meet, after we put everything into one pot," the railroad said in its monthly publication, The Jersey Central Commuter's Almanac," which was distributed to riders on the commuter trains.

It added:

"Because of indecision and wishful thinking, we have moved one year closer to the end of the road. Here we are, on the brink of a new year, a propitious time to reflect and resolve. . .

Pattern is Cited

"We are not going to be so bold as to suggest a label for 1959. But if 1959 proves to be another year of indecision and wishful thinking, the pattern might be somewhat as follows:

"The railroad will propose increased fares and reduced service. . .

"Which the commuters will oppose. . .

"Then the commissions will delay and deny. . .

"And the courts will decry. . .

"But naught will prevail against the inexorable laws of simple economics which demand that someone must pay the piper.

"In the light of all this — what do you think that you, as a commuter, and we as a railroad, should do?"

Jersey Central acknowledged its mistake a year ago of listing 1958 as "a year of decision." That, too, said the almanac, "was wishful thinking — a year which we of the Jersey Central will want to forget for a number of reasons."

Was It "Wishful Thinking?"

Claim was made that the road had spent millions of dollars and had done much to improve commuter service over the years. "Up to now," it said, "we have believed that a way would be found to reimburse us for essential public service, which is provided at less cost than that of any substitute service. We are almost persuaded that this, too, has been wishful thinking."

The almanac said that last year "the results of several years of extensive studies, with a million-dollar price-tag, were discarded, partly because the idea of 'passing the buck' to the Port of New York Authority had wide popular appeal."

Citing improvements made over the past 12 years — a $12 million investment in Diesel locomotives for passenger service; a $2 million investment in Budd cars "with the result that 49 per cent of our passenger trains are now being operated with the most comfortable air-conditioned equipment possible; $1 million spent for coach lighting and modernization; establishment of club car service, station, parking and ferry improvements — JCL wondered what comes next.

'Continued Losses'

It said interested commuter groups had helped work out new schedules to better meet present-day needs "including uniform hourly service during off-peak hours," but added:

"Despite all of our former faith and hope, we now come to the New Year of 1959 with an out of pocket loss from passenger operations running on an annual basis of $2.75 million."

Note was taken that commuter fares had "tripled over a period of the last 38 years, most of the increases occurring in the postwar period."

JCL said that "until 1958, the stockholders and the profits from other operations have made up the difference between the cost of providing the service and the fares paid."

But, pooling everything, the road ended this past year with a $2 million loss, the almanac said. "This is the big change, largely brought about by the help which competing forms of transportation are getting from the taxpayers' dollars on the one hand, and the exorbitant state and local taxes still being exacted from railroads in New Jersey on the other."

'Out of Ideas'

Moaned the JCL: "We have just about run out of constructive ideas, and now we are running out of money."

The almanac also asked its commuters to make these New Year's resolutions:

"To allow an extra minute or two to get to the station in the morning. . .To board trains only after they come to a full stop. . .To smoke on trains and ferries only where smoking is permitted . . .To remember that seats are almost always available on commuter trains, even if there happens to be none in our particular coach. . .To recognize that train delays at drawbridges are not usually the railroad's fault. . .To recognize the importance of commuter service by rail, and to make it clear to the elected representatives that they are expected to complete their unfinished job of assuring the future of public transit by rail."

No Council School Stand Irks Resch

EATONTOWN — The president of the Eatontown Taxpayers association last night took the mayor and council to task for not taking a stand on the $1,675,000 Monmouth regional high school referendum.

Charles J. Resch said the outcome of the vote "might have been different" if the governing body "came out against the building program."

As it was, Eatontown turned down the referendum, 197 for to 452 against, but New Shrewsbury and Shrewsbury township combined to bring in 935 yes votes and 135 no votes.

The total district count was 1,137 for the proposal and 587 against it.

Mr. Resch said the mayor and council "were negligent in their approach to the problem."

He added:

Blames Price

"Had they put forth some effort, the results of the referendum would have been different. I think Eatontown would have carried it."

Mr. Resch said Mayor F. Bliss Price, particularly, should have made his feelings known in the matter.

The New Shrewsbury governing body came out in favor of the proposal.

Matter of fact, Mayor Karl K. Baron was even out campaigning for its approval Sunday.

"It was to Eatontown's advantage to defeat the proposal just as it was to New Shrewsbury's advantage to approve it," Mr. Resch said.

At the same time, he stated that much of the literature distributed by the Taxpayers association was responsible for the Eatontown result.

"The citizens of Eatontown took our message to heart," Mr. Resch said, "and went out to defeat the referendum."

Praises Herrlein

He praised Col. Wesley R. Herrlein who, he said, "worked like a beaver to help us defeat the question in Eatontown."

"He is a civic-minded gentleman," Mr. Resch said, "and he deserves to be congratulated."

At the same time, the president said the board should now concentrate on "building a good school but at a price we can afford."

Held on 3 BE Counts

MIDDLETOWN — Anthony Lazzari, 21, 45 South Fifth ave., Long Branch, was arraigned in magistrate's court this morning on three counts of breaking and entering and larceny within the township.

Magistrate W. Gilbert Manson ordered Lazzari held for grand jury action without bail.

Det. Sgt. John Kelly reported that Lazzari admitted breaking into two service stations and various milk machines throughout the township.

Eatontown police reported that they have charged him with petty larceny of milk machines.

Sgt. Kelly said that Lazzari also admitted to breaking and entering in Raritan township and Matawan.

The case was broken, Sgt Kelly said, through the work of Sgt. Harry Leo of Eatontown and Det. Capt. Joseph Purcell and Det. John Perry of Long Branch.

Commuters Angry Over ICC Fare Hike Decision

RARITAN TOWNSHIP — Embattled Shore commuters last week took a "Sunday punch" from the Interstate Commerce commission, but it just made them "fighting mad."

The commuters received unpleasant news when they learned the ICC okayed a fare increase for the Pennsylvania railroad.

This blow hit last Friday, just six days before the ICC hearing on the increase, which was scheduled for today in New York city, and was in the form of an interim order permitting collection of the requested fare increase even though its "legality and reasonableness" had not been determined.

16 Cent Increase

The ICC decision authorizes the Pennsylvania railroad to increase its New York city-New Jersey commutation fares for Jersey shore patrons by 16 cents a ride. The same increase was granted to the Jersey Central lines last September on commutation involving use of its Hudson river ferry service.

However, the ICC stipulated that the company must set up a system under which refunds can be made on the higher priced ticket in the event an investigation shows the increase to be unreasonable.

Originally slated for November, the hearing was postponed twice as commuters, led by the newly-formed New York and Long Branch Commuters' Division, sparred for time to build their strengh for the fight.

Continue the Fight

Following the ICC wallop, A. Morris Everett, chairman of the Commuters' Division, declared, "This ICC action definitely is not final, nor does it mean we have lost our battle to defeat this fare increase. We will continue the fight, and press harder than before."

Mr. Everett continued, "This ICC announcement made it clear that any increase put through. . .will be subject to refund if the increase finally is denied." Every commuter reaction to the ICC decision ranged from 'outrage to puzzlement'," Mr. Everett reported.

Mr. Everett said commuters who had followed developments closely could not understand the ICC action, since the Pennsylvania railroad's application for increase had been given to the Jersey Central in connection with the latter's ferry operations.

Mr. Everett revealed that the ICC had acted with the knowledge that more than 2,000 commuters had signed statements, circulated by the NY & LB Commuters' division, indicating that an increase in railroad commutation fare would force them to seek an alternate method of getting to and from their work.

'Completely Unjustified'

"The ICC action is completely unjustified, especially so close to the hearing," Mr. Everett stated. "However, the action is typical of what is to be expected from the kind of legislation (National Transportation act) under which the ICC operates."

Meantime, farther north in New Jersey, Forrest K. Van Horn, chairman of the Northern Valley Commuters' organization, had this to say about the ICC action: "We have had past experience with the ICC "public-be-damned" attitude, since they allowed a ferry fare increase for the Erie-Lackawanna without a public hearing."

Mr. Van Horn continued, "We are going to have our hearing Jan. 8, but this was achieved only after angry and persistent effort. We find very little difference in the 'on-again, off-again' attitude of the ICC, as respects the Erie-Lackawanna on the one hand, and the New York and Long Branch on the other."

Red Bank Hearing

The N. Y. & LB commuter group is hopeful that the least it will get Jan. 8 is the granting of an evening hearing in the Red Bank area.

Meantime the group will continue its all-out membership campaign so that it can be "truly representative" of NY & LB commuters, Mr. Everett said. Furthermore, because it appears that a hearing in Red Bank is likely, the group also will urge commuters to continue the "Block the Fare Hike" drive. In this drive, hundreds of commutation tickets containing commuters' names and addresses have been received at P. O. box 9, Middletown. The tickets, Mr. Everett reported, will be used to assist the attorneys in assembling evidence for the local hearing.

THE VANISHING OF THE COVERED BRIDGE

From Washington, that center of national statistics, comes the sad news of an increasing deficit in our country's total of covered bridges. There once were thousands of these, but they have dwindled to probably fewer than 1,200. In the last five years of highway change, almost 600 covered bridges have vanished from back roads and turnpikes. It is somewhat satisfying to learn from a survey made by the American Automobile association that in 21 states where covered bridges once abounded, 991 are still in use. Flood and fire have spared them and kindly town boards have patched their roofs and replaced their planked floors. Rather surprisingly, Ohio ranks first in covered bridge survival. The nostalgic tourist would have thought that Vermont could outbridge Ohio. But Vermont has only 103. The manner in which abbey-arched elms can frame the entrance to a covered bridge in Vermont is something Ohio would find it hard to beat.

New York State has but 23 covered bridges left. It is a lucky countryman who has one of them in his vicinity, and it is a pleased hardtop motorist who can rumble across it. The covered bridge is on the way to becoming as much of a rarity as a buckboard and an old gray mare. It might be difficult to put a covered bridge in a museum, but Henry Ford came close to this achievement when he transported a covered bridge from Pennsylvania and set it up in his Greenfield Village at Dearborn, Mich. Like many a rural thing, the covered bridge had great practicality. It was built of the material from a nearby forest, and it fitted into a landscape in a way that steel and concrete cannot equal. On a hot summer day it was pleasant to pass into the cool tunnel of shade formed from skillfully braced and pegged beams. A wise man drove slowly and perhaps looked through interstices to sunny water below. In winter a covered bridge guarded man and horse from wind that might be blowing mighty hard across an icebound creek.

Spring brought robins and swallows to nest in a covered bridge. Romance nested there, too. Young names got carved on the walled sides, with love wielding a sharp jackknife. Time transferred these names to a country churchyard. But the bridge stayed on for a century above a living river. In today's girdered highway progress, it is good to know that a few old covered bridges still carry on, with their beams and memories. Wisconsin has just one survivor, which a county board has voted to preserve "forever." That's the spirit! —New York Herald-Tribune.

Eatontown School Budget Introduced

EATONTOWN — The board of education—in a split vote—introduced a proposed $837,399 operating budget for the 1959-60 school year at Monday night's meeting.

It represents an increase of $124,576 over the 1958-59 budget of $772,823.

One significant fact about the budget: The board of education does not see the school purposes tax rate going up. Matter of fact, it is expected to go down.

The budget makes no provision for the education of Fort Monmouth's Capehart housing development students.

The board previously agreed to educate those students until June.

Money to be raised by local taxation is $354,818 — while in the current budget it is $436,047.

Board members said this should mean a decrease in the $10.60 per $1,000 of assessed valuation which they said is the current school tax rate.

No Figures

But they were unable to give any figures at the meeting as to what the new school purposes tax rate would be.

The budget has gone to Earl B. Garrison, county superintendent of schools, for his approval.

It will be advertised Jan. 15.

A public hearing of the spending schedule has been set for Jan. 26 at 8 p. m. in the Margaret L. Vetter school.

The board also is expected to adopt the budget at that time.

Voting against the budget were Samuel Garofalo and William Griffiths. Both said they would like to study it more. They said they were certain it could be cut in a number of areas.

Fao A. Akers first voted no, but then decided to abstain. He said he was in Florida when the budget was being drawn up. He added he wanted to study it further.

For Budget

Voting for it were John White, George W. Winning, President Anson V. Ransom, William Greenwood, and J. Edson Allen. Mrs. Ethel G. Sharp was absent.

One reason board members cited for the expected decrease in local taxes for school purposes was the increase in state and federal aid the district hopes to receive in 1958-59.

The board is earmarking as a revenue $116,000 in what it calls appropriations balances. Much of this is additional federal and state aid.

Another revenue is the $3,000 the board will receive from the Shrewsbury township school district for educating a number of retarded students.

This breakdown of other revenues was given by the board:

State aid, current expenses, $220,813 as compared to $196,095 in the current budget; state aid, transportation, $26,292 compared to $25,236; state aid, building, $36,476 compared to $33,445; and federal aid, public law 874, $140,000 compared to $82,000.

Cite Expenditures

These expenditures were cited:

Current expenses, $823,364 in the proposed budget compared to $720,428 in the present one; repairs and replacements, $14,456 compared to $4,440; capital outlay, $19,881 compared to $10,556.

Debt service will be $39,698 in the proposed budget compared to $37,398.

Mr. Ramsay is scheduled for a salary increase—from his present $9,000 to $9,750.

So are the system's three principals — whose total salaries are now $23,000. They will be increased to $24,400.

Teachers' salaries — as the result of a new salary schedule — have also gone up. The new total for teacher pay is $391,925, compared to $353,700 this year. This will also include hiring about three new teachers and a reading specialist.

Another new budget item is the $9,600 sewer tax which the board will have to pay for using the borough's new sewer system. Funds also were allocated to make provisions to connect into the system.

Transportation Up

Transportation has also gone up. Transporting students to other districts will cost $25,504 compared to $17,393 in 1958-59. Transporting students within the district will amount to $24,984, a decrease from $28,107.

The board also proposed a new salary schedule for its teachers—which features $100 starting increases in non-degree and degree categories and $200 step pay hikes.

Mr. Ramsay said the average teacher increase will be $280.

This is the guide:

No degree, $3,800 minimum and $6,200 maximum; bachelor's degree, $4,100 and $6,500; master's degree, $4,400 and $6,800 and six-year level, $4,700 and $7,100.

The maximum salary will be reached in 11 steps.

J. Edson Allen, personnel committee chairman, said no-degree teachers with 15 years of experience and under tenure will now be placed on the degree guide.

Letter to General

Back to the Capehart situation, the board noted that a letter went out earlier this week to Brig. Gen. Albert F. Cassevant, Fort Monmouth commanding general, informing him that the board is not making any budget provisions to educate the children.

A Fort Monmouth information spokesman said yesterday Gen. Cassevant has read the board letter and is in the process of answering it.

But he would give no indication of what the general was going to say to the board.

Meanwhile, the spokesman said that, if necessary, Fort Monmouth plans to take up the question of education for the Capehart students with state and federal education authorities.

Mr. Garofalo, who has been making a study of what it cost to educate federal pupils, revealed at the meeting "it's not costing us one red cent."

He said the board is "making money" by providing the students' education.

Cites Finances

Mr. Garofalo said the board realized $20,000 during the 1957-58 school year by educating Army students—"money which we never would have had."

He said, too, the board not only benefits from funds received for individual students, "but we also have gotten additional school facilities which become ours."

However, Mr. Garofalo said he went along with a group of other board members who voted not to make provisions for the Capehart students in the new budget.

"Public opinion, in many sections of Eatontown," he said, "is against accepting the Capehart students. Unless there is a change in feeling, I will have to vote not to accept them."

Mr. Garofalo said, too, that the board has never received any assurances from the U. S. office of education that accepting the Capehart students would mean the construction of new facilities here by the government.

Wants Definite Word

"Until I can learn definitely that by taking Capehart students we will get a new building, then the answer must be no," he said.

Mr. Ramsay said there are about 120 Capehart students in local schools now while this figure could possibly climb to 240 by June.

He said if the board should ever decide to accept the Capehart students in September, there would probably be about 350.

Middletown Planning Board Hears County Park Plans

MIDDLETOWN — Plans for a county park were outlined before the planning board here Monday night by Charles Pike, county planning director.

The board agreed to study the plan further. It proposes two alternate sites, one of which is in the township. The other is in Atlantic township. Both are on the shoreline of the Monmouth Consolidated Water company reservoir (Tintern Manor lake) which is now being expanded.

The plan calls for county development and maintenance of the park in conjunction with the company's expansion plans. The company will raise the lake's water level to 35 feet, creating a shoreline of more than 20 miles.

Both suggested sites are off Phalanx rd. The Middletown tract comprises 70 acres, and the Atlantic township site, 40 acres.

Mayor George Dittmar, Atlantic township, has opposed the plan.

The Holmdel planning board voted last month to oppose the park, but indicated it may reconsider the plan at its January meeting, Mr. Pike said. Middletown planners took no stand pending further study.

The board postponed until Feb. 2 the scheduled hearing on the Rustic Wood Acres development proposal. It agreed, however, to hear spokesmen for some 50 residents of the area who appeared at the meeting.

The development map calls for a 62-home development between Cherry Tree Farm rd. and Murphy rd., near the Cadillac development.

Most of the residents at the meeting expressed concern as to the effect of the proposed development on drainage and traffic in the area. Some said that Bayberry la., which traverses the site, is a dangerous intersection at Cherry Tree Farm rd.

The planners approved the 32-lot Old Ridge Manor-Cherry Lawn development in Lincroft, off Swimming River rd. Also approved was the map for Arthur Hills, a 16-lot development near Hosford ave., Leonardo.

A minor subdivision of a 22-acre tract on Taylor la., between rt. 35 and the New York and Long Branch railroad, was approved. The board was told the Jersey Central Power and Light company will use the tract as a power substation site sometime in the future.

The plan, which company spokesmen have said does not call for early construction, is subject to approval by the zoning board of adjustment because the tract does not have highway frontage, as required by the zoning code.

Accidents Send 5 to Hospitals

MIDDLETOWN — Two Leonardo residents, both soldiers stationed at Fort Monmouth, were taken to the fort hospital Friday after their car left rt. 36 and rolled over five times, police reported.

The accident was one of four in the township during the past week which caused injury to a total of five persons.

Patrolman Howard E. Collins reported that Pvt. Robert N. Spears, 79 Florence ave., Leonardo, was driving east on rt. 36 Friday night when his car struck a patch of ice.

The car skidded on to the center island, then veered across the road and rolled over five or six times. The car traveled two-tenths of a mile after striking the ice, the officer said.

The driver and passenger, Orville Apar, Ocean blvd., Leonardo, were taken to the Fort Monmouth hospital by the Highlands first aid squad. Pvt. Spears was admitted with a broken shoulder. The Apgar youth was released after examination.

Mrs. Ottilie Kling, 90 Hillside st., River Plaza, was treated in Riverview hospital Tuesday night after an accident in River Plaza. She was released after treatment for head and neck bruises.

Police said a car driven by Charles Kling, of the same address, was going east on West Front st. and collided with a car driven by W. T. White, Campbell ave., River Plaza, who was driving out of the parking lot at Chris' store.

Charles E. Young, 57, of 14 Third ave., Atlantic Highlands, was treated in Riverview hospital Saturday for cuts of the nose and left leg. Police said a car he was driving collied with one driven by Adelbert M. Morrison, 95 Swartzel dr., at Sleepy Hollow rd. and the Earle Navy rd.

Mr. Young, who was going east on King's hwy., and Mrs. Morrison, driving south on Sleepy Hollow rd., said they stopped at the Earle rd. stop sign, then proceeded after noting that the other driver had stopped.

The collision caused Mr. Young to lose control of his car and it went into a ditch and struck a tree, police said.

Thomas McDermott, 58, of 130-A Ocean ave., East Keansburg, was treated in Riverview for head and shoulder scrapes after he was struck by a car on Port Monmouth rd. last Thursday. Patrolman Arthur Stover reported the car was driven by R. W. Stefanski, Raritan pl., Keansburg.

Charge Man Got Credit; Then Didn't Pay His Bill

EATONTOWN—A man who had been buying merchandise on credit and using a false address came to the end of the trail yesterday.

Police here arrested John G. Pond, 42, of Van's Efficiency apartments, rt. 35, on a warrant from Deal police.

According to police, Mr. Pond would go to a car dealer on the pretense of buying a car, take the car out for a test run using dealer's plates, and then stop at a store to buy merchandise.

After picking out an article, police said, Pond would then claim he left his money home and ask to charge the purchase. He used an address of Valley rd., Eatontown. An alert grocery store owner in Deal gave Mr. Pond credit, but checked the license number. When Mr. Pond did not show up to pay his bill, she contacted Eatontown police, who found that the car had come from a Red Bank auto dealer.

A check with the dealer revealed that Mr. Pond had returned the car and been given a ride to Eatontown, where he was dropped off, on rt. 35. Police checked residences along the highway and found Mr. Pond living with his wife and two children at Van's.

He was turned over to Deal police yesterday and has been charged with obtaining merchandise under false pretenses.

Mr. Pond did not restrict his activities to Deal. Deputy Police Chief George H. Clayton in Red Bank said this morning that Pond had used the same tactics Dec. 29 to buy an $11.95 pair of shoes on credit in Red Bank. The chief said this morning a charge will be placed against Mr. Pond.

Deal police said Mr. Pond also is wanted for questioning in several other municipalities. They said his grocery bill in Deal amounted to $25.
